OBJECT. 13860 homes are proposed. This number has not been scrutinised by councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden. It is not reasonable to produce unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB, approx. 75% protected by SPA).

It is inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period OR across projected sites, when the number itself is unsubstantiated. External consultants and members of the public have provided detailed criticisms of the model. If the housing number were substantially lower, and only met housing need, there would be no need to build on Green Belt or open countryside.

The number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds 13860. Guildford residents would not accept building homes on open countryside to meet Woking’s designated “need” but this seems to be implied.

We object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn. The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high. We are very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound.

A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole. Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.” Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”.

This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years.

It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement. However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing.

At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt. A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum. The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan. The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit. NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

- The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.
- There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.
• The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast.

A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA

The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.

2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.

3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.

4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction.

Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target.

A further study is attached which is included within this section by reference. It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.

Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. We have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed. The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan. Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt. Appendix: Report prepared by David Reeve in relation to the SHMA (attached as this is a separate document but included within this section by reference).

Ministerial guidance in relation to building on the Green Belt is clear:

“the single issue of unmet need - is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development in the Green Belt” - Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 7th February 2014.

1. “we were always very clear that we would maintain key protections for the countryside, and, in particular, for the Green Belt. The Framework makes it clear that a Green Belt boundary may be altered only in exceptional circumstances and reiterates the importance and permanence of the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Michael Pitt, Planning Inspectorate 3rd March 2014.

2. “Planning Guidance, updated in March 2014, also states that unmet housing need is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt to constitute the very special circumstances justifying inappropriate development within the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 18th June 2014.

70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries. Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements).

Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 693 per annum to 500. In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN, of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council.

This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 250 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 5,000 homes. All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 20,000 objections made by residents to the 2014 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure. It would also mean that there is currently 8.5 years supply of housing (2131/250) which is made up of existing permissions granted (1,518) and completions made (613) during 2013/2015. (Monitoring Report by GBC 2015)

Whilst we have many significant objections to the GBC Local Plan we applaud the policy statement by GBC in their Monitoring Report, “We will continue to monitor the use of previously developed land, and continue to identify as many opportunities as possible for redevelopment of previously developed land.” We believe it will be to the benefit of all residents if GBC can apply themselves vigorously to this endeavour in order to protect the Green Belt.

I object to the scale of development for Ripley and Send in the Plan

I object to the balance of new housing being shouldered primarily by Ripley and Send. There are virtually no employment/jobs in these villages but much of the borough’s housing target is being deployed in these two villages via Garlick’s Arch (400 houses) and the Wisley Airfield (2100 houses). Surely it makes sense to rebalance this allocation so that most of the housing is local to Guildford where people will want to work or catch a train to work from (there are no practically accessible stations near these proposed developments). There are other available options such as the University owned land that could have been used to develop a new quarter of Guildford fulfilling much of the housing target – why has this not been identified in the strategic plan?

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as follows. I believe the Local Plan will have a direct and detrimental effect on the amenity currently enjoyed. It erodes the openness of the Green Belt and endangers the beauty and views in and out of the Surrey Hills AONB.

I object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 13,800 new homes (690 new dwellings being built every year for 20 years) and we object on two grounds; these housing numbers have been imposed with no real consultation being undertaken with the residents. Secondly, the housing numbers are based on a high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no consultation with residents.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
OBJECT. 13860 homes are proposed. This number has not been scrutinised by councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden. It is not reasonable to produce unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB, approx. 75% protected by SPA).

It is inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period OR across projected sites, when the number itself is unsubstantiated. External consultants and members of the public have provided detailed criticisms of the model. If the housing number were substantially lower, and only met housing need, there would be no need to build on Green Belt or open countryside.

The Council needs to completely rethink its priorities and very carefully consider the views and requirements of the borough’s residents. We need a less contentious and more viable plan, which proposes a sustainable and suitable level of development. The use of brownfield sites should be high on the agenda.

I have carefully considered the Proposed Submission Local Plan which Guildford Borough Council (“GBC”) has now published for public consultation. My comments are set out in this letter. I have strong concerns about the Proposed Submission Local Plan and the evidence and assumptions which support it. I have three major concerns:

1. The scale of the housebuilding programme. The target outlined by GBC represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough. The Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) projects a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

2. The destruction of the Green Belt - I note that the Proposed Submission Local Plan includes the statement “We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt”. GBC is in breach of this policy through the housing policies it has set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan, whereby some 65% of developments will be built on land that is currently Green Belt; and

3. Infrastructure - the infrastructure proposals are inadequate even to meet the needs of what is there at the moment, let alone the proposed developments in the Local Plan.

I therefore OBJECT to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

These comments are developed in more detail below.
1. STRATEGIC POLICIES

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy

This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

I have serious concerns about the enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough. The justification of this number, when the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) is projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period is not given.

Some explanation for this mismatch may partly be found in the conclusion of the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised. It estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’ – effectively what the official statisticians at the ONS and the Department of Communities and Local Government (“DCLG”) are predicting Guildford will require based upon their population and household forecasts. To this is added in the SHMA another 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’, a further 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’ and 25 homes due to ‘student growth’, all of which totals up to 693 homes per annum target.

I cannot understand this analysis. Economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG, so what GBC are proposing actually comes on top of the official household growth forecasts for the borough. Moreover, the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 is proposing that all development sites (other than the very smallest) will be required to have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing, so why another 31 homes per annum is needed as affordable housing on top of this 40% ratio is quite incomprehensible.

One of my particular concerns in reviewing the Proposed Submission Local Plan is that the impression is conveyed upon the reader that GBC’s housing targets are effectively needed to fulfil NPPF requirements or because of central government policy – in other words that GBC has no real choice but to put forward these projections, unpalatable though they might be. However, the reality is very different. GBC has voluntarily chosen to pursue a policy of aggressive civic and economic expansion.

I therefore OBJECT to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

3. PROTECTING POLICIES

This section in the Proposed Submission Local Plan sets out policies concerned with protecting the environment across Guildford Borough, including the Metropolitan Green Belt.

POLICY P2: Green Belt

Local Plan Policy P2 states that: We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt.

Unfortunately, GBC is in breach of this policy itself through the housing policies that it has set out in the Local Plan. The analysis included in the Appendix shows that around 65% of the developments proposed in the Proposed Submission Local Plan are to be built on land currently within the Metropolitan Green Belt. This is an outrageous outcome.

Under NPPF rules, GBC is permitted to make allowance for factors which may constrain the delivery of new housing, such as the need to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt or the restrictions required to protect the Surrey Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (“AONB”) which is offered protection under the NPPF comparable to that of a national park. Although these areas make up a large proportion of the land area of Guildford Borough, GBC makes no attempt to reduce its housing delivery in order to take account of such constraints. This is incomprehensible.

I therefore OBJECT to the proposals to build on the Green Belt.

6. INFRASTRUCTURE POLICIES

This section of the Proposed Submission Local Plan sets out details covering a range of infrastructure policies.

The detailed infrastructure proposals for Guildford Borough which give me cause for concern.

There are serious deficiencies and shortcomings in the infrastructure of Guildford Borough as it is today and that the aggressive housing policy as proposed by GBC in the Proposed Submission Local Plan will exacerbate this problem.

In East Horsley today:

? Roads across the parish are in poor condition with many potholes. Many roads are unable to sustain their current levels of traffic, particularly the increasing levels of HGV traffic;

? The principal through roads traversing East Horsley are narrow and winding, have a series of pinch points, have sections without any pavements and are generally unlit;

? Many of the drains are blocked or otherwise in poor condition giving rise to frequent surface water flooding when it rains;

? The pavements are in poor condition. As well as being narrow, they are often uneven and/or cracked making it difficult, for example, for people with pushchairs or prams or in wheelchairs;
? There are insufficient school spaces for the number of local children needing them;
? The Medical Centre in East Horsley is already at capacity in terms of its number of patients..
In respect of East Horsley, there are only two specific proposals in Appendix C:
LRN 25 - East Horsley and West Horsley traffic management and environmental improvement scheme. It is not clear what is proposed here, and its timing and funding have to be considered uncertain. It is stated that funding will, at least in part, come from developer contribution. However, it is not at all clear what development is likely to give rise to such a contribution, but it certainly implies that funding could only come if there were a development; and HSC 5 - Expansion of East Horsley Medical Centre to provide additional capacity and services for future population in years 5 – 15 of the plan.
There are no proposals in respect of all the existing problems with, for example, roads, pavements, drainage, and schools.

Furthermore, it is inevitable that the proposed developments in East Horsley itself and nearby, particularly in West Horsley and the proposals for Wisley, will put further strain on the existing infrastructure. There are no proposals at all to cater for this.
Although an expansion of the Medical Centre is proposed in the Infrastructure Schedule, this is not until years 5 – 15 of the Plan. Given that it is already at capacity, EHPC believes that this needs to be done earlier.
The failure to address the inadequacies of the existing infrastructure to meet the needs of what is there already is a serious deficiency in the Proposed Submission Local Plan.
I accordingly OBJECT to the infrastructure proposals on these grounds. I further OBJECT to the proposals for infrastructure in that they do not meet the stated objective of providing infrastructure to support the proposed developments.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
GBC’s proposal to build 13,860 new houses without proper constraints in order to reduce the overall housing deficit differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
The Plan is biased and not fairly spread across the borough. There is too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). Why is 36% of all the Plan’s new housing being proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.
5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

Objections to Local Plan

I object to this plan because the Council has no mandate to allow development in the Green Belt. The controlling Conservative group was elected in 2015 on a promise to protect the Green Belt.
I object to the removal of Ripley, Wisley, Clandon, Send, the Horsleys and many other villages from the Green Belt which will lead to the destruction of our rural villages.

I object to the plan because Guildford Borough Council shows little understanding of the countryside and of the heritage of the borough.

I object to this Plan which would damage the environment and character of the Borough.

I object to the disproportionate number of houses proposed for the locations North and East of Guildford

I object to the lack of evidence for the proposed housing numbers -13860 -693 per year for 20 years. The assumptions on which the consultants prepared the SHMA have not been given to the public or to councillors.

I object to these housing figures as they were prepared pre-Brexit and must now be revised downwards. Independent assessments suggest some 300-325 houses per year would be adequate.

I object to Surrey University not building 2000+ units of student accommodation [for which it has permission] on its campus. This would free up family housing in the town.

I object to the proposed numbers also because the recognised constraints [eg 89% Green Belt, inadequate infra structure] have not been applied.

I object to the excessive density proposed for the major strategic sites.

I object to the impact of poor air quality on many of these major developments in breach of Air Quality Directives.

I object to lack of detail on financing of massive infrastructure eg roads and schools, which would be needed from Surrey County Council and the Highways Agency.

I object to the lack of information on how the new Hospitals and GP surgeries which will be needed will be funded.

I object to any villages being taken out of the Metropolitan Green Belt and swamped by significant housing development.

I object to the increased traffic congestion which will be caused on the M25, A3, other A roads and small rural roads.

I object to the ludicrous suggestion that many will resume walking and cycling-most journeys will require a car and public transport from the villages is poor.

I object to Three Farms Meadow [former Wisley Airfield] being removed from the Green Belt and included for housing. It is totally illogical to include this site which was comprehensively rejected for some 14 significant reasons earlier this year.

I object to developments at Blackwell Farm, Gosden Farm, Garlicks Arch and Wisley as this effectively merges all the villages along the A£ from the M25 to the Hogs Back with no provision for improvements to the A3 or local roads.

I object to the proposed SANG at Long Reach West Horsley which would be used to support some 1000 homes in a very small village.

I object to all sites in West Horsley where more than 5 houses are planned

I object to these sites within West Horsley

Manor Farm A

Bell and Colvill A37 –already rejected by the planning committee

Land at Ockham road North A39
I object to these sites in East Horsley

Ockham Road North A39

Thatcher’s Hotel A36 - already rejected.

I object to these plans for the Horsleys which seem to be an attempt to create a small town.

I object to the failure of GBC to follow a “brownfield first” policy.

Finally I object to the document. In the form of 1,800 pages it is not user friendly and is out for consultation for only 6 weeks during the summer holiday period.

I strongly object to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and sites: June 2016 with reference to impact on The West and East Horsley Villages.

- why are we building on GREENBELT land - this is land that has been protected so far for good reason. Why now should we be considering building on this land when there are surely other feasible sites which are not Greenbelt?

- why are we planning to build additional houses in an area which is already saturated from a schools (Raleigh, Howard of Effingham running at capacity with waiting lists already), from a medical perspective

- these are villages and do not have good enough roads, to cope with all this additional traffic

How can you put this plan forward without considering the impact on the local residents within the village or indeed what the impact will be if the houses were to be built. As part of the plan it must be seen that the houses are not built on Greenbelt Land and that if any new housing is erected on suitable (not Greenbelt land) then increased infrastructure (eg schools, medical, roads, shopping, public transport) are also included.

I re-iterate that I strongly object to this plan for the above reasons and hope it will be denied.

2. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford's OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered "sound".

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council's cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered "deliverable". In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected "windfall" sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a "plan" that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.
It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound.

A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London's commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick's Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

As a resident of East Horsley I write to OBJECT most strongly to the Proposed Submission Local Plan – Strategy & Sites consultation document, which includes plans to develop a massive 593 new houses in the Horsleys, and a new 2,000+ house village at Ockham (former Wisley Airfield), notwithstanding the enormous amount of concern and objections expressed by local residents in the last couple of years.

Why do we have to, yet again, write to express our objections to all of the proposed developments. This process is clearly designed to wear the local residents down until the plans get implemented.

I object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). My objections are as follows:

1. I object to the Local Plan as the proposed developments are not sustainable

   The proposed 13,850+ new homes in this tiny area are not sustainable – it will damage local communities by over development, especially Ripley, Send and Clandon. There is no public transport to speak of, only the occasional bus service which has already been cut back. Wisley Airfield and Garlick’s Arch have no railway stations, so almost every adult will have to drive their own car. It is already difficult to cross main roads as a pedestrian; more traffic will make it impossible and extremely dangerous.

   The development should be in more urban areas where there is sustainable transport.

   5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation with the loss of village identities. I was always under the impression it was Council policy to keep each village separate and retain their individuality.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

Having carefully considered the Proposed Submission Local Plan which Guildford Borough Council (“GBC”) has now published for public consultation my comments are set out in this below in this email.

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy

I OBJECT to this policy as I believe the figures used to calculate GBC’s annual housing target are incorrect.

The policy is based upon a projected net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough over the period 2013-2033. This is equivalent to adding 693 new homes per annum or 13,860 new homes over the period of the proposed Local Plan.

The ONS on the other hand projects a 15% increase in population over the same period.

In addition the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised, estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’. This is effectively what the Office of National Statistics (ONS) and the Department of Communities and Local Government ("DCLG") are predicting GBC will require based upon their population and household forecasts. It would appear from the SHMA that there is some “double counting”. For example, the SHMA has added another:

- 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’
- 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’
- 25 homes per annum due to ‘student growth’

This increases the original per annum figure of 517 new homes by 176 to reach the 693 annual housing target.

I find this strange as:

- Surely economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG.
- The GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 proposes that all development sites (other than the very smallest) must have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing. Thus these would already be included in the 517 homes proposed.

It appears therefore that what GBC is proposing is actually above the official household growth forecasts for the borough.

In addition, the decision of the UK to leave the EU has seen the government and Bank of England forecast that economic growth will be reduced. This further brings into question the number of homes added to the ONS/DCLG figures.

The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), paragraph 158, requires GBC to base its development plan policies on up-to-date and relevant evidence. I believe it can be seen from the above that this is not the case.

In addition I object to any green belt land and areas of outstanding beauty being used for housing. Brownfield sites should be used for this purpose instead of building shops and offices. We have enough shops and business premises in Guildford. Your council should force the University of Surrey to fulfil its obligation to build adequate accommodation for students and staff at Manor Park. They have planning permission for this. This would free up a large number of houses for local people who are trying to buy or rent accommodation.

I object to the overall strategy

The proposal to develop 693 new homes per year for the next 15 years is unsustainable, given that this area is densely populated and the infrastructure is already creaking at the seams. Even half of the proposed number would be difficult to accommodate.

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

This local plan seeks to reduce overall development in town centre and urban areas compared to 2014 by almost 10% and instead seeks to increase the overall housing development in rural and green belt villages by insetting 15 villages. The proposed increase in rural areas from 2014 to 2016 is almost 12%. This is totally disproportionate.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners’ views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I strongly object to the new local plan.

My areas of concern:

Lack of protection of Green Belt.

Disproportionate housing development in our area, overloading schools, health services and public transport stations. hospitals.

Traffic concerns on trunk roads and lanes.

Air pollution from thousands of extra cars, affecting elderly people and children.

Pedestrians and cyclists safety on overcrowded local roads with no footway.

No guarantee of enough affordable housing for young families.

I object to the exaggerated “housing need” figure of 13,860 which is far too high and results in the completely unnecessary development of the Green Belt.

4. I object to all proposals to build on the Green Belt at Send and elsewhere in the borough because all the development that is really needed can be accommodated in Guildford’s urban brownfield areas much closer to existing transport hubs.

A more reasonable house building target be reached and agreed by the Guildford residence, hopefully keeping the balance and character of the borough.

The revised housing development target could be met by building on redundant factory and office/commercial sites.

I object to POLICY S2 –Borough Wide Strategy

- No justification given for 13,860 housing need figure. Figure based on a secret formula used by consultants and never seen by anyone on the Council or by the public. Council has failed to seek its disclosure.
- 13,860 figure confuses the OAN with a housing target. No definite housing target given, leaving too much scope for the Council to make one up. I can’t understand how we’re being consulted when we don’t know how many houses the Council want to build, taking all the constraints into account.
- Figures based on a Housing Market Area that ignores 2 neighbouring districts (Rushmoor and Mole Valley) and is much too small, since most people commute or travel far outside the Area to shop or study. This distorts the figures: no reason why Guildford needs to build nearly twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together, or half of all sites over 100 units.

- High numbers involved would transform the character of the borough from mainly rural/Green Belt to urban, creating a corridor of development out of London as per Woking or Croydon.

I object to raising the annual number of houses built per year. With no rational reason given, one must assume these are developers' numbers for financial gain and not for social need.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

I object to disproportionate allocation of housing in localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send & the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
I object to the way that the previous response to the proportion of houses to be built in the village has been ignored and instead has been increased. There seems to be no valid reason for this as a) the situation post-Brexit is likely to been entirely different, and b) the number and types of houses to be built cannot be justified as we do not seem to be able to examine the way they were worked out.

I object to the way in which the proposals have been put forward as I don't believe the proper legal processes have been followed. Such development has serious consequences in relation to the quality of life for those in the immediate vicinity. Our already congested area will suffer years of disruption followed by a lifetime of over stretched facilities the promises of large developers to offer affordable housing and infrastructure (affordable to whom, we might ask?) are well-documented to be entirely unenforceable in reality.

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
2. The borough wide strategy is poorly It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
3. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including mi These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or on any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Overall the proposed changes will have a huge detrimental effect, with particular impact on traffic and other facilities, in addition to the removal of the irreplaceable Greenbelt protection that parts of our village enjoy. I have detailed my objections to specific policies below, but having drawn a somewhat rudimentary map of all the proposed development the impact of the changes can be seen in their entirety (See attachment) This map does not illustrate the additional impact on traffic and other infrastructure from other proposed developments such as Gosden Hill, which will compound the issues with local roads and other facilities which are struggling to cope with the local population as it is. In addition, there appears to have been minimal effort to development existing brownfield sites in and around Guildford. This is evidenced by recent redevelopment of land such as the old Fire station and the Waitrose in the centre of Town. Both these sites, and many others, could have been used for residential development instead of more retail space, with far less impact on the local infrastructure and none of the Greenbelt.

I strongly object to the disproportionate amount of development proposed for the east of the borough, the Horsleys, Wisley, Ockham, Ripley and Send. The proposed developments of A25, A35, A36, A37, A38, A39, A40, A41 and A43 do not respect the character and density of housing in the area, a requirement of The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF).

I strongly object to these proposed developments within the plan and the lack of planned improvements to infrastructure and services. I object to the detrimental impact on transport, local roads and road safety. I object to the proposed high density development along the A3 corridor when this road is already at full capacity and struggling to cope. Rail commuters will drive to the stations, Woking, Clandon, Horsley and Effingham which already have full car parks. The village centres will be gridlocked by the amount of people trying to transition through them and lose their sense of community. The green belt will be destroyed and the village areas will combine to look like a suburb of London. Guildford Borough is renowned for its towns, urban spaces and contrasting rural and wooded countryside and villages it will be ruined forever under this proposed plan.

GBC need to realise how important the Green Belt is, and stop treating it as a free space to indiscriminately destroy for generations to come.

This Local Plan seems to have been thrown together with no real thought, we need a ‘common sense’ Local Plan, not this rubbish.

It appears that GBC are desperately and naively clutching at straws to find what they think are suitable sites to include in the Local Plan, instead of carefully identifying already suitable Brownfield sites.

THERE IS ENOUGH BROWNFIELD SITES AVAILABLE

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing. I understand that Surrey University is sitting on permission for 1,500+ accommodation units on its own brownfield campus. If the University fulfilled its obligations much Town Centre affordable accommodation would be available for rental/purchase.

I am emailing to object strongly to the revised local plan for Guildford.

I still cannot believe that number of houses that are supposed to be built round here is so high. Why have we not been given the method of calculation of the figure? It seems incomprehensible that no-one in the Council has investigated this.

Where are all the cars going go - roads are currently grid-locked on many occasions and things are only going to get worse.

The whole plan seems to be totally ill-conceived, not properly consulted & local residents are NOT listened to.

I could go on & on & on...

I realise that we need new houses and loads more affordable ones, but not on Green belt.

Get a grip and do the right thing.

1.1 I request a confirmation by email from GBC that all of the objections made below are put to the Inspector appointed by the Secretary of State to review the GBC Regulation 19 draft local plan.

1.2 I request that once my objections are fully taken into consideration the draft plan is amended accordingly and re-issued.

1.3 Guildford is a constrained borough by the reality of having 89% of its area zoned as permanent Green Belt and an out of date road network that is already at capacity.

1.4 I object to GBC adoption of an inflated OAN of 13,860 homes as a housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance.
I object to the persistent confusion between housing demand and housing need which continues to distort the characterization of future housing development across the borough.

I object to the failure of Policy S1 to provide a meaningful definition of “sustainable development” or to set out any principles for applying sustainable development in practice to local planning decisions.

I object to GBC’s promise “to secure development that secures the economic, social and environmental conditions in the area” whilst omitting to recognise that economic growth, social justice and environmental protection often conflict.

I object to the failure of Policy S1 to say how each element of its sustainability promise is to be weighted or conflicts resolved. Under this policy, any development will qualify as sustainable, which makes a mockery of the NPPF’s most important guideline.

I object to GBC’s commitment to approve planning applications “wherever possible” and “without delay” reveals this draft plan’s pro-development bias. Countervailing references to sustainability are so vague that the NPPF presumption in favour of sustainable development becomes a presumption in favour of any development at all.

I object to the way in which Policy S1 policy also ignores the majority of the 12 Core Planning Principles set out in NPPF paragraph 17.3

I object to GBC’s failure to apply constraints to housing need. The application of constraints is a sensible and practical approach to development within the borough and is not only what GBC have done in the past in previous plans but is also what its neighbouring local planning authorities continue to do.

I object to the scale of the housing number proposed in this plan. The scale of GBC’s ambitions, which will be felt for decades into the future and irreversibly harm the local environment, demands that a high burden of proof on GBC to demonstrate that the plan is sound. A substantially lower number of 5,000 homes, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

I object to this local plan on the grounds that GBC has failed to grasp the opportunity of following clear government policy to develop in the urban area on previously developed sites. Many of these sites are in GBC’s ownership and it would seem a practical and readily achievable alternative, much more acceptable to local residents.

I object to this local plan on the grounds that the proposed local plan relies on outdated thinking and practices. Current trends in terms of property development such as the marked decline in town centre shopping centres and the need to create modal shift by developing residential uses close to transport hubs appear to have been overlooked.

1.1 I object to policy S2, on the grounds that;

1.2 GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1.3 Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes and identified in their own SHMA that “it should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.”

1.4 Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

1.5 In the current plan GBC have ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt.

1.6 A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS (an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA)) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum.

1.7 The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

1.8 NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.

There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.

The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast.

1.9 A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA1.10 The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

- the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.
- there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.
- there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.
- the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction.

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( No ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2017 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 560 homes per annum to 400 homes per annum. The 19 page report by NMSS, which can be found on the GRA website entitled “Review of GL Hearn’s Guildford Addendum to the West Surrey SHMA”, has found that the latest SHMA update by GL Hearn 2017 over estimates population growth for Guildford. The report shows that an indication of the scale of the problem can be obtained directly from the ONS’s own data. Their estimates of births, deaths and population flows into and out of Guildford suggest that the population should have grown by 15,000 between the 2001 and 2011 censuses. The censuses, however, record a population growth of only 7,800. The discrepancy is over 90% of the population change indicated by the censuses. The analysis in the NMSS report demonstrates that the errors must be in the population flows in age groups in which there are significant numbers of students. They are almost certainly the result of the under-recording of the numbers of students leaving Guildford each year. If the projections are based on under-estimates of the number of students leaving the district each year, they will assume that people will be living in the area who will in fact have left. This means that they will over-estimate the likely growth in Guildford’s population. The ONS’s projections envisage that the population will grow by 21,700 between 2015 and 2034. However, if the estimates of past migration flows are adjusted to make them consistent with the census figures, this could fall to 13,000. As a consequence, the demographically-based estimate of the number of homes needed would be 400 homes a year (2015-34), not 580.

1.1 I object to the Guildford Borough Council (GBC) Regulation 19 draft plan 2017 because it is not sound and the changes do not take account of my previous objections or indeed the 32,000 other valid objections that are shown on the GBC website and made to the previous 2016 version.

1.2 I have focused, as requested, on changes to which I find reason to object but this also includes some deletions which lack acceptable justification.

1.3 I request a confirmation by email from GBC that all of the objections to changes made below are put to the Inspector appointed by the Secretary of State to review the GBC Regulation 19 local plan 2017 and that all my previous objections to the 2016 draft plan will be placed before the inspector.

1.4 I formally request the opportunity to give evidence in person at the Public Inquiry currently planned for 2018 in relation to my objections in 2016 and 2017.

1.5 I request again that once my objections are fully taken into consideration the draft plan is amended accordingly and re-issued before it is submitted to the Council for resubmission.

1.6 I am of the opinion that if it is submitted in its current form it will be in risk of being summarily dismissed and put back to the Council for resubmission.

1.7 Guildford is a constrained borough by the reality of having 89% of its area zoned as permanent Green Belt and an out of date road network that is already at capacity. I am concerned that GBC have adopted a lower but still grossly inflated OAN of 12,426 homes as a housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance.

1.8 70% of the new development proposed in this plan is in the permanent Green Belt which was coincidentally invented in Guildford under a private Act of Parliament in 1938. It is perhaps ironic that the process of Town and Country planning has become a type of Town v. Country debate.

1.9 The population in the borough is split equally between town and country but Guildford town has developed very little over the last 20 years and has not undergone the type of normal urban expansion, redevelopment of previously developed sites and increase in residential densities as nearby towns such as Woking have experienced. It is informative that Woking is currently outperforming Guildford in terms of economic performance.

1.10 It is interesting to note that urban densities in Guildford town are no higher than the villages that surround it. Even though the latter are in the main in the Green Belt which is protected from development and the former is in an area where there is no presumption against development. I am of the opinion we need a rebalancing between town and country and much more development in Guildford town, particularly residential development.

1.11 In the latest plan only 1,300 homes are going to be built in Guildford town which is some 10% of the total development proposed. It is very disappointing that GBC fail to set higher densities for the urban area and have in this latest draft deleted all reference to “density for development” which is normally an integral part of forward planning and development control.

1.12 GBC still fail to acknowledge that the application of constraints to housing need in respect of the Green Belt is a sensible and practical approach to development within the borough and is not only what they have done in the past in previous plans but is also what its neighbouring local planning authorities have done.

1.13 The current scale of the housing number proposed in this plan, which is based on a flawed SHMA, inevitably increases the onus for the plan to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number of 4,000 homes, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1.14 I am concerned that GBC have still failed to grasp the opportunity of following clear government policy to develop in the urban area on previously developed sites. Many of these sites are in their ownership and it would seem a practical and readily achievable alternative which is much more acceptable to local residents.

1.15 In my opinion much of the updated local plan still appears out of date. It is like a voice from the past. Current trends in terms of property development such as the marked decline in town centre shopping centres and the need to create modal shift by developing residential uses close to transport hubs appear to have been overlooked.

1.16 Unsupported assertions that there is real demand for the expansion of retail, industrial or office space lack credibility especially in the absence of significant planned expansion of residential development in the town centre which is universally acknowledged as a key stimulant for urban economic health.

1.17 There would appear to be two worrying examples where GBC are taking the role of “developer/landowner” rather than “independent not for profit public sector planner” in so far that they have a pre-determined agenda for building on the Green Belt rather than acting as careful, professional and responsible planner guardians. Example 1: Policy A43 Garlicks Arch Burnt Common. The stated, albeit unproven, need by GBC is 400 homes. Normal residential density is 30 homes per ha. Land required would therefore be 13 ha. Land actually proposed to be allocated is 28.9 ha. This is more than double land required in beautiful irreplaceable Green Belt. Example 2: Burnt Common Policy A 53. The stated, albeit unproven need, is 7,000 sq m B1c, B2 and B8 development. Normal density 50% plot ratio. Land required 1.4 ha. Land allocated 9.26 ha. This is more than six and half times more land than necessary in valuable Green Belt which the planners should be looking after.

1.18 I regret that my conclusion is that this plan is a clear example of bad planning.

6.1 I object to the amended policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 12,426 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2017 prepared by GL Hearn because it has not addressed many of the 32,000 objections made to the 2016 plan.

6.2 The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure of 12,426 is far too high

6.3 I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 12,426 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole. 1.4 Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50%.

6.5 Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

6.6 However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt.

6.7 A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2017 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 560 homes per annum to 400 homes per annum.
6.8 The 19 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “Review of GL Hearn’s Guildford Addendum to the West Surrey SHMA”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

6.9 The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

6.10 The NMSS recent study has found that the latest SHMA update by GL Hearn 2017 over estimates population growth for Guildford.

6.11 The report shows that an indication of the scale of the problem can be obtained directly from the ONS’s own data. Their estimates of births, deaths and population flows into and out of Guildford suggest that the population should have grown by 15,000 between the 2001 and 2011 censuses. The censuses, however, record a population growth of only 7,800. The discrepancy is over 90% of the population change indicated by the censuses.

6.12 The analysis in the NMSS report demonstrates that the errors must be in the population flows in age groups in which there are significant numbers of students. They are almost certainly the result of the under-recording of the numbers of students leaving Guildford each year.

6.13 If the projections are based on under-estimates of the number of students leaving the district each year, they will assume that people will be living in the area who will in fact have left. This means that they will over-estimate the likely growth in Guildford’s population. The ONS’s projections envisage that the population will grow by 21,700 between 2015 and 2034. However, if the estimates of past migration flows are adjusted to make them consistent with the census figures, this could fall to 13,000. As a consequence, the demographically-based estimate of the number of homes needed would be 400 homes a year (2015-34), not 580.

6.14 70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are still in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries.

6.15 Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements).

6.16 Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 580 per annum to 400.

6.17 I object to the fact that GBC have not used the guidance available to reduce the number of houses they propose.

6.18 GBC has not taken into account the possibility of lowering the required number of houses by adhering to the restraints offered in various papers. Government guidelines, even before the publication of the Paper, quoted below say that if a Council cannot supply sufficient houses without impinging on the Green Belt, then they do not have to build so many houses.

6.19 GBC have gone against the NPPF as they are not adhering to the ruling that Local Plans must plan positively to seek opportunities that meet objectively assessed development needs and be flexible enough to adapt to rapid change unless any adverse impact of doing so would significantly outweigh the benefits or specific policies in the NPPF which suggest that development should be restricted.
6.20 House of Commons Briefing Paper; Planning for Housing no 03741, 14 June 2017. Guidance on taking account of constraints. “Need alone, is not the only factor to be considered when drawing up a Local Plan”. This includes “land designated as Green Belt” and “SSSIs”.

6.21 “The framework makes clear that once established Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances” and “should take into account any constraints such as Green Belt, which indicate that development should be restricted and which may restrain the ability of an authority to meet its need.” (P d055 ref ID.3-045-20141006)

6.22 In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN. of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council.

6.23 This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 200 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 4,000 homes.

6.24 All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 32,000 objections made by residents to the 2016 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure

I object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016).

My objections are as follows:…

1. I object to the Local Plan as the proposed developments are not sustainable

The proposed 13,850+ new homes in this tiny area are not sustainable – it will damage local communities by over development, especially Ripley, Send and Clandon. There is no public transport to speak of, only the occasional bus service which has already been cut back. Wisley Airfield and Garlick’s Arch have no railway stations, so almost every adult will have to drive their own car. It is already difficult to cross main roads as a pedestrian; more traffic will make it impossible and extremely dangerous.

The development should be in more urban areas where there is sustainable transport.

7. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy

There is too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley, Ripley/Send and Clandon). Why is 36% of the entire Plan’s new housing proposed in this tiny area? Why are other areas not being proposed?

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation with the loss of village identities. I was always under the impression it was Council policy to keep each village separate and retain their individuality.

<td>1. I object to the disproportionate amount of development on one area of the borough. In previous drafts of the plan, development areas were spread more evenly, whereas this draft enables planners to go ahead with proposed strategic sites totalling nearly 7,000 homes in a relatively small area in or around Ripley and the Lovelace area. None of the proposals so far put forward make any serious effort to address the infrastructure issues. Roads are already clogged, not just at peak times and the many thousands of extra vehicles which these developments will generate cannot be supported without significant new infrastructure.</td>

I understand that mention has been made of land at the tennis and cricket club at the top of Pennymead Drive. Are we not to have any recreational areas. Similarly the land at Kingston Meadow, which is enjoyed by everyone for sport, walking with dogs and for the village to come together to celebrate special occasions such as Jubilees and the Queen’s Birthday. I am completely lost for words that GBC can consider building so many houses in a lovely area and spoil it for everyone. At one time it was considered safe to be within a Green Belt area, so why are you allowed to now relax those rules. I understand that people need housing, and I have no objection to houses being built in small pockets around the village eg. The Telephone Exchange Land, and I understand the need maybe for housing on Wisley Airfield, BUT ONLY PROVIDED the aforementioned facilities are put in place, SCHOOLS, DOCTORS SURGERY, POST OFFICE, SHOPS AND RECREATIONAL FACILITIES.

Please please, give more consideration before you ruin a very lovely part of our country and turn us into a suburban community instead of a rural one.

Unbalanced development in one area of the Borough

There appears to be a large part of the proposed new housing concentrated between the M25 and Burpham. I object to my local area being subjected to such a large proportion of the allocated development, when it would be better spread more evenly throughout the Borough.

WE OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

7. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I wish to object to many of the local plans proposals in the “draft local plan” released by Guildford.

“Government advice is unmistakably clear – that housing needs alone is not adequate grounds for building on the green belt…”

Having lived in the borough for over 20years with my wife & family. I have seen the area evolve, but this plan is a ridiculous proposal and grossly over numbered. I don’t want to see the area ruined by sprawling inter linked “villages” and miles of houses just because it “looks a good idea on paper”. It’s the “Green-ness” and the many villages that make the area. Kill that with concrete and you will kill the heart of Surrey for ever. This isn’t one of the most expensive places in the country to live for nothing– there is a reason!

S2 I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as I believe that it would be detrimental to the quality of life for those living, or indeed coming to live, in the borough. I made a number of comments at the time of the 2014 draft plan and I am pleased to see that some of my concerns are now acknowledged in the 2016 Draft Plan. I say acknowledged because they are mentioned as issues, but without any clarity as to how they will be dealt with. My objections therefore continue to be:

• S2 The assumptions about the number of houses needed by 2033. No doubt this figure, which I already find suspect, was prepared before the Referendum decision to Brexit. Politicians have repeatedly warned that this will cause house prices to plummet (due to falling demand) and that immigration numbers will fall, thus reducing pressure on future housing needs. The housing need should therefore be reassessed in the light of the country's decision to leave the EU.

• S2 I apologise for the brevity of this response to the 2016 Draft Local Plan, but I simply have not had time to consider all 255 pages in the short period of consultation allowed.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s
OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Policy S2: Planning for the borough – our spatial development strategy

I OBJECT to this policy.

13,860 homes are proposed. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden. It is not reasonable to produce unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area.

It is inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period or across projected sites, when the number is unsubstantiated.

Eminent external consultants and members of the public have shown that the OAN is flawed and overestimates the housing need.

Furthermore constraints, which are especially needed in a gap town, have not been applied

If the housing number were substantially lower, and only met real housing need, there would be no need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, or to over cram the town with high-rise buildings.

Re: New local plan

I am writing regarding the revised local plan you have recently published which, despite its volume (no doubt designed to befuddle those who elect you), appears to wholly ignore earlier feedback and to contain fatal flaws.

Firstly, as regards likely population demands, your projections (such as they are) need to be re-visited in the light of Brexit. Your proposal for up to 533 new homes in the Horsleys with possibly another 2,000 on the Wisley site (under two miles away) would represent a disgraceful urbanisation of what is still a predominantly countryside area, with little thought given to the infrastructure consequences and certainly no guarantees that these will all be addressed in advance of any building.

I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn.

The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high

I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.”

Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt.
A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum.

The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

- The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.
- There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.
- The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast.

A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA.

The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

- the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.
- there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.
- there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.
- the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction.
Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target.

The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.

Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed.

The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan.

Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt.

THE NEED TO APPLY CONSTRAINTS

Ministerial guidance in relation to building on the Green Belt is clear:

> “the single issue of unmet need - is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development in the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 7th February 2014.

> “we were always very clear that we would maintain key protections for the countryside, and, in particular, for the Green Belt. The Framework makes it clear that a Green Belt boundary may be altered only in exceptional circumstances and reiterates the importance and permanence of the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Michael Pitt, Planning Inspectorate 3rd March 2014.

> “Planning Guidance, updated in March 2014, also states that unmet housing need is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt to constitute the very special circumstances justifying inappropriate development within the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 18th June 2014.

70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries.

Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements).

Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 693 per annum to 500.
In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council.

This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 250 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 5,000 homes. All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 20,000 objections made by residents to the 2014 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure.

It would also mean that there is currently 8.5 years supply of housing (2131/250) which is made up of existing permissions granted (1,518) and completions made (613) during 2013/2015. (Monitoring Report by GBC 2015)

I have recently (9 July 2016) had a meeting with Sir Paul Beresford my own MP for Mole Valley who has kindly assured me that he is in the process of speaking to the Secretary of State to ratify the current government policy of protecting the Metropolitan Green Belt and to instruct the Planning Inspectorate and Local Planning Authorities accordingly. This is in the wake of the recent national referendum and the likelihood of the easing pressure on international immigration over the next 20 years.

The Brexit vote may have strengthened government policy further. Theresa May, the new prime minister in waiting, announced on 11 July that she is personally committed to protecting the Green Belt once she takes office.

Whilst I have many significant objections to the GBC Local Plan I applaud the policy statement by GBC in their Monitoring Report, “We will continue to monitor the use of previously developed land, and continue to identify as many opportunities as possible for redevelopment of previously developed land.” I believe it will be to the benefit of all residents if GBC can apply themselves vigorously to this endeavour in order to protect the Green Belt.

FINALLY

I believe this plan is ill conceived, uses misleading data and contains many fundamentally flawed assumptions and errors. I do not believe it can be achieved and as a template for the Borough going forward it gives a depressing glimpse of a chaotic future where a great deal will be lost for short term gain in the hands of the few.

GREENBELT AND BROWNFIELD

I object to the the fact that 70% of the building proposed in this Local Plan is in the Greenbelt and strung along the A3 where it will not only remove valuable countryside forever but will destroy the openness of the Greenbelt and effectively join up town and villages as well as creating impossible traffic congestion on the A3 and local roads.

I object the relatively small amount of development for Guildford Town centre and the complete failure of GBC to identify and promote sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area, where much more is possible. It almost completely ignores the proviso of 'brownfield first'. Walnut Tree Close, which represents a very real opportunity for housing provision has mysteriously become 'high flood risk' in this plan despite the fact that it is already built upon and new buildings continue to be constructed there. There are many ways to mitigate flood risk. It is interesting that this risk does not seem to be a bar to proposed rural sites which flood regularly.

I object to GBC using taxpayers money to buy consultancy which continually fails to meet their objectives. The station development, another big opportunity for housing is constrained by very precise size and height requirements which make it difficult for imaginative planning to apply. More imaginative approaches to the issues could achieve much better results.

The concentration on retail in the town centre is a further restriction on housing provision. Guildford has adequate retail provision and there is no big demand for more. Retail is less and less needed as so much shopping is now done on line and this trend will continue. If Guildford wants more retail it would be wise to provide housing first and the demand for retail would follow. As it is, pushing development into the countryside will hugely increase external traffic coming to the centre and exacerbate the already congested access problems. Under this circumstance alone retail is likely to fail.

I object to the fact that this plan will fail to deliver anywhere near enough 'affordable housing' despite the promotional exercise on the GBC website where key workers talk of the benefits of the plan. This sort of PR, again at tax payers expense, is highly misleading. The lack of building in the town centre where key workers are most needed and access to work and public transport is available is an indictment of the intent. Guildford Borough is a commuting area and over building in the countryside will only create more commuters. Moreover this housing will not be 'affordable'. These will be executive homes and will be expensive.

POLICY S2 PLANNING FOR THE BOROUGH

1.1 I object to the amended policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 12,426 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2017 prepared by GL Hearn because it has not addressed many of the 32,000 objections made to the 2016 plan.

1.2 The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure of 12,426 is far too high

1.3 I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 12,426 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1.4 Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50%.

1.5 A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2017 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 560 homes per annum to 400 homes per annum.

1.6 The 19 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “Review of GL Hearn’s Guildford Addendum to the West Surrey SHMA”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

1.7 The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

1.8 The NMSS recent study has found that the latest SHMA update by GL Hearn 2017 over estimates population growth for Guildford.

1.9 The report shows that an indication of the scale of the problem can be obtained directly from the ONS’s own data. Their estimates of births, deaths and population flows into and out of Guildford suggest that the population should have grown by 15,000 between the 2001 and 2011 censuses. The censuses, however, record a population growth of only 7,800. The discrepancy is over 90% of the population change indicated by the censuses.

1.10 The analysis in the NMSS report demonstrates that the errors must be in the population flows in age groups in which there are significant numbers of students. They are almost certainly the result of the under-recording of the numbers of students leaving Guildford each year.

1.11 If the projections are based on under-estimates of the number of students leaving the district each year, they will assume that people will be living in the area who will in fact have left. This means that they will over-estimate the likely growth in Guildford’s population. The ONS’s projections envisage that the population will grow by 21,700 between 2015 and 2034. However, if the estimates of past migration flows are adjusted to make them consistent with the census figures, this could fall to 13,000. As a consequence, the demographically-based estimate of the number of homes needed would be 400 homes a year (2015-34), not 580.

1.12 70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are still in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries.

1.13 Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements).

1.14 Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 580 per annum to 400.

1.15 I object to the fact that GBC have not used the guidance available to reduce the number of houses they propose.

1.16 GBC has not taken into account the possibility of lowering the required number of houses by adhering to the restraints offered in various papers. Government guidelines, even before the publication of the Paper, quoted below say that if a Council cannot supply sufficient houses without impinging on the Green Belt, then they do not have to build so many houses.

1.17 GBC have gone against the NPPF as they are not adhering to the ruling that Local Plans must plan positively to seek opportunities that meet objectively assessed development needs and be flexible enough to adapt to rapid change unless any adverse impact of doing so would significantly outweigh the benefits or specific policies in the NPPF which suggest that development should be restricted.

1.18 House of Commons Briefing Paper ; Planning for Housing no 03741, 14 June 2017. Guidance on taking account of constraints. “Need alone, is not the only factor to be considered when drawing up a Local Plan”. This includes “land designated as Green Belt” and “SSSIs”.

1.19 “The framework makes clear that once established Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances” and “should take into account any constraints such as Green Belt, which indicate that development should be restricted and which may restrain the ability of an authority to meet its need.” (P d055 ref ID.3-045-20141006)

1.20 In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN. of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council.

1.21 This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 200 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 4,000 homes.

1.22 All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 32,000 objections made by residents to the 2016 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

1.1 I have focused, as requested, on changes.

1.2 I object to the plan because it does not address local need and the changes do not take account of my own previous objections or the thousands of other valid objections made by residents of Send and other areas to the 2016 version. It appears that GBC is predetermined to release huge tracts of Greenbelt land for development and to push through this agenda despite all reasoned opposition. This makes a mockery of public consultation and the notion that local people have a say in what happens with regard to local planning.

1.3 I request a confirmation by email from GBC that all of the objections to changes made below are put to the Inspector appointed by the Secretary of State to review the GBC Regulation 19 local plan 2017 and that all my previous objections to the 2016 draft plan will be placed before the inspector.

1.4 Guildford is a constrained borough by the reality of having 89% of its area zoned as permanent Green Belt and an out of date road network that is already at capacity. I am concerned that GBC have adopted a lower but still grossly inflated OAN of 12,426 homes as a housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance.

1.5 I object that the GBC decision not to apply constraints. This could mean that GBC is required to take overspill from neighbouring Boroughs that are themselves applying constraints. Send and neighbouring villages are the Greenbelt between Woking and Guildford. It is nonsense to suggest that Woking Greenbelt will be protected if the proposed developments in Send, and at Gosden Hill go ahead, as they will effectively join up the two towns and do away with the greenbelt separation for both.

1.6 The population in the borough is split equally between town and country but Guildford town has developed very little over the last 20 years and has not undergone the type of normal urban expansion, redevelopment of previously developed sites and increase in residential densities as nearby towns such as Woking have done. It is informative that Woking is currently outperforming Guildford in terms of economic performance.

1.7 It is interesting to note that urban densities in Guildford town are no higher than the villages that surround it. Even though the latter are in the main in the Green Belt which is protected from development and the former is in an area where there is no presumption against development. I am of the opinion we need a rebalancing between town and country and much more development in Guildford town, particularly residential development.

1.8 In the latest plan only 1,300 homes are going to be built in Guildford town which is some 10% of the total development proposed, while in the region of 40% is to be situated on Greenbelt land in the East of the Borough. It is very disappointing that GBC fail to set higher densities for the urban area and have in this latest draft deleted all reference to “density for development”. This is normally an integral part of forward planning and development control.

1.9 Very little, if any or the proposed Greenbelt development will provide the affordable accommodation the country and local people so badly need. At 80% of market value on Greenbelt land around London with further reductions in quantity likely when developers play the viability card the stated purpose of the whole exercise will be lost. The SHMA (West Surrey Strategic Housing market Assessment, September 2015, Final Report) pg. 97, section 6.55 highlights “the analysis above indicates a notable need for affordable housing...” and Table 44 states that the proportion of affordable housing need as a % of the total need is 88%. GBC’s plan will not deliver this. Creating ever more unaffordable housing will put greater strain on local essential services and require more of the type of people least likely to afford the housing. (shop workers, nurses etc). This further undermines the sustainability of the plan, and once more highlights GBC’s intent to build more houses in flagrant violation of best planning practice. The current scale of the housing number proposed in this plan, which is based on a flawed SHMA, inevitably increases the onus for the plan to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number of 4,000 homes, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.
I am concerned that GBC have still failed to grasp the opportunity of following clear government policy to develop in the urban area on previously developed sites. Many of these sites are in their ownership and it would seem a practical and readily achievable alternative which is much more acceptable to local residents.

In my opinion much of the updated local plan is not up to date in current trends. The well reported and acknowledged decline in town centre shopping centres and the need to create modal shift by developing residential uses close to transport hubs have been largely ignored.

Assertions that there is real demand for the expansion of retail, industrial or office space lack credibility. Significant planned expansion of residential development in the town centre is universally acknowledged as a key stimulant for urban economic growth and health. Without this the town could suffer further stagnation and serious economic loss.

There would appear to be two worrying examples where GBC are taking the role of “developer/landowner” rather than “independent not for profit public sector planner” in so far that they have a pre-determined agenda for building on the Green Belt rather than acting as careful, professional and responsible planner guardians. Example 1: Policy A43 Garlicks Arch Burnt Common. The stated, albeit unproven, need by GBC is 400 homes. Normal residential density is 30 homes per ha. Land required would therefore be 13 ha. Land actually proposed to be allocated is 28.9 ha. This is more than double land required in beautiful irreplaceable Green Belt. Example 2: Burnt Common Policy A 53. The stated, albeit unproven need, is 7,000 sq m B1c, B2 and B8 development. Normal density 50% plot ratio. Land required 1.4 ha. Land allocated 9.26 ha. This is more than six and half times more land than necessary in valuable Green Belt which the planners should be looking after.

I regret that my conclusion is that this plan is fundamentally unsound and a clear example of bad planning.

2 EVIDENCE BASE

I object to the fact that the evidence base is poor and that there is a lack of sound property market research relating to the local market in Guildford. To rely, as previously, on generic economic capacity forecasts means that many of the submission documents providing key evidence are unsound, unreliable and inconsistent.

Key parts of the evidence base are flawed or based on withheld assumptions.

The latest SHMA 2017 still inflates the proposed housing figure due to the following factors:

An independent review by NMSS of the latest ONS population estimates and projections has found compelling evidence that there are substantial errors in past estimates of student migration flows. It is probable that migration flows out of Guildford, both to other parts of the UK and abroad, have been under-estimated by sizeable amounts.

Owing to the way in which migration estimates are used to construct population and household projections, the errors in past migration estimates are likely to mean that the latest demographically-based housing need estimates by GL Hearn overstate the number of homes needed by over 25%.

The Employment Land Needs Assessment update 2017 (ELNA) states “that the pipeline for employment floorspace defined by planning permissions yet to be implemented and prior approvals suggests the potential for an additional 33,607sqm of B use class floorspace to come forward. This figure comprises a net loss of 4,750sqm of B1a use class floorspace and a net gain of 38,357sqm in B1c, B2 or B8 use class space.”

38,357 sq m of B1c, B2 or B8 use class is a quite sufficient supply for the plan period and does not justify the need for new development of industrial space on the Green Belt in such areas as Burnt Common. The reality of demand for industrial space is that it is both nationally and locally in decline and this is evidenced by old existing permissions that have not been taken up and developed. The ELNA alludes incorrectly to the poor quality of existing space being a “constraint” on supply and fails to acknowledge that this assertion cannot apply to potential newly developed space e.g. the undeveloped pipeline of 38,357sqm.

The ELNA states “that a large proportion of the net additional floorspace and land requirements for both office/R&D and industrial/storage uses could be met through the permissions which have been consented but which have yet to be implemented. However, there is the possibility that some pipeline developments may not come forward at all, or be developed in different quantities by use class than has been consented.”

2.9 “There is the possibility that some pipeline developments may not come forward” is patently a weak argument indeed for the proposed industrial development at Burnt Common in the Green Belt and expansion of the Surrey Research Park into the Green Belt which has unused consents dating back many years and also the substantial latent potential for an increased density of development. The current plot ratio is less than 25%. The reason that the unused consents have not been used up is simple. There is a proven lack of demand.

2.10 Exceptional circumstances clearly do not exist to justify amendments to Green Belt boundaries as part of the Local Plan process. It is quite achievable for realistically prepared and identified development needs to be accommodated in Guildford’s urban areas and villages.

2.11 The Carter Jonas Guildford Retail Study Update 2017 lacks credibility and there is no proven case for expanding comparison retail space which is undermined by failure to implement existing retail consents at the North Street development over the last 10 years. The Guildford Retail Study does not take account of changing retail patterns in relation to the threat of the internet and the “clicks and mortar” conflict. The study also assumes a number of logged retail requirements from companies already in liquidation or with national requirements that exclude Guildford.

The Spatial Hierarchy

The spatial hierarchy, which outlines Guildford's preferred strategy, does not match up with the proposed plan. The hierarchy places Brownfield sites (including those on Green Belt) as a priority, but the Plan has 66% of development on Green belt and only 34% on Brownfield. The hierarchy lists Guildford town and urban areas as a priority followed by inset villages and identified Green Belt villages. A relatively small percentage of housing is allocated for Guildford town
(the most sustainable location) and Green Belt areas, such as Blackwell Farm, with high sensitivity have been classified as within the 'Guildford urban area' when they are in fact in the open countryside. We are told that only 1.6% of the 89%
Green Belt has been earmarked for removal and that the 6% removed via insetting doesn't count as these villages are already developed. If this is the case, why list them in 4.1.16 of policy s2 - Spatial Strategy?

4.18 The preferred options cannot accommodate all that Guildford 'needs'. This is untrue. Two specialist consultants have independently critiqued the OAN and both question the level of uplift and the use of ONS data without full correction for changes and anomalies. They refer to 'double accounting' as the uplift is introduced at several stages and the assumptions that result in the final OAN are not explained. See comments on Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA).

POLICY S2 PLANNING FOR THE BOROUGH

I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn.

The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high.

I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.”

Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt. A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.

The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald. He is an independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:
· The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.

· There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.

· The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast.

A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA.

The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.

2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.

3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.

4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction.

Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target.

The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.

Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed.
The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan.

Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt.

The borough has many acres of surface car parking which, if replaced by multi-storey versions, and combined with current Brownfield sites, would free up enough land to build housing where it is wanted and needed and not on valuable Green Belt. There would be no need to build high-rise style development in Guildford town, which we don't support, but we do believe that buildings of 6-10 storeys (with underground parking) would be in keeping in some urban areas (where they don’t impinge on important vistas). [Some existing buildings already reach 5-7 levels in height].

I wish to register my objection to the Guildford Local Plan. While there are positive elements, it includes a number of fundamental flaws to the strategy and implementation of the plan that makes it completely unsound and not fit for purpose. Should it be implemented in its current form, it would constitute a complete dereliction of the duty of Guildford Borough Council (GBC) to the community.

GBC are unable to demonstrate that the Local Plan has any significant popular support. The previous, failed and rejected effort attracted many more complaints than supporting messages, and GBC have made minimal attempt at community engagement. Basic publicity and events have kept it low profile, meaning many people have either not heard of it or don't know much about it. While GBC may claim otherwise, any cursory view on the communications strategy is damning and seems to show a clear attempt to minimise any potential feedback. The fact the documentation is so long, written in complex language and hard to read formatting adds to the difficult in responding.

Further, the plan documentation and process has built on that approach. Incredibly long documents, poor formatting, hard to read font and a difficult response process has been designed to make it hard to provide constructive feedback. GBC have an established process for ensuring that it is easy to reject negative feedback on planning matters, and the Local Plan is a clear continuation of that.

The stunning lack of strategic planning is painful. At its most basic, any plan of this scale must include essential infrastructure improvements. And yet GBC plan to allow the start of building of thousands of houses at Gosden Hill before the planning for the proposed A3 tunnel...which would start at the same place. With no upgrade in roads (or clearly impossible developments, such as Sustainable Movement Corridor through Burpham), the tunnel becomes essential for the future of Guildford, and to avoid Burpham becoming a car park. Yet the plan hopes to start building, before a decision has been reached on the tunnel. In any commercial enterprise, such a staggering lack of forethought would result in instant rejection. The same criteria should be applied here.

The previous Draft Local Plan was delayed and re-written, yet nothing has changed sufficiently to change that decision.

A number of other local bodies, including the Burpham Community Association, Burpham Neighbourhood Forum and Guildford Residents Association will all submit their objections with significant technical details and research that condemns the plans, so I will not duplicate those efforts.

However, the plan is so transparently flawed in serious ways that are fundamental, meaning it should be rejected.

<td>I believe that the Draft Local Plan is built on an inaccurate assumption of the number of homes required. The SHMA has arrived at the number 693 without the methodology being made transparent. Recent work by Councillor David Reeve and another independent source has found serious fault with the SHMA which throws in doubt the whole draft local plan's calculations. I believe that GBC has gone along with the very large number because it is bent on its own aggressive policy of civic and economic expansion, which is not supported by the majority of the electorate. Therefore, I object to Policy S2.</td>

<td></td>
<tr>
<td>a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.</td>
<td></td>
<td>c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.</td>
<tr>
<td>These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.</td>
<td>It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon &amp; Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.</td>

Disproportionate size of sites in relation to rural locations
I object to the allocation of land to the strategic sites of Wisley Airfield, Garlicks Arch (Ripley/Send border) and Gosden Hill (Clandon). The proposed development of these sites will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanent impact on each of these communities.

Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough
Between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles it is proposed that over 6,500 houses are built. This represents over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan. I object to this area being hit so hard by the allocation of development, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough.

I object to the disproportionate amount of development that GBC has proposed for Send and the surrounding area. Apart from the main road through Send, the rest of the village is very rural with single track country lanes, where it is already dangerous as there are virtually no footpaths in Send and traffic can speed along these lanes, particularly when the numerous traffic hold ups occur along the A3 and the village is used as a cut through (this also applies to Ripley)

• I object to development in this area when there are clearly no services or infrastructure to support more housing.
• I object to development which causes more traffic on already over-loaded roads. The A3 and M25 are frequently at capacity already. Building at Wisley Airfield and at Garlick's Arch will result in far more cars on the roads as there are no railway stations at these locations and rural bus services have been reduced.
• I object to development which causes more traffic on small country roads. The narrow country roads around Ripley, Clandon and Wisley are places for walkers, cyclists and horse riders. They are becoming increasingly congested and therefore dangerous for these users.
• I object to development which will cause more traffic in small villages such as Wisley, Clandon and Ripley. Parking is already difficult in these places and will only get worse if there is more development.
• I object to more development which will reduce people's quality of life in terms of pollution, congestion on roads, difficulty parking and increased density of population.

We all need space; unless we have it we cannot reach that sense of quiet in which whispers of better things come to us gently. Our lives in London are over-crowded, over-excited, over-strained. This is true of all classes; we all want quiet; we all want beauty for the refreshment of our souls. Sometimes we think of it as a luxury, but when God made the world, He made it very beautiful, and meant that we should live amongst its beauties, and that they should speak peace to us in our daily lives.

• With more evidence daily of the effects of road traffic on public health I object to the proposed large increase in vehicle numbers.

• Welfare services are currently overstretched, the population increase will make these services impossible to deliver.

Local Plan for West and East Horsley

I write yet again to express my grave concerns at the local plan which has been put forward by the Guildford Borough Council. Especially in the proposed removal of East and West Horsley for the Green Belt area and the extension of the boundaries of the settlement areas of the Horsleys.
Overall I understand that there is a need in the borough for new homes and do not oppose development providing it is in keeping, in proportion and does not fundamentally change the character of the area. However the current plan for East and West Horsley is neither in proportion or character to the local area.

Surely it would be much better to focus the development in Guildford which already has good infrastructure and amenities? The brownfield areas of Guildford should be utilised first, where high density building fits and would be desirable. Expanding the boundaries of Guildford, where people have elected to live in a town, would not fundamentally change the character of the area. This could then be supplemented by smaller developments spread out throughout the villages of Guildford Borough, which would not have the detrimental effect that the proposed large developments in Horsley and Ockham would have.

I am deeply concerned by Guildford Borough Council's latest Draft Local Plan and object to the housing development proposals detailed in it.

It is simply astonishing that the Council is considering building new housing in the Green Belt when there is so much unused brown field land in the Borough that could be used for housing. There are no "exceptional circumstances" to justify changes to the Green Belt and I can only assume that recommendations to do so are being determined by developers preferences in terms of where they can make the most profit.

What is more unsettling is the revelation that the Council is unwilling to release the evidence base it has used to justify the need for 14,000 new houses in the Borough. Surely if the Council was confident in the accuracy of its proposed housing figure it would have the courage and conviction to release the information. Not to do so simply fuels an understandable suspicion that the 14,000 figure cannot be justified. Furthermore, I understand that the reason given by the Council for not releasing this information is that it is the "intellectual property of a third party and is commercially sensitive". This is ridiculous. Are we really expected to believe that this third party, GL Hearn I believe, whom the Council has engaged owns the evidence and whatever models have been produced to derive the 14,000 figure? If this is true then whichever Council employee agreed to this has made a monumental procurement "cock-up".

I am also aware that whoever is, or has been leading this work for the Council, does not appear to have applied the new planning framework correctly. Neither have they sought to align this Plan with the guidance received from Ministers.

I trust that my views will be fully considered and that the Council will have the maturity and common sense to revise the current Plan and ensure that the next version is based on sound, freely available evidence and fully incorporates the feedback of the Borough's constituents.

I object to the amount of planning for new builds in the Ockham, Ripley and Horsley area.

Ripley has already built many new properties from flats, to larger houses and this should be included in the quotes. However, 400 new at Burnt Common and more in Send will mean Ripley Village becoming nearly a town. In filling between villages was to be prevented by the Green Belt, we should not be altering laws.

IN CONCLUSION

The 2016 Plan is completely unacceptable. The Council has totally ignored the comments and suggestions of residents and proceeded with an outrageous assault on the Green Belt for which they have absolutely no mandate - in fact, the very opposite. The housing target is excessive and needs to be seriously reviewed, especially in light of Brexit, and a new plan needs to emerge based on actual housing needs with the right kind of accommodation in the right places, and a plan that requires the least amount of infrastructure developments. If the current Plan proceeds, it will lead to massively increased traffic congestion and pollution levels, require a huge amount of public expenditure, and destroy the character and beauty of an attractive and much-loved area.

Above all, we need a Plan that supports local needs and not the balance sheets of developers.

Policy S2 - Borough wide strategy

I object – The calculation that 13,860 homes are required is based on a calculation made by a sub-contractor who will not share the basis of the calculation, citing commercial confidentiality. Wrong in principle – government should be open and transparent; important data should be open to give public confidence that it is accurate, based on sound assumptions, and free of commercial bias.

SHMA Accuracy doubtful - In Dec 2014, the House of Commons and Local Gov. C'tee was critical of the accuracy of SHMA processes, noting (section 69) that repeat calculations of an area could yield different results.

The method of calculating the population of a town with many foreign students also distorts the population total.

ELNA - The Employment Land Needs Assessment 2015 indicates that Guildford does not need a large increase in employment space, which suggests that such housing as is needed could largely be built on Brownfield sites.

Policy S2 Planning for the Borough

I OBJECT to the new target of 12,426 homes as there have been no constraints applied as required by the NPPF, especially the need to demonstrate ‘exceptional circumstances’ for building in the green belt.

5. Roads Must Be Maintained

The roads in Ockham, East & West Horsley are very poorly maintained with pot holes everywhere. Until something as basic as this can be sorted out, how can we trust that the roads will be maintained with the increased traffic from all the extra proposed housing.

1. The number of houses that the Plan intends to deliver over the 20 year period

This has increased from 652 to 693 and should have taken into account the constraints which should have been put in place by the high proportion of the borough's designated Green Belt and the overall infrastructure of roads, schools, hospitals, doctors, etc.

1. The new boundaries proposed for insetting the villages of Send and Send Marsh/Burnt Common from the Green Belt.

The boundaries should be more closely drawn to the villages to prevent urban sprawl and prevent the losing their identities. The land within these proposed boundaries would encourage further over-development and expansion of the villages. Rural identities would be lost forever.

I object to the large proposed development of 2,000 houses at Wisley Airfield, 2,000 houses at Gosden Hill and 1,850 houses at Blackwell Farm because it will destroy large areas of Green Belt and agricultural land and produce congestion on the A3 and surrounding roads including Send.

I object to the development of 40 houses at Send Hill due to its high quality Green Belt amenity within an area of beautiful countryside which would be spoilt. The subsoil of the existing site contains documented unsafe land fill waste which is currently vented. The proposal to include 2 Travellers Pitches is completely inappropriate due to the narrow width single track country road providing insufficient access to the site.

I object to the fact that infrastructure requirements have not been properly considered and are inadequate to deal with proposed housing levels. Roads, doctors and schools will be unable to cope.

I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity.

I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan. Young people want to live in towns close to work and transport - build in Guildford!

Proposed Submission Local Plan

I have reviewed the Proposed Submission Local Plan published by Guildford Borough Council (GBC) for public consultation and am dismayed by some important aspects of its content.

In particular:

1. I do not agree with the scale of the proposed house building programme. The target shown represents a 25% increase in the Borough housing stock. However, the Office of National Statistics projects merely a 15% population increase for Guildford Borough over the same period.

Therefore I object to the Borough housing targets set out.

1. The Local Plan incorporates the statement "We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt". However, GBC would seem to be in breach of this aim through the housing policies it has set out in the Local Plan, in which 65% of the developments will be made on land that is currently Green. This includes the proposal to inset East Horsley from the Green Belt; propose boundary changes and the proposal to remove Wisley Airfield from the Green Belt.

Consequently, I object to the proposed intrusions into the Green Belt, which will have a material adverse impact on the area.

1. The infrastructure proposals appear inadequate to meet existing and current needs, let alone those of the area after the additional proposed developments in the local Plan.

Therefore, I object to the proposed infrastructure proposals.

5. Consequently, in summary, I object to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoore, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (dandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

In terms of the requirement for housing, I object to the housing number and particularly the fact that the Council have not, as required used any constraints such as green belt, infrastructure, air quality, AONB, TBHSPA etc. and the apparent disregard for the impact of in-combination development on the TBHSPA, particularly the damage caused by nitrogen deposition and high pollution levels. Policy S2 states “the figures set out in the Annual Housing Target table sum to a total of 12,426” yet the figures in the table add up to 9,810 – what is the significance of the missing 2,616? I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA.

It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s ‘need’. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon and Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I am concerned with the scale of house building being proposed by GBC. The local plan target proposes a 25% increase in housing stock whereas the ONS projects a need for only an increase of 15% for Guildford Borough. Much of this new housing development is at the expense of the metropolitan green belt. Once it is built on it will be lost for future generations. Your Proposed Submission states that “We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt”, however some 65% of developments will be made on land that is currently green belt. How do you explain this contradiction? I therefore object to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

In particular I would like to comment on the following Strategic Policies

I object to S2 GBC is pursuing a policy of Forced Growth with 65% of new developments on land that is currently green belt. The electorate have not been made aware of this policy. It is not government statistics driving the huge number of new houses to be built, rather it is a deliberate GBC policy.

I hope that GBC will not force through a Local Plan that does not have the support of its residents. I object to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

I object to the proposed provision of 2000 houses plus travellers sites and Car Park at Gosden Hill Farm (Burpham-West Clandon) and to 2000 houses being built at Wisley in the plan (Wisley application has already been turned down, but remains in the Plan) Both of these schemes together will produce thousands of more cars on already congested roads. These schemes, will both especially effect BURPHAM, which is already grid locked daily. This will also increase pollution. These additional 4000 houses will overstretch doctors surgeries, hospitals, schools and the whole infrastructure of Guildford.

I object to the proposed use of Brownfield sites for the use of business and shops. Brownfield sites should be used for housing. (Affordable housing preferably)

I have previously written on two or more occasions regarding the various drafts of the Guildford Local Plan, specifically how it affects East and West Horsley, my home villages. On studying the latest Plan,

I FIND I MUST WRITE YET AGAIN.

It does appear no notice has been taken of so many reasonable and logical complaints that have been sent to you in the last 2 years.

I have been lucky to live in East Horsley for over 30 years, and have served the villages for 15 years driving and managing the Horsleys Community Bus. I mention this as this has been a great way to get a feeling for what residents need and want and think. The people concerned cover all works of life, many of them more needing local support. In essence we live in a large village area, almost a small town, but which retains its village character but the efforts and hard work of so many residents, mainly on a voluntary basis. We care about our village, and want its character to remain. There is no evidence the amount of new housing is needed in the area, and well exceed the nationally imposed target levels.

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
2. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
3. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.
4. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper account of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done.
The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. The primary thought regarding development must be that this area is our only remaining one close to London where urban dwellers can come to enjoy a day in the country. This area in the last few years has already become grossly overpopulated with the result that is my opinion.

No more countryside in the Guildford area should be built on at all.

I live in Shere which I have seen double in size in the last half century

BROWNFIELD AVAILABLE

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing.

I object to all proposals to build on the Green Belt at Send, Ripley, Send Marsh, Clandon and elsewhere in the borough because all the development that is really needed can be accommodated in Guildford’s urban brownfield areas much closer to existing transport hubs. None of these areas have a decent bus service and therefore new homes will rely upon cars for transport adding to existing congestion.

I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

DISPROPORTIONATE DEVELOPMENT

There would seem to be a disproportionate amount of development proposed in our area of the Borough. The proposals seem to concentrate on a relatively small area & will have a very significant impact on the villages of Send & Ripley in particular. I object to this disproportionate concentration of development in our local area.

LIMITED CONSULTATION PERIOD

I understand that there has been a very limited consultation period and that new sites were only added to the proposed revised Draft local Plan at the last minute. This would seem unfair and I object to residents being treated this way.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners’ views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

1. The extensive developments proposed in other areas of the borough eg in Burpham (2000 houses & mixed use developments), Burnt Common, Gosden Hill Farm and Garlicks Arch to name a few. If all these developments are implemented, the character of the area will be changed forever. It will no longer be semi-rural but will become increasingly urbanised and will begin to resemble a concrete jungle. The majority of the people who live here have moved here because they do not want to live in an urban conglomeration. If this mass housing expansion goes ahead, the wishes of the majority of the existing local population will have been ignored so much for democracy! It is also completely scandalous that the proposed development at Garlicks Arch was "sneaked in" at the last minute. Please respect the wishes of the local people. We all understand that some limited housing development is needed but not these huge numbers proposed and this development should be undertaken on brownfield sites of which there are still plenty in Guildford and Woking.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [site A35], Ripley/Send [site A43] and Gosden Hill/Clandon [site A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in these three wards, which have only 11% of the existing housing – this is disproportionate by over 300%

Over 5000 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

EHPC has serious concerns about the enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

Some explanation for this mismatch may partly be found in the conclusion of the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised. It estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’ – effectively what the official statisticians at the ONS and the Department of Communities and Local Government (“DCLG”) are predicting Guildford will require based upon their population and household forecasts. To this is added in the SHMA another 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’, a further 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’ and 25 homes due to ‘student growth’, all of which totals up to 693 homes per annum target.

EHPC finds this analysis perplexing. Economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG, so what GBC are proposing actually comes on top of the official household growth forecasts for the borough. Moreover, the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 is proposing that all development sites (other than the very smallest) will be required to have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing, so why another 31 homes per annum is needed as affordable housing on top of this 40% ratio is quite incomprehensible.

Furthermore, DCLG research has concluded that there is on average a 97% correlation between population growth and household formation. Therefore, if GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock were actually realised, the outcome will be that Guildford Borough would see its population rise by around 25% over this period. This means that the resultant population growth for Guildford Borough would be at a level 67% higher than the official forecasts.

One of EHPC’s particular concerns in reviewing the Proposed Submission Local Plan is that the impression is conveyed upon the reader that GBC’s housing targets are effectively needed to fulfil NPPF requirements or because of central government policy – in other words that GBC has no real choice but to put forward these projections, unpalatable though they might be. However, the reality is very different. GBC has voluntarily chosen to pursue a policy of aggressive civic and economic expansion – one might perhaps term it a policy of ‘Forced Growth’ – which underpins all of the housing policies in the Local Plan. In short, the difference between the official statisticians’ forecasts and GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock is entirely down to a political choice made by GBC.

Of course, there is nothing fundamentally wrong in GBC adopting a Forced Growth policy for the Borough – not so long as that policy is made clearly and explicitly and is fully supported by a majority of its electorate. However, EHPC doubts whether this is actually the case. It is certainly not a vision that is shared by EHPC, which unequivocally rejects GBC’s Forced Growth policy.

EHPC accordingly OBJECTS to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

In response to the Consultation, I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as a whole and in particular I object to the specific issues (listed below). I believe that this deeply flawed Local Plan will have a direct and detrimental effect on the amenity currently enjoyed by the residents of East Clandon and to the even greater detriment to our neighbouring villages of West Clandon, Ripley, West and East Horsley. It erodes the openness of the Green Belt and endangers the beauty and views in and out of the Surrey Hills AONB.

My specific points are:

I object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 13,800 new homes (690 new dwellings being built every year for 20 years) and I object on two grounds; these housing numbers have been imposed on the borough with no real consultation being undertaken with the residents of East Clandon and the borough as a whole. Secondly, the housing numbers are based on a high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no consultation with us and this combined with estimated demand from London residents will turn Guildford into a dormitory town for London.

Further, I object to the fact that no real economic or housing demand factors have been provided by the borough planners to substantiate the very high housing target of 13,800 new dwellings over the next 20 years. This is in direct contravention of the NPPF’s requirement for the planning authority to provide meaningful consultation.

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing. It seems that these villages are to be sacrificed so that the council can fulfil its questionable target.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages. This sort of development is in direct contradiction to government policy.

Policy S2 states that provision will be made for 13,800 new homes over the Plan Period 2013 to 2033. The number of homes is too high and unsustainable in Guildford’s villages. The Site Allocations list totals 12,698.

The housing target proposed, of 12,426 is based on assumptions that have not been made public and includes flaws that have not been corrected in the modified SHMA (verified by professional analyst Neil MacDonald of NMSS who concluded that an annual housing figure of 400 per year would meet Guildford's overall need). The phased approach (more homes built towards the end of the plan period) is appropriate in order to permit necessary infrastructure but open-ended targets where an unknown figure is held back until after the plan period is not a reduction but a postponement and does not allow for optimal planning or transparency.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Following the approval of the revised Local Plan by the full council of Guildford Borough Council on 24th May, I would like to make it clear that I object to the provisions set out in the Local Plan as they threaten to destroy the established nature and identity of our villages by building on Green Belt land and will add considerably to the already unacceptable levels of traffic on the A3, A247 and M25 and many other roads in the borough.

I object to all sites in West Horsley for over 5 homes. The proposed sites will merge the villages of Oakham, West and East Horsley creating urban sprawl.

I object to the allocation of sites in unsustainable locations.

I object to the failure of Guildford Borough Council to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 in the Local Plan and to find sufficient brownfield sites for development prior to considering sites within the Green Belt.

   2. I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are designated on Green Belt land along the A3. This will result in gridlock on the A3, the A247 and the surrounding roads which are already at capacity.

I object to the huge number of houses planned for the Horsley area on the grounds that the infrastructure, particularly the roads, simply won't be able to cope with the extra traffic. Ockham Road South, one of the main arteries, is narrow and winding with no scope for improvement.

I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan's new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

I object to the threat the Local Plan poses to the historic rural village of Ockham and the blight on properties there. The plan calls for a village of 159 residences (with narrow lanes, no streetlights, very few pavements and many listed houses) to be subsumed into a 2,000+ dwelling development, with urban-style buildings up to five storeys high and a population density higher than most London boroughs.

I object to the fact that the proposed plan does not meet the needs and desires of local communities, as evidenced through the Ockham Parish Plan. The top two responses as to why local residents enjoy life in Ockham are (1) access to the countryside and clean air and (2) the peace and quiet afforded by wide open spaces. Over 90% wish to see both the historic features of the village maintained and the village's green spaces, including the FWA/TFM, protected.

General. Ultimately, all the above extravagant developments are for the benefit of outsiders and not the local community. Guildford Borough Council is reacting to the demands of forces outside the communities it is meant to be serving. In doing so it is even going against the stated commitment of central government to protect the Green Belt. The consequent massive negative impact on local residents is being ignored. Guildford Borough Council should concentrate on satisfying the genuine needs of the borough's population through much smaller scale and more spread out developments in sympathy with the local environment. It should be serving those who ultimately elect them to office. Developments should not be disproportionately impacting on one area of the borough. Surrey already bears the scars of much thoughtless and unnecessary development. Continued proceedings along these lines will result in the local population ensuring that only those councillors and parties who are sympathetic to local needs are elected in future.

Further to the EHPC letter of objection (of June), we agree and endorse the reasons for objection raised in their response. It is our view also that:

We have strong concerns about the Proposed Submission Local Plan and the evidence and assumptions which support it. In particular, we do not agree with the scale of the house building programme which is being proposed by GBC. The target outlined represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough, whilst we note that the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) projects a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

It seems to me that GBC is determined to target Send as a site for development. It is palpably not suited to such plans as anyone who is prepared to visit the village at rush hour would witness. Send is a pleasant village to those who currently live there but with its amenities are already stretched as its stands (transport, doctors surgery and schools). As residents of Send we are equally determined to stand fast in our objection to ill-considered further development and strive to protect the area we call home. It has a rich heritage, its Green Belt status has attracted a loyal following who have paid a premium to retain its beauty. We will continue to do so.

Finally, could you please confirm receipt of my objections.

I object to the large proposed development at 2,000 houses at Wisley Airfield, 2,000 houses at Gosden Hill and 1,850 houses at Blackwell Farm because it will destroy large areas of Green Belt and agricultural land and produce congestion on the A3 and surrounding roads including Send.

I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity.

I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

Firstly I would like to say thank you to the team who visited East Horsley Village Hall to present the plan. Tough job give the size of the plan document, scale of the development and the flawed nature of the plan. I also understand that the pressure on development in a county that has such a large proportion of protected areas provides many challenges. Having said that it soon came clear that the team were not able to answer questions to an adequate level and just started repeating that you should write formally with any objections. As such this is exactly what I am doing.

I OBJECT TO POLICY S2 (BOROUGH-WIDE STRATEGY):

- Numbers based on growth and demographic data now invalidated by Brexit.
- No justification given for 13,860 housing figure. Figure based on a secret formula used by consultants and never seen by anyone on the Council or by the public. Council has failed to seek its disclosure.
- 13,860 figure confuses the OAN with a housing target. No definite housing target given, leaving too much scope for the Council to make one up. I can’t understand how we’re being consulted when we don’t know how many houses the Council want to build, taking all the contraints into account.
- Figures based on a Housing Market Area that ignores 2 neighbouring districts (Rushmoor and Mole Valley) and is much too small, since most people commute or travel far outside the Area to shop or study. This distorts the figures: no reason why Guildford needs to build nearly twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together, or half of all sites over 100 units.
- High numbers involved would transform character of the borough from mainly rural/Green Belt to urban, creating a corridor of development out of London as per Woking or Croydon.

Policy S2:

I object to the exaggerated housing need figure in the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment on which the Draft Local Plan is based. The Council has declined to provide any objective evidence to substantiate the projected housing numbers, which in my view is far in excess of reality. In particular I believe the calculation of foreign students has been wrongly used to inflate the housing need.

Furthermore, the housing number is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

I object to the fact that the impact on infrastructure has not been considered sufficiently. Current infrastructure is utterly inadequate to deal with proposed new housing levels. Roads, doctors and schools will be unable to cope. Yet no tangible resolution has been proposed.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

There is too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing. Even with the overall figure being reduced, the Plan should be more balanced across the borough.

It is unacceptable to build 5,036 houses between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) that will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities of the villages.

The Local Plan proposes 13,860 new homes to be built across the borough by 2031. This figure is said to be based on an objective SHMA carried out by GL Hearn, consultants whose website openly states their pro-development agenda. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it, despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model have not been disclosed, protected by a claim to intellectual property. The Council say we should ‘trust the contractors’ model because it is used by a large number of other local authorities’, however this is no guarantee of objectivity. Indeed, at least two recent papers have been published (one by Guildford Greenbelt Group Councillor David Reeve and the other by an independent expert commissioned by the non-political Guildford Residents Association), which challenge the findings of the SHMA.
Furthermore, the housing number is based on projections for economic and population growth pre-Brexit, including migration. These projections now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite significantly.

derived from it are unreliable. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county (none in Mole Valley, for instance). This highly lopsided distribution is unexplained.

1. The figure of 13,860 new homes is It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.5 The Council say we should trust the contractors' model because it is used by a large number of other local authorities. Wide usage, however, does not confer objectivity. Guildford's OAN would fail the basic transparency test even if the methodology used were a universally admired 'gold standard'. But it is not: it belongs to consultants whose website openly proclaim their pro-development agenda,6 provoking reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. External experts and members of the public have provided detailed critiques of the model. Its most fatal flaw, however, is that it has not been disclosed- not even to the authors of the plan, who have taken it on trust. This is irrational and unsound.

1. The status of the 13,860 figure is The plan fails to set a Housing Target of new homes to be built, or explain how this relates to the "Objectively Assessed Number" (OAN) for housing need. Elsewhere, the Council have said that the two are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted, but in the same breath say that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability.7 Despite the NPPF, the plan fails to address these constraints. In any case, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected "windfall" sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how can anything else be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a "plan" that fails to propose a Housing Target that takes normal constraints and adjustments credibly into account, and which leaves the Council to set one at any level without further consultation. Even if the OAN were not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

1. It is irrational to embark on a radical transformation of the borough without a clear Housing Most of Guildford borough is theoretically protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the existing number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

POLICY S2 -Borough Wide Strategy

I OBJECT. I have 5 objections to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes:

1. The number is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

2. The number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, "West Surrey" is much too Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half the people who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent districts of Rushmoor and Mole Valley, minutes from Guildford town, are outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere. Unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and is part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council have failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. I object to all proposals to build on the Green Belt at Send and elsewhere in the borough because all the development that is really needed can be accommodated in Guildford’s urban brownfield areas much closer to existing transport hubs.

I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

I OBJECT to Send being removed from the Green Belt as a consequence of a "housing need" figure of 13,860. It has not been made clear to the public how this figure was calculated, but it would appear to be inflated, as a large proportion of this figure would comprise Surrey University students who would only be temporary residents of the Borough.

I OBJECT to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes. This is far too high and unsubstantiated. The suspicion is that consultants for developers have come up with this number and not councillors. The housing need has been grossly inflated.

Guildford is a town surrounded by greenbelt, from various streets in the town you can see fields, it needs to be kept like this. Once that green is gone, it’s gone, we will end up with houses all the way to Woking which is not what people want. I notice all other Surrey areas have come in with much lower figures, why is Guildford so high?

Is it because GL Hearn have used flawed data to work out this very high need? Please explain how they came to make this calculation.

In summary, Guildford and the south east is full up. Guildford could not handle more than 60 houses a year let alone 600. But yes, lets have affordable flats and small houses in the town centre or on brownfield sites and lets get central government to invest in the north!! We have 1.7 million unemployed so lets get them working up north!!

Please send this draft plan back to the drawing board for the reasons given.

Objections to Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016)

I object in the strongest possible terms to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). Will you please confirm receipt and show this letter to the Planning Inspector for his due consideration?

The following aspects of the plan do not appear to have been adequately considered or have been dismissed;

- The re-designation of Green Belt land for development - Green Belt Policy Guidelines (NPPG 79-83) sets out to protect open space, prevent encroachment into the countryside and stop linear development leading to the joining together of developed communities all of which appear to have been ignored in the Send proposals.
I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards in light of the Brexit decision. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey".

Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has to date failed to revisit the data to validate that it is correct despite overwhelming concerns raised by borough residents. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need", Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council's cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44%AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

This policy does not take proper account of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done? The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas. The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick's Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards.

Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I write to record my strong objection to the draft Plan.

1. Regulation 18 Consultation Statement

Little account appears to have been taken of the concerns and objections raised in the most recent consultation in 2014. With regard to the multiple objections concerning the Horsleys, the Consultation Statement (p.163) states "These comments are considered to relate to the proposed sites .... and have been responded to in Planning for Sites." I am unable to find evidence of this response, or evidence of the specific objections raised in my letter of 19th September 2014 being included in the collated commentary (p.163 ff.)

In particular, no response at all appears to have been offered in the Consultation Statement to the central objection, namely, that under the National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) exceptional circumstances have to be demonstrated to justify removal of Green Belt protection (para 83). The Consultative Statement does not comply with Regulation 18 of the 2012 Town and Country (Local Planning) Regulations.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints... may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT AT OCKHAM
This would have a major adverse impact on the surrounding area putting additional strain on infrastructure and local facilities. One simple example being the A3 which now is at a standstill in the Ockham area at the times many people need to travel. The roads to local stations are similarly overloaded. There appears to be no serious consideration of the impact of such a major development on local infrastructure. The same detrimental impact would be felt on medical, school and other services. This and the proposed developments at Burnt Common and Gosden Hill, and Burpham must be rejected because of their wider impact.

1. Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough

Between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles it is proposed that over 6,500 houses are built. This represents over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan. I object to this area being hit so hard by the allocation of development, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2) There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

It is in the interests of any future decision to be made by the Planning Inspector that he fully appreciates the strength of opposition to the above.

It is all well and good for bureaucratic individuals, with no local knowledge of the full effect of decisions they may wish to make, to act contrary to the wishes of a majority of local residents when all they these ill advised bureaucrats have in mind is increasing the area of land available for development whilst ignoring amongst other matters:

1. Unacceptable escalation of traffic flow creating unwarranted air pollution.
2. Lack of availability of the necessary schooling facilities.
3. Stretching medical facilities already at breaking point.
4. The lack of local retail shop and other facilities to accommodate any resulting increase in the local population.

All in all the Council have failed miserably in adopting an objective approach to what is being proposed and even more than that have failed to demonstrate the exceptional circumstances which are surely necessary before the boundaries are extended for the purpose they have in mind.

It is time to look at the matter in the light of the year 2016 and in the light of the recent wishes of the majority of the electorate which has cast a doubt over the interest of builders in large residential development commensurate to this area of Surrey until the future becomes more stable within the housing market and if for no other reason the proposal should be shelved.
Please ensure these views are made available to the Inspector.

I recognise that there will be some need for further housing but believe that there are still sufficient opportunities for this to take place on a manageable scale in West Horsley within the confines of the existing Green Belt. Land is such a limited resource in this country that we need to make more efficient use of already-developed areas before resorting to building over the countryside.

2. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.
I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford's OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council's cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website... openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I OBJECT to GBC withholding from residents their consultant’s and sub-consultant’s calculations of housing need, which is what is driving this whole issue. It would appear that even some individual councillors are not privy to the calculations or how the total has been reached but are blindly accepting a figure produced without workings or explanation. There are strong grounds for believing that GBC, aided and abetted by their consultants, have overstated by a wide margin what the figure should be. There are also grounds for believing that the numbers have been exaggerated as a result of pressure from developers. As the grabbing of Green Belt land is predicated on the need for a particular number of houses, a good starting point would have been to get the number right and to show transparently how it was reached.

Other submissions will provide supporting statistics and there are authoritative figures online to show the escalation of housing need in Guildford Borough has been about 0.5% per year for the last ten years. The draft plan provides no proper data which proves that it is increasing significantly more at the moment or that in future years it will rise by so much more. Guildford’s projected number in the last draft local plan was challenged by the Office of National Statistics which is a more reliable source since it is not driven by developers. Since the current set of figures was published other underlying data has changed; for example it was too late to take into account the effects on housing demand of changes to the population which could arise from Brexit. Nor has GBC applied the normal constraints to their maximum projections. For a proper professional assessment of housing numbers I refer the reader to the submission from Andrew Procter on behalf of the Save Send Action group.

I OBJECT to the combined total of 2000 (Wisley) + 485 (Send) + 2000 (Gosden Hill) + 1850 (Blackwell Farm) houses all alongside a short stretch of the A3 between the M25 and the university. To concentrate 6335 of the borough’s assessed need for housing of 13860, that is close to half of it, in such a small area of the borough is by any standards unreasonable. If GBC wants to build this number of houses, which has more to do with developer pressure than properly calculated need, it should spread them more evenly throughout the borough, which it is manifestly failing to do. This would help to alleviate excessive traffic congestion and pollution which is a certain consequence of GBC’s current proposals.

The housing number calculations also have to take into account the constraints, in particular those resulting from the Green Belt. The NPPF states that in their local plans local authorities are required to meet objectively assessed housing needs “as far as is consistent with the policies set out in this Framework”. The policies referred to include Section 9 - Protection of the Green Belt. The Court of Appeal has clarified the interpretation of this by stating categorically that there may be nothing very special about a housing shortfall in an area which has very little undeveloped land outside the Green Belt.

The key question is not “is there a shortfall in housing land supply?” You have to ask “have special circumstances been demonstrated to outweigh the Green Belt objection?” And such circumstances are not demonstrated simply because there is a less than five year supply of housing land. Special circumstances will not exist unless the potential harm to the Green Belt is clearly outweighed by other considerations. Given the large amount of Green Belt in Guildford Borough, the council can legitimately argue that it does not have to match the housing targets of boroughs with less Green Belt.

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

Comments: the council has strenuously resisted calls to demonstrate and provide support for these figures. In the absence of which, I can only conclude that there is no justification for them and that the pressure of developers have moulded these from the air and greedy dreams. Objection to the Guildford 2016 Local Plan

I OBJECT to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as a whole and in particular I object to the specific issues listed below. I believe that this deeply flawed Local Plan will have a direct and detrimental effect on the amenity currently enjoyed by residents of East Clandon, West Clandon, Send Marsh, Ripley, West and East Horsley. It erodes the openness of the Green Belt and endangers the beauty and views in and out of the Surrey Hills AONB.

My specific points are as follows:

I OBJECT to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 13,800 new homes (690 new dwellings being built every year for 20 years). I object on 3 grounds:

these housing numbers have been imposed with no real consultation being undertaken with residents; b. the housing numbers are based on a high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no consultation and this combined with estimated demand from London residents will turn Guildford into a dormitory town for London; c. no real economic or housing demand factors have been provided by the borough planners to substantiate the very high housing target of 13,800 new dwellings over the next 20 years.

I OBJECT to the proposed scale of new building throughout the borough, which is disproportionate and unjustified.

As a resident of East Horsley for over 45 years and a householder for over 20, I wish to register my objection to the proposed local plan. There is simply no need to address the national housing shortage in the way that is being proposed for the Horsleys and certainly not in the way proposed by the development at Wisley airfield.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

This policy has totally ignored the following key requirements from paragraph 17 of the NPPF:

- “take account of the different roles and character of different areas, promoting the vitality of our urban areas, protecting the Green Belts around them”
- “recognising the intrinsic character and beauty of the countryside and supporting thriving communities within it” “contribute to conserving and enhancing the natural environment and reducing pollution”
- “encourage the effective use of land by reusing land that has been previously developed (brownfield land) provided it is not of high environmental value”
- “conserve heritage assets in a manner appropriate to their significance“
- “actively manage patterns of growth to make the fullest possible use of public transport walking and cycling and focus significant development on locations which can be made sustainable”. “empowering local people to shape their surroundings”

Removing West Horsley and other rural villages from the Green Belt by ‘insetting’ them, and expanding the boundaries of the settlement areas into neighbouring green fields (i.e. reducing the Green Belt) does NOT protect the Green Belt. Nor does it give adequate recognition to the intrinsic character and beauty of the countryside. Nor, by giving developers the option of building more cheaply on green fields does it encourage the effective use of land by reusing land that has been previously developed (brownfield land). By turning West Horsley into a rural town, it does not conserve the heritage assets of West Horsley. By encouraging 35% more houses in a rural village without intrinsic employment, rather than brownfield urban sites, it does not make fullest possible use of public transport, walking and cycling within the Borough. It is obvious from the degree of protest that there has been throughout Guildford Borough to the previous (2014) Draft Local Plan and the preceding ‘Issues and Options’ ‘consultation’ that local people wish to shape their surroundings in ways that are entirely different from that which is projected by the Draft Local Plan. The inconsistency between the draft Local Plan and the wishes of the local population is specifically the case for West Horsley Parish.

I object to this policy and the way it has been formulated.

I note that the plan proposes almost 14,000 homes - 13,860 homes to be precise.

It appears as if this number has been plucked out of thin air. There has been no opportunity for any informed member of the public to scrutinise it. Nor has this number been scrutinised by councillors despite repeated requests for debate. Indeed, the Council’s scrutiny committee turned down the opportunity to scrutinise it on spurious grounds. From the outset the assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden contrary to all basic principles of research. It is completely unreasonable to use a set of unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB, approx. 75% protected by SPA).

It seems to me that for the Council to expect the public to believe these unsubstantiated figures is verging on the fraudulent. All attempts to secure the release of the underlying data have been resisted and should any aspects of this plan be scrutinised by a planning inspector, I hope that they will listen carefully to the transcript of the Council’s scrutiny committee, which I attended as an observer. It is my view that the Scrutiny Committee has let down the electorate.

It is completely inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period OR across projected sites, when the number itself cannot be substantiated. Detailed criticisms of the model have been provided by external consultants and members of the public.

If the housing number were substantially lower, and was calculated only to meet housing need, then there would be no need to build on Green Belt land or in the open countryside.

The number of homes proposed, together with existing planning permission, added to expected “windfall” sites, exceeds 13,860. Guildford residents would not accept building homes on open countryside to meet Woking’s designated “need” but this seems to be implied.

There are major flaws in the 2017 plan, not least of which is the housing target itself. I object to Policy S2.

Throughout the country, let alone in Guildford and its environs, there is astonishment at the manner in which GBC has steadfastly refused to examine, or permit others to examine the housing target of 12,246 and the basis upon which this has been reached. In the scrutiny committee a councillor stated “one does not have a dog and bark oneself” as a justification for not scrutinizing the GL Hearn figures. If a pharmaceutical company tried to licence and market a drug without making their scientific data available for scrutiny, they would not get approval from the licensing authority. In almost every research field it is part of normal analytical procedure to scrutinize the underlying data. Yet for some bizarre reason, GBC seems to think that it is not necessary to permit anybody to analyze the assumptions that underpin the SHMA. The only logical conclusion that one can draw is that the data must be flawed, because if it could stand up to scrutiny, it would have been released long ago. This flawed data means that the whole plan is fundamentally unsound and I object to it in the strongest terms.

In general, I do not understand GBC’s seeming desire for a small number of large development. If the focus was on a larger number of small developments, then overall effect would be much more sustainable and sensitive to the exiting communities within the Borough.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

1. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
2. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.
3. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or on any common sense view, "West Surrey" is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it.

The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

There are many suitable ‘brown field’ sites around Guildford that should be used and considered to meet our housing requirements. We need to consider other ideas of building above (over) car parks for student and affordable housing. Council planners need to move big retail parks more out of town and use these sites for housing i.e Lady mead retail park.

My children are likely to work in London and want to live in town close to the station. There isn’t sufficient housing in the town. Instead we build large supermarkets, retail parks and encourage more cars into the town, these sites could have been used for housing.

- The area around the train station is poorly designed for cars and access to and from the station is crazy. This should be a priority for improvement!
- The main roundabout in the centre of Guildford and traffic around the roundabout which also effects the station and all spur roads into and out of Guildford is absolute crazy!
- The local plan should deal with this type of long term vision, development and strategic improvements not plastering over and digging up green fields!

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.
The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.
It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I am objecting to the local plan as Guildford B.C. will not tell us how they arrived at the number of houses required. The traffic around Burpham is often chaos due to the past decisions of Guildford B.C. The plan for Gosden Hill will make the traffic significantly worse. Guildford B.C for whatever reason, seem to approve the most stupid major planning applications in spite of the objections of local people and when those objection are proved correct ignore their responsibility. GBC have proved their inability to make sensible judgements regarding the local plan. Listen to and accept the views of Burpham Community Association, they represent a much more realistic and reasonable view.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA.

It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand.
The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I OBJECT to all strategic sites proposed in the draft Plan to be built in the Green Belt.

1. I object to the identification and allocation of sites in this plan without regard to Green Belt, infrastructure or other constraints. The plan says that “allocating these sites does not grant planning permission for development.” However, each of the sites will be removed from the Green Belt and will be available in principle for development and non-Green Belt uses. The inclusion of these sites without detailed site by site justification shows contempt for the thousands of detailed comments the Council have received about individual sites ever since the Issues and Options consultation in 2013. The plan has hardly changed since the Council received 20,000 objections to its first draft plan in 2014. The Inspector considering the plan may conclude that the consultation has not been properly conducted.

2. The housing needs assessment is flawed in various respects and overstates housing need. In addition since it was produced, the referendum Brexit decision has almost certainly reduced future housing need and rendered the previous assessment seriously out of date. As a result any assessment of Green Belt sites which took place to consider whether “exceptional circumstances” existed to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt was based on false premises and should be reconsidered.

3. Having determined housing need the Council was entitled to consider constraints before determining the housing number. I believe that as Ill as being entitled to do this the Council was required to give proper consideration to constraints. The scarcity of sites outside the Green Belt as Ill as infrastructure (most notable roads) considerations all represented constraints which should have been taken into account in determining the final housing number. Accordingly in this regard our objection to the allocation of Green Belt sites is twofold. First I believe constraints should have been applied. Secondly I believe the Council did not properly consider constraints and that their decision making process was flawed and thus subject to being set aside by the Inspector.

4. Even if having properly applied constraints there is a need to develop in the Green Belt then specific Green Belt sites should not be included in the plan unless “exceptional circumstances” for development are proven in relation to that specific site, as stipulated repeatedly in the NPPF. The Green Belt should trump short-term considerations such as perceived housing need, as case law has established. There needs to be a specific balancing exercise conducted on each Green Belt site weighing the harm to the Green Belt against the very special circumstances which are argued in favour of development at that particular site. There is no evidence this has been done. Instead the council have appeared to say that having chosen a housing needs figure and decided it cannot be met without building on Green Belt then there is no need for any further consideration and any convenient Green Belt site can be allocated for building at will.

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. However the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build on 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. It is irresponsible to squander every last resort greenfield site in a single Plan, robbing future generations.

Brownfield opportunities are being ignored – we need homes in the centre (not 40% more shops), much more accommodation on campus for students, and homes for the elderly to free up family houses.

I wish to object most strongly to the local plan as follows:

1. A very large amount of proposed development in a comparatively small area
2. There will not be enough immediate school space in the existing schools.
3. The limited supply of doctors dental treatment and associated health care, which is all ready stretched to its limit.
4. The destruction of conservation areas, so much on the current government’s mind
5. The very limited, almost non-existent consultation period.

Objections to Guildford Borough Council Proposed Local Plan (June 2016) and to the continued inclusion in the plan of the Former Wisley Airfield (FWA), now known as Three Farms Meadows (TFM) – Allocation A35 - for the phased development of a new settlement of up to 2100 dwellings

I am writing to object to the draft Local Plan for the following key reasons:

1) I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of new housing be built within the Green Belt. There is ample brownfield land in the urban areas which needs to be regenerated, without the need to encroach on protected Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are being ignored.

I feel that the exaggerated 'housing need' figure of 13,860 is far too high and result in the completely unnecessary development of the Green Belt.

I object to all proposals to build on the Green Belt at Send and elsewhere in the borough because all the development that is really needed can be accommodated in Guildford's urban brownfield areas much closer to existing transport hubs.

I object in the strongest possible terms to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). This Plan is unsustainable, unworkable and, in many provisions, unnecessary.

I set out below my objections to specific policies and matters within the Plan.

In particular, as a resident of West Clandon, living on The Street, I am concerned that the infrastructure is not sufficient, in particular the road through West Clandon will not support the additional traffic that development will bring. The road is already dangerous as the number of accidents attest.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Proposed Submission Local Plan

I have reviewed the Proposed Submission Local Plan published by Guildford Borough Council (GBC) for public consultation- and am dismayed by some important aspects of its content.

In particular:

1. I do not agree with the scale of the proposed house building programme. The target shown represents a 25% increase in the Borough housing stock. However, the Office of National Statistics projects merely a 15% population increase for Guildford Borough over the same period.

Therefore I object to the Borough housing targets set out.

1. The Local Plan incorporates the statement " We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt". However, GBC would seem to be in breach of this aim through the housing policies it has set out in the Local Plan, in which 65% of the developments will be made on land that is currently Green. This includes the proposal to inset East Horsley from the Green Belt; propose boundary changes and the proposal to remove Wisley Airfield from the Green Belt.

Consequently, I object to the proposed intrusions into the Green Belt, which will have a material adverse impact on the area.

1. The infrastructure proposals appear inadequate to meet existing and current needs, let alone those of the area after the additional proposed developments in the local PI

Therefore, I object to the proposed infrastructure proposals.

5. Consequently, in summary, I object to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

Guildford Local Plan 2016

My comments on the Local Plan as it affects West Horsley are as follows:

1. The building of up to 385 homes on 4 sites is unsustainable because the schools are full, there are insufficient shops with suitable parking, little public transport, and the car park at Horsley station is full every weekday. The Local Plan offers no concrete plans for the additional infrastructure and facilities which would be needed.

2. There are already drainage problems in the Ockham Road North & Green Lane areas. Thames Water has advised that the waste water system is unlikely to be able to support the demand anticipated from the proposed developments, and the foul drainage system from West Horsley to the treatment works north of Ripley would need to be upgraded to cope.

4. It is perverse that, purely because X number of homes is deemed to be needed and there are Y plots in Horsley which landowners have put forward, it is considered appropriate to move the green belt boundary just to accommodate a disproportionate number of homes irrespective of the effect on the community and its infrastructure. The whole process is arbitrary and appears to be driven purely by proposing the maximum number of homes which can be built on the land plots which Horsley landowners have put forward.

Borough Wide Strategy – I OBJECT. 13,860 homes are proposed. This number has not been scrutinised by councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden. It is not reasonable to produce unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB, approx. 75% protected by SPA).

It is inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period OR across projected sites, when the number itself is unsubstantiated. External consultants and members of the public have provided detailed criticisms of the model. IF the housing number were substantially lower, and only met housing need, there would be no need to build on Green Belt or open countryside.

The number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds 13,860. Guildford residents would not accept building homes on open countryside to meet Woking’s designated “need” but this seems to be implied.

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

1. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

2. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I accept that we need more homes in the area but the amended number is still very high. An independent analysis by a national expert stated that an annual build of 404 houses giving a total of 7676 houses over the period of the plan would be sufficient for Guildford’s needs. It is still higher than all the other boroughs in the area (SCC figures). GBC has not explained how it arrived at its figures.

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA.

It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”: Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. Policy S2, p29, Section 4.1.9: The Council already has reservations about the financial achievability of several of its “big ticket” capital plans, including SARP and North Street (as expressed in the last O&S meeting). I am concerned, therefore, that this policy states that large development sites, including strategic development sites, will deliver the majority of new developments in the 6-11 year period and 11-15 year period. It would appear that the success of the second half of the Local Plan will depend on the viability and affordability of a few core programmes that already have question marks over them – making half of the plan an uncertain prospect before we even start.
Policy S2, p30, Section 1: The Council proposes to build 1,434 fewer homes as part of the revised plan. I question the wisdom of this at a time of increasing need for housing of all types.

I OBJECT to the proposal to create ribbon development along the A3 from Junction 10 of the M25 to Guildford with the development that are proposed for Wisley Airfield 2000 houses, Garlick’s Arch 400 houses and industrial space, Gosden Farm 2000 houses and Blackwell Farm. 1850 houses. This is what the Green Belt was set up to stop. Typical of the aptitude of GBC, they have totally ignored building on Brownfield sites other than more unwanted retail space.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

I object to the proposed local plan:

1. The reduction in the number of new homes in the Green Belt is insufficient. There is still an enormous number of new dwellings proposed for construction in the Green Belt, particularly when considered in proportion to the number of existing homes.
2. It is proposed that the area east of the borough takes an even higher number of dwelling in the Green Belt than before.

3. Many other councils have chosen not to constrain overall housing growth to protect the Green Belt, yet Guilford has not. Although the objectively-assessed housing target has been reduced since the 2016 plan to 12,466 dwellings by 2034, this still represent a 25% growth for Guilford, which is disproportionate.

4. Nothing has changed since last year’s consultation to address the sustainability aspects of the West Horsley development sites, as is required by national policy requirements. No matter how much people are encouraged to travel on foot or by cycling, each new home will need a least one car to give access to Horsley station, shops, medical centre, library, etc.; this is easily demonstrable.

5. More apartments are needed in Guildford, not more retail space. The rise of on-line shopping and the reduction in physical shopping is clearly documented and many authoritative reports support that view that the trend will continue.

6. No changes have been made to the proposal to inset both East and West Horsley from the Green Belt. Policy P2 states that the Metropolitan Green Belt will continue to be protected against inappropriate development. I object to the village’s removal from the Green Belt by insetting and extending the 2003 Local Plan Settlement Area boundaries.

7. The overload of local social and physical infrastructure is not addressed. Increased demand for access to medical facilities, schools, station parking, roads, and particularly disposal of waste water remain at large.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result will be a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri–borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. I object to the housing number for the local plan particularly the fact that the Council have not, as required used any constraints such as green belt, infrastructure, air quality, AONB, TBHSPA etc. I believe that the housing number is unsound and open to legal challenge.

I object to policy S2 where it states “the figures set out in the Annual Housing Target table sum to a total of 12,426” yet the figures in the table add up to 9,810 – what is the significance of the missing 2,616? This is one of a number of glaring examples of why the plan is not sound.

I OBJECT TO the disproportionate amount of development on the A3 between Burpham and the M25 at Wisley. With 2000 houses at Wisley Airfield, 2200 homes at Gosden Hill Farm and 400 houses at Garlick’s Farm Send. This will make an urban sprawl in this part of Surrey and will completely change the environment for all the residents and who live here as well as increased air pollution from all the additional vehicles. There is a lack of evidence for the alleged housing need numbers.

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy

This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

The enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

Some explanation for this mismatch may partly be found in the conclusion of the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised. It estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’ – effectively what the official statisticians at the ONS and the Department of Communities and Local Government (“DCLG”) are predicting Guildford will require based upon their population and household forecasts. To this is added in the SHMA another 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’, a further 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’ and 25 homes due to ‘student growth’, all of which totals up to 693 homes per annum target.

Economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG, so what GBC are proposing actually comes on top of the official household growth forecasts for the borough. Moreover, the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 is proposing that all development sites (other than the very smallest) will be required to have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing, so why another 31 homes per annum is needed as affordable housing on top of this 40% ratio is quite incomprehensible.

Furthermore, DCLG research has concluded that there is on average a 97% correlation between population growth and household formation. Therefore, if GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock were actually realised, the outcome will be that Guildford Borough would see its population rise by around 25% over this period. This means that the resultant population growth for Guildford Borough would be at a level 67% higher than the official forecasts.

I am concerned that there is a lack of transparency in how the consultants have reached the housing need figures. With the United Kingdom is now exiting the EU and this will have the effect of reducing immigration figures.

There seems to be a lack of insight into changing retail usage and the fall in the need for retail floor space that could be freed up for residential homes, government planning policy recognises this and has made change of use easier. This would reduce the need for building on greenbelt and make town centres more vibrant with a higher number of residents using the facilities available.

I have read a number of analyses of the numbers which you derived for the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN) and the SHMA and am persuaded that the built up numbers which you have taken as the basis for deriving the development policy, are unsound. I therefore object to Policy S2.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

We consider that the Housing Targets on which the policy is based are derived from an Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN) and a Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) which are flawed. The modelling to produce the original number has not been demonstrated to adequately represent either the historic immigration figures nor the projected figures issued by the Office of National Statistics (ONS). The further increases made to the demographic starting point are in some cases inappropriate and in some case erroneous. Given that the proposed developmental needs in the borough are based on what we consider to be inaccurate data we object to Policy S2.

Why has industrial and warehouse space been proposed? There is room at Slyfield and this site should be fully developed to prevent proliferation of industrial areas in the Surrey Countryside. The logical thing would be keep them all on one site. The proposed industrial development of 7000 sq m is simply not required since the latest Employment Land Need Assessment 2015 (ELNA) shows a reduction of 80% in required employment floor space from the previous draft plan. A new 4-way interchange onto the A3 at Burnt Common to serve this development would be disastrous for Send, Ripley 7 Clandon. Send Road (A247) would be gridlocked all day. Send would be the through route to Woking for traffic leaving the M25 & A3. Send cannot cope.

HOUSING NUMBERS

The housing numbers proposed are for an additional 593 new homes in West and East Horsley within 5 years of adopting the plan. Indeed the proposed increase for West Horsley is an additional 35% of the existing households – the highest in the Borough.

This number is additional to the 2100 new homes planned for Wisley Airfield. This number is far too high for the existing infrastructure to handle and would ruin the nature of the Horsleys.

BROWNFIELD AVAILABLE

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing not the Green Belt around our villages. I understand that Surrey University is sitting on permission for 1,500+ accommodation units on its own brownfield campus. If the University fulfilled its obligations much Town Centre affordable accommodation would be available for rental/purchase.

I understand that there are "brown field" sites involved in this plan but if the plan is approved it is almost certain that with the difficulties of getting full approval for these sites it is most probable that there would be enormous pressure on developing green field sites first. This is a really alarming consideration given that the Wisley development is projected to be over 2000 houses and there would be enormous pressure to develop this site very early on in the future.

Housing Needs Numbers

I OBJECT to the housing needs numbers included in the local plan as far too high.

An annual build of 693 new homes per annum represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period. In particular over 23% of this new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys, totally out of proportion to the population living there.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 houses being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.
The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is not justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

With respect to the housing need, I do not consider that the case regarding the need for the proposed number of houses in Guildford borough overall has been proven, indeed the target house building programme proposed represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough, whilst we have been advised that the Office of national Statistics (ONS) projects a population increase of some 15% for the borough of Guildford over the same period. With respect to West Horsley specifically the number of new houses needed has not been proven and the Local Plan number for West Horsley is simply excessive. The scale of proposed development (in proportion far greater than other villages within the borough) does not reflect the need and fails to respect the local character and existing building density of the village. I am therefore strongly opposed to the current site allocation and housing densities proposed for all four sites in West Horsley.

Furthermore, in my opinion, the Proposed Submission Local Plan’s proposal to make provision for 62% of this total dwelling requirement on land that is currently Green Belt is not justified. The disproportionate burden of meeting what GBC has chosen to define as its development needs is also proposed to fall on the more rural east of the borough. Within this eastern area, West Horsley is then allocated to bear an excessive proportion of this proposed development, despite the numerous countervailing reasons put forward in previous consultation rounds by many local residents (e.g. narrow roads; areas of flood risk; access to both senior and junior school places; medical facilities, parking availability at the station, etc.) If adopted, the draft plan will put an unsustainable pressure on all local resources and infrastructure.

As I set out earlier on, the Guildford Borough Economic Strategy 2013 – 2031 made no such case for locating large numbers of residential units within West Horsley. I am strongly opposed to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done.
The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brownfield sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built-up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Policy S2 states that provision will be made for 13,800 new homes over the Plan Period 2013 to 2033. The number of homes is too high and unsustainable in Guildford’s villages.

The need for so many houses to be built in West Horsley over the first 5 years of the Plan period 2018 to 2033 is totally unproven.

I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

- I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of new housing be built within the Green Belt. There is ample brownfield land in the urban areas which needs to be regenerated, without the need to encroach on protected Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are being ignored.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

I am writing to object to the draft local plan. I object on the basis of:

1. The entirety of the plan – the proposed scale of expansion it contains, the continued absence of supporting infrastructure and the complete incompatibility of the approach with Guildford’s current and traditional state;
2. In particular the proposed expansion on the West of Guildford, including the Blackwell Farm Site and other associated development such as the cathedral.

I also note that it is appalling that what appear from the information provided to have been only very minor changes to the prior plan have been made yet you insist on requiring fresh objections – the reality is that the plan recently proposed is not materially changed from that provided in 2014 and consequently all or almost all objections to that plan should remain.

The core reasons for my objections are set out below (for the avoidance of doubt all of these apply to the West of Guildford expansion as well as some applying to the overall plan) as follows:

Scale of expansion.

1. The proposed scale of expansion is incompatible with Guildford as a town and will dramatically change its character and the demands placed upon it;
2. The scale of expansion in absolute terms is too significant for a relatively modest town and is well beyond that which is required. The evidentiary support provided does not justify the scale of development proposed.
3. The relative scale of expansion vs. that proposed by other areas such as Woking – if the demand for such expansion is there then it should be met on a balanced basis across the region; and
4. The incompatibility of this plan with the town centre and the proposed plan. The town centre plan suggests that there will be less access to the town centre with less parking and a lower capacity for traffic. Implementing this local plan at the same time as the changes contained within the town centre plan is a recipe for complete chaos. While the revised plan refers to changes in the mix of transport, and hopefully there will be some, this will undoubtedly be insufficient to reduce overall traffic volumes in what is already an over-stretched town. Supply side changes are not going to be sufficient to cope with the level of increased demand proposed by the plan

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
1. In the election period. This is not appropriate and in reality is an exercise in undermining local democracy. The plan is not appropriate and has only changed at the margins.

2. In addition the form and content of the document makes it virtually impenetrable for an ordinary person to access it. Producing a complex document, a summary of changes which relies on extensive reference to varied supporting documentation and with a range of meaningless soundbites and terms which only town planners are able to interpret does not create an accessible plan. Indeed both my wife and I have numerous post-graduate qualifications, and my wife even has a Geography degree yet the summary provided by you left us struggling to understand the changes and meaning of the document. The approach taken makes it very difficult for even the well-educated to read, interpret and assess the proposals in a sensible timeframe.

3. In short the consultation process has provided over-complex information on the local plan and is an attempt to grind objections down. It remains wholly inappropriate and should be completely re-thought from the ground up, rather than subject to variation at the margins – as has been the case. If this was activity undertaken by a bank then there would be calls for a public investigation and potential action for mis-selling – I fail to see why failing to consult properly in the public sector over a matter of this importance should be treated any differently.

Objections to Guildford Borough Council Proposed Local Plan (June 2016) and to the continued inclusion in the plan of the Former Wisley Airfield (FWA), now known as Three Farms Meadows (TFM) - Allocation A35 - for the phased development of a new settlement of up to 2100 dwellings

Policy S2 - Borough Wide Strategy

I object to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes. If a lower number were proposed it would remove the need to build on the Green Belt.

The plan fails to set a housing target of new homes or explain how this relates to housing need. It exceeds the 13,860 total.

The assumptions and calculations are hidden and are using a model belonging to consultants that are openly pro development.

The projections for economic and population growth should be revised downwards especially in view of Brexit.

The West Surrey Housing Market Area is too small and adjacent districts of Rushmoor and Mole Valley are outside the area.

The area is artificial and the absence of a suitable alternative doesn't make 'West Surrey' reliable. There is a highly lopsided distribution of proposed developments in Surrey.

I should also like to state that the extent and number of new houses proposed in the Horsley’s, Ripley, Send and Wisley areas is totally out of proportion to any local requirement, I believe the mathematical model used to develop the Strategic Housing Market Assessment is flawed, there is no industry or business case for increased housing on this scale (a 35% increase in West Horsley). If new housing is required it would be better to site it close to where that need really is.

2.1 OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500
It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I wish to object to the local plan.
I support the valid reasons given to you by the Guildford Residents Associations. Primarily it should not be considered without the infrastructure to support it

It appears that this is not being considered in conjunction with a plan for the centre of Guildford. This cannot be right. Guildford is becoming a nightmare.
I hope commonsense will prevail.

West Horsley is being considered as two separate plots and therefore the allocation of housing is increased due to this. I feel baffled as to why West Horsley is split into North and South since it has only one small section of shops near Bell and Colville. The village should be considered as one entity. When viewed as such, it is clear that the proposed density of housing is an extraordinarily high percentage, once again far outstripping identified need, none of which warrants building on green belt land, or reclassifying green belt land because there are no exceptional circumstances.

I Object to the loss of rural employment Policy E5, which supports the retention of local services and businesses within our rural communities. Garlicks Arch will result in the loss of four such small and local businesses, two of these have been in existence for over 30 years and the other two for about nine years. Therefore this plan does not support or promote rural employment; rather it is ending valued local businesses.

Planning for the borough - our spatial development strategy - I object- The basis of the calculations are neither transparent, nor, appropriate given the recent landmark changes in our nation's direction and future. Also, an assumption to meet a defined target which cannot be justified cannot be considered reasonable within the modern age.

I object to all the proposed sites in Send because they were not included in the previous consultation. Unlike the rest of the borough, Send has not been properly consulted and all its sites have been changed substantially.

I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads, including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity. GBC has completely failed to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and Green Belt. GBC have also failed to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the Local Plan.

I am writing to object to the local plan on the basis that, despite the minor changes made, it still commits Guildford to development that I feel is inappropriate for the town and area, in scale and nature. I continue to object in particular to the planned large-scale expansion into the Green Belt at the Blackwell Farm site. Many of my points remain the same as I have not seen much in the amended plan to change my views.

Scale

The scale of development proposed in Guildford still seems completely out of proportion to the town. The proposed developments significantly increase the footprint of the town and encroach considerably into the countryside that helps make our town so special, materially changing Guildford for the worse for local people. It still makes no sense to me why our borough is proposing greater per annum building targets than areas such as Woking and Weybridge. I also believe that Housing ‘need’ continues to be subjective whatever ‘assessment’ you do – people ‘wanting’ to live somewhere is not the same as needing to, and building lots of housing attracts people, making the assessment a self-fulfilling prophecy. Furthermore, the recent decision to leave the EU and reduce immigration as a consequence, coupled with the projected reduction in economic growth reinforces the view that the population projections on which your assessments were based overstate the required level of development and need to be urgently reassessed.

Inappropriately overburdening some areas

Despite it stating in the local plan document that, ‘We have sought to select sites carefully and in a way which does not overburden any single area of our borough and ensure that the right infrastructure is in place’, this is clearly not true in the case of the Manor/Blackwell Farm development, which would be hugely overburdening the west of Guildford. This is especially true in light of the additional proposed development at the cathedral site.

Character

I believe that the large scale developments planned will materially damage the character of Guildford and make it a less desirable area to live in – after all the unique urban/rural character of Guildford is surely what drives the demand to live here – certainly it was for us. The approval of this scale of development would be enough to prompt us to consider moving elsewhere.

Plan

Finally, I want to draw attention to how inaccessible I found the consultation documents and the ‘presentation’ video on your website – I am educated to post-degree level and still struggled to follow what you were talking about at times. In addition, the sheer volume of paperwork that we have had to wade through to prepare an objection must be hugely off-putting to many people. I can’t help feeling that the council will be forcing the plan through and claiming reduced objections when this is not because less people object but rather as a result of people getting ‘objection-fatigue’ or being put off by the way the volume of information is being presented, where even the maps a very difficult to interpret, particularly on a computer screen where you are forced to zoom in and out repeatedly.

I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn. The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high. I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole. Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable. Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement. However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt. A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum. The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan. The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald. He is an independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit. NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.

There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.

The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast. A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA. The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.

2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.

3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.

4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction. Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target. The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards. It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.
The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed. The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan. Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt. THE NEED TO APPLY CONSTRAINTS Ministerial guidance in relation to building on the Green Belt is clear:

1. “the single issue of unmet need - is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development in the Green Belt” - Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 7th February 2014.

2. “we were always very clear that we would maintain key protections for the countryside, and, in particular, for the Green Belt. The Framework makes it clear that a Green Belt boundary may be altered only in exceptional circumstances and reiterates the importance and permanence of the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Michael Pitt, Planning Inspectorate 3rd March 2014.

3. “Planning Guidance, updated in March 2014, also states that unmet housing need is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt to constitute the very special circumstances justifying inappropriate development within the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 18th June 2014

70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries. Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements). Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 693 per annum to 500. In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN. of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council. This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 250 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 5,000 homes. All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 20,000 objections made by residents to the 2014 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure. It would also mean that there is currently 8.5 years supply of housing (2131/250) which is made up of existing permissions granted (1,518) and completions made (613) during 2013/2015. (Monitoring Report by GBC 2015) The Brexit vote may have strengthened government policy further. Theresa May, the new prime minister, announced on 11 July that she is personally committed to protecting the Green Belt once she takes office. Whilst I have many significant objections to the GBC Local Plan I applaud the policy statement by GBC in their Monitoring Report, “We will continue to monitor the use of previously developed land, and continue to identify as many opportunities as possible for redevelopment of previously developed land.” I believe it will be to the benefit of all residents if GBC can apply themselves vigorously to this endeavour in order to protect the Green Belt.

1. Disproportionate size of sites in relation to rural locations

I object to the allocation of land to the strategic sites of Garlicks Arch (Ripley/Send border), Gosden Hill (Clandon) and Wisley Airfield. The proposed development of these sites will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanent and negative impact on each of these communities.

1. Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough

Between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles it is proposed that over 6,500 houses are built. This represents over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan. I object to this area being hit so hard by the allocation of development, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough.

1. Gerrymandering

The concentration of Green Belt development is not only disproportionate to the rest of the Borough but has been disproportionately applied to Wards that are not lead by a Conservative borough councilor. For example, the Ward of Lovelace (Liberal Democrat) accounts for 15% of the Borough’s population but has been allocated 35% of the proposed house building. The Ward of Send (Guildford Greenbelt Group) has also been given a disproportionate amount of house building. The coincidence of this is statistically significant and demonstrates at best a form of punishment to Wards who did not elect a Conservative borough councilor and at worst a form of gerrymandering.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

With 5,000 homes planned to be built in and around the Ripley, Send, Horsley, Clandon and Burpham area, it is completely unsustainable and will damage the local area and its infrastructure.

There are far too many plans for houses to be crammed into an area which can’t take it, rather than using existing brownfield sites closer to existing urban areas and transport links

In conclusion, I object to the new Guildford proposed Local plan because of the enormous pressure it will put on the local resources and amenities, the increased amounts of traffic and the loss of rural identity. I specifically object to the developments at Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43), Gosden Farm (A25) and Tannary Lane (A42) as well as the other smaller plans in Horsley (A36-A41). I urge the council to take these objections into consideration and reconsider the removal of the Green Belt status.

I have the following objections to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes:

1. Numbers of homes based on growth and demographic data including migration, are no longer valid in view of Brexit. They should be revised to a lower figure.

2. No justification for the housing figure is given and the Council has failed to reveal the formula for its working this out. The public cannot be expected to be consulted without this information as it is fundamental to the draft plan, and therefore makes a mockery of the exercise!

3. No definite housing target for new homes is given, and the plan fails to make sense of its relation to an "Objectively Assessed Number" for housing need. This is confusing. Moreover, the Council contradicts itself by saying it relies on the OAN being the number for houses because it is deliverable whilst saying the infrastructure problems may cause constraints. The plan does not say how many homes the Council want to build and therefore allows this figure to be made up.

4. The Housing Market Area (HMA) has been wrongly used incorporating 2 other boroughs of Woking and Waverley creating an area 'West Surrey' which is artificial and too small and ignores Mole Valley and Rushmoor nearby districts. Many people commute to Guildford to shop and study and live outside the Area. The figures are distorted and unreliable by the plan using this HMA. There is no reason why Guildford needs to build twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together. It is a completely unbalanced proposal.
5. The very high numbers of homes suggested would change the character of the borough from mainly rural and Green Belt to urban creating a band of development out of London. It would destroy the borough for residents now and for future generations.

The idea of a single housing strategy for the complete borough is badly flawed. It is completely wrong to treat very different areas which have different requirements, in an identical way to attempt to justify the numbers of houses proposed by Policy S2. The secret method of counting the numbers of people and houses required, has not been scrutinized by the councillors and therefore must be discounted. There is no justification or explanation of the 13,860 houses required by this proposed policy and the growth and demographic data put forward are invalidated by the events of the referendum and subsequent Brexit. The council uses projected numbers produced by consultants (GL Hearn) who as part of the Capita Group, have a vested interest in building and development (surely a clear conflict of interest).

Additionally there is no housing target. A requirement and a target are not the same thing and could thus be manipulated with impunity.

The effect of this proposed policy would be to devastate the villages and the environment around Guildford. According to the council figures, twice as many large housing estates are required in Guildford –more than in all the rest of Surrey put together. There is no justification for this. The character of Guildford would be irrevocably changed.

Policy S2( Planning for the Borough-our spatial development strategy)

I object to this amended policy and the commitment to build 12,426 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) prepared by GL Hearn because it has not addressed many of the 32,000 objections to the 2016 version of the plan. I am informed and agree with the opinion that the OAN(objectively assessed need) figure of 12,426 is far too high.

I am very concerned that GBC has adopted this figure as its housing target without applying constraints required by the NPPF and National Planning Policy Guidance(NPPG).I am informed that a study of the GL Hearn report by NMSS has revealed that the SHMA was flawed in its calculation as it was based on incorrect population figures from the ONS(Office of National Statistics).It proposes reducing the figure for homes to 400 per annum.I understand this is justified on the basis of the under recording of students leaving Guildford. The analysis of this has been put to the Council by the GGG (Guildford Green Belt Group) which makes it clear the report by GL Hearn should not be relied on.

I therefore object to the target of 580 homes per year because the GBC has based calculations on over estimated population growth for the period 2015-2034. I object that 70% of sites put forward are still in Green Belt contrary to planning policy. Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. They have not reduced number required by national guidance available including-

- Exceptional or very special circumstances
- Housing need doesn't justify development in Green Belt
- Government paper on planning for housing gives guide

“Need alone is not the only factor to be considered when drawing up a local plan “including”land designated Green Belt and SSSIs”

“ The framework makes clear that once established Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances” and “should take into account any constraints such as Green Belt, which indicate that development should be restricted and which may restrain the ability of an authority to meet its need.” (P d055 ref ID.3-045-20141006) 14 June 2017.

I object to the fact GBC has not chosen to apply the government guidelines and has not lowered the housing target because of the restraints which can and should be imposed by them. The guide on housing need came in before the above paper, which said that if the Council is unable to build houses without impinging on the Green Belt then it wouldn't need to build so many houses. The policy S2 specifically goes against the rulings and guidance of national policy and the adopted wording of the draft plan in Policy S1.

In view of the above it would be logical to apply constraints in line with government policy to a revised OAN figure of 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt, and development is not supported by adequate infrastructure. I am informed that this would be in line with the 50% constraints applied by Woking Borough Council. This would result in a much more acceptable and achievable housing target of 200 homes per annum totalling 4000 over 20 years of the plan. Thus all these homes could be built on existing urban brownfield land, where there is also existing suitable infrastructure.

Having reviewed the new evidence, Guildford’s proposal for more than 12,426 homes and a buffer of 1,155 homes, is excessive and will result in needless loss of Green Belt and green character, and increased congestion, that cannot be justified in our heavily constrained borough.

Allocating too much land for development in the 2017 Plan will also result in Guildford being required to provide homes for Woking on our Green Belt which is folly given the constraints in Guildford, a gap town with constricted roads set in the Surrey Hills AONB.

Even taking account of all the proposals in the 2017 Plan, congestion which is already severe is set to get worse over the plan period.

Finally, I believe that the current “salami slicing” tactics will result in the end of the competitive advantages that Surrey has over the other counties that border London (and indeed the areas around other capital cities across Europe). A more strategic approach is needed that will create the housing needed in much larger developments. Developments that will include new houses, medical and shopping centres and modest office accommodation in the way that was achieved with the Goldsworth Park development outside Woking.

General objections

I object. Overall the Draft Plan does not appear to be well thought through or reliably evidenced. There is an opportunity for the Plan to lead the way in sustainable policies and brownfield development which it completely fails to do, preferring instead to use green field sites which maximise short term profit for developers at the expense of others.

To be clear I do not object to housing development per se. The rising population must be accommodated. However, I do object to Guildford Borough having more development than surrounding boroughs and to disproportionate green field (and Green Belt) development being proposed when options for brownfield development in urban centres with appropriate supporting infrastructure have not be fully explored.

There is a housing need for lower income earners, and social housing for others including vulnerable persons. The Plan does nothing to address this and everything to support the development of larger homes that are unaffordable to these groups: the developer profit motive appears to have disproportionately influenced the Draft Plan. I object to this approach which must change.

Calculating the overall number of houses needed (Policy S2)

I object. The Plan must revise the number of houses required, probably considerably downwards, in the light of the referendum decision to leave the EU. Even if there was no Brexit, the number of houses proposed by the plan fails to take account of the geo-location of Guildford Borough with adjoining population centres and the transport links to them. The number developed does not account for adjacent boroughs such as Rushmoor and Mole Valley, nor the Impact of the London commuter populations. Better market data should be sought to provide a reliable basis to the Plan. The resulting Plan shows lopsided distribution of new housing with adjacent neighbours developing far less and Guildford Borough more. The absence of objective scrutiny on the consultant’s assumptions and projections removes confidence in this Plan as a basis for future housing development in the Borough.

I OBJECT to the New Local Plan which has ignored the issues and concerns raised in my previous objection to the last plan. For example, the housing plans for developing Ockham (Three Farms Meadows) have been proved to be unsuitable for the area and rejected by Guildford Borough Council yet it appears in the New Plan as a strategic site which allows it to be considered for housing development more easily in future.

'Focus on sustainable growth' - there is nothing sustainable in this plan. Land in the green belt is to be lost and the huge number of houses proposed for our area will adversely affect and degrade the environment and lead to more pollution. How can a 35% increase in housing for the Horsleys be considered sustainable? 'Focus on substantial growth to the detriment of the environment' is a better assessment.

Addresses future housing, employment and infrastructure' - There is no guarantee that this plan addresses future housing as it does not provide truly affordable housing. Affordable housing in our area is a mockery as these houses are priced at £750,000 plus, which is well out of the reach of the young and people on medium incomes. The need for Council homes has been ignored. Possible employment opportunities are being reduced in our area such as the local camp site which is likely to be replaced by a housing estate. Plans for infrastructure have been kicked into the long grass and there will be a breakdown in services as the infrastructure is not fit for purpose now. 'Ignore future housing, employment and infrastructure needs' is the plan's proposal for West Horsley.

1. BROWNFIELD AVAILABLE

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing.

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

I object to Policy S2 on a number of grounds:

1. Almost every element of the Plan is predicated on the OAN adopted as the housing number. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. The algorithm used to calculate this number has been declared commercially sensitive and has not been revealed. I believe this number to have been seriously overstated before the BREXIT referendum but it is utterly without foundation now.

2. The number is based on a Housing Market Area (HMA): “West Surrey” comprised of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. Rushmoor is excluded in spite of it being easily reached from Guildford town centre. “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford Borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton, Haslemere, Reigate, Redhill and Basingstoke but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

3. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The Plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get Planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

4. The OAN/housing number of 13860 is not as fixed as it would appear. The number of homes proposed, plus existing Planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. There are references in the evidence base documents to the possible need to make up shortfalls in Woking’s provision and the “Sustainability Assessment” carried out for the Council came up with a preferred figure of 15860 houses. It is unreasonable to embark on the most extensive transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. The scale of the development proposed increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound.

5. The Plan in general and this policy in particular do not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. In this area the demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited. The increase in the supply of housing in Guildford will simply result in a shift of population into the area. “Affordability” is not a fixed sum but is dependent on market prices. The Plan will not reduce prices or increase affordability except at the margins. There is now recognition that in central London, where urban regeneration has transformed many districts and the term “inner city decay” is out-of-date, it is now the outer London suburbs that require regeneration. Over the period of the Local Plan, this process should be factored in to housing needs in areas such as Guildford, and could reduce the rate of outward movement from London.

6. This policy does not take proper account of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by topographic and infrastructure limitations. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints and that this has not happened. This approach differs from the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan is based on the assumption that “growth is good”. More consumption, more congestion, more Green Belt being taken - this is not a sustainable strategy.

7. The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon, Ripley and Send in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm will put severe strain on the road infrastructure in and around West Clandon which will be unable to cope. The proposed A3 slip roads at Burnt Common will make matters much worse. There will be a significant increase in traffic flows along the A247 through West Clandon, funnelling into several pinch points which are under 5 metres wide. Here, two lorries cannot pass without one mounting the pavement, along which young children are walking on their way to the village school. The edge of urban Guildford will be moved much closer to West Clandon. Guildford’s edge will be built on Green Belt land which was zoned to safeguard the countryside from encroachment and check the sprawl of large built up areas.
8. The Plan is out of balance in proposing 65% of housing on the Green Belt and 36% in the three wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon and Horsley. These are rural areas whose identities will be greatly and detrimentally changed by these proposals.

I object to the proposed increase in the number of Travellers’ pitches. [Response has been redacted due to statements being considered contrary to the Council’s duty under the Equalities Act 2010 to eliminate discrimination, harassment, victimisation against persons with a protected characteristic; and to foster good relations between persons with a protected characteristic and persons who do not share it]

[Summary of redacted paragraph: Objection to the proposal for additional traveller pitches, often in the Green Belt. The proposal would increase tension with the non-traveller community and have social, economic and environmental impacts]

The open-ended wording of the numbers to be permitted (at least 73 “or any new target as identified within an updated Traveller Accommodation Assessment”) is dangerous.

2. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

1. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

2. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

3. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Developers must use the many brown-field sites identified in the Borough before any other sites are even considered. Developers (and some Councillors) put profit above every else, leaving the taxpayer to pick up the ongoing bill for inappropriate development and inadequate infrastructure improvement.

We want government at all levels to show vision and innovation in development matters, and to conduct planning with due diligence and integrity, as it is the future of their own families at stake as well.

MISUSE OF GUILDFORD TOWN CENTRE AND EXISTING BROWNFIELD SITES

I OBJECT to these proposals.

There is a fundamental flaw in the draft Local Plan, in that there are not enough dwellings planned in urban areas, in particular, Guildford town centre.

There is falling demand for retail space in town centres throughout the country as internet shopping continues to grow (see independent research and CEBR studies). Guildford is a prime example. What Guildford needs is a new focus on speciality high quality shopping supported by a revival of the town’s heritage core, historic visitor attractions and a diverse selection of restaurants.

As an existing urban centre, it should furthermore receive a larger share of proposed new housing by making use of its brownfield sites.
Paragraph 17 of the NPPF states that to “encourage the effective use of land by reusing land that has been previously developed (brownfield land)” is a core planning principle. Paragraph 80 of the NPPF clearly states that Green Belt serves a key purpose, “to assist in urban regeneration, by encouraging the recycling of derelict land and other urban land”. In order to comply with central planning policy we need a brownfield strategy.

Strategic policies - Policy S2 Borough Wide Strategy.

This policy has the objective of adding over 13,000 new homes over the 15 year period, which equates to an annual build of 693 homes per year. This is a net increase of 25% in the housing stock, whilst the ONS is projecting a population increase of 15%. There is no adequate explanation for this discrepancy.

The West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (SHMA) is faulty in that it estimates 517 houses as the demographic starting point which is what the ONS predicts but then adds in additional homes to “support economic growth”, which is already factored into the ONS statistics. A further 31 homes per annum are included to “improve affordability” where the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 already includes that most development sites would include 40% of their homes as affordable.

My reading of the document is that GBC are trying to convey that the housing numbers are needed to fulfil the NPPF requirements based on central government policies whereas the numbers are based on local and political aims.

I therefore object to the housing targets set out in Policy S2

POLICY S2: BOROUGHWIDE STRATEGY: Object
• The Draft Plan does provide evidence of need for 13,040 new homes. No rationale is given for how this number has been arrived at.
• Guildford Borough Council does not say whether the number of houses they want built is more, less or the same as this figure. A housing target is needed for residents of the borough to take a considered view about the proposals.
• Increasing the size of West Horsley as proposed will change the character of the village and put significant strain on local infrastructure.

I object to the approach to consultation that the Council is taking. The Council withdrew the 2014 draft Local Plan following an outcry from residents. During its re-drafting, instead of arriving at a sensible alternative the Council has changed every major site in Send and added a massive new road junction. It beggars belief that the Council could on one hand state that they listened to residents, whilst on the other hand increase the planned housing levels in the village. Either way, the proposed changes are significant and therefore require another full consultation under Regulation 18, not the short-cut of Regulation 19 which the Council is using.

I object to the exaggerated housing need figure in the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment on which the Draft Local Plan is based. The Council has declined to provide any objective evidence to substantiate the projected housing numbers, which in my view is far in excess of reality. In particular, I believe the calculation of foreign students has been wrongly used to inflate the housing need. Furthermore, the housing number is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

I object to the fact that the impact on infrastructure has not been considered sufficiently. Current infrastructure is utterly inadequate to deal with proposed new housing levels. Roads, doctors and schools will be unable to cope. Yet no tangible resolution has been proposed.

I regularly cycle in and around the villages of Send, Ripley,

I object to the development of the 400 houses at Galick’s Arch. It was included in the Local Plan at the last possible moment, with no prior local consultation It is not required in terms of housing need either for the village or the borough.

I also object to the development of the 400 houses at Galick’s Arch on the basis that the site is liable to severe flooding. The ancient woodland is a particularly sensitive area that must not be disrupted in any way.

I object to the fact that this site was not included in the Regulation 18 draft and has not been consulted upon previously. Full consultation is required.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I strongly object to the implementation of the GBC local plan.

There is NO Plan, that recognizes the existing borough’s settlement patterns, existing business or existing infrastructure. This plan does not create a good blueprint for the future by provides for an economic, social, and environmentally sustainable plan for the future of the borough.

This is a short term plan with an eye fully focussed on the government subsidies to be gained from new homes bonuses from central government and CIL and section 106, it does not plan for the borough in a way our children and our children’s children will thank us for accepting.

I would remind you that in 2009 Guildford Borough Council successfully challenged the Government’s South East Plan (SEP) to build 422 homes a year – 100 more than initially recommended by the South East England Regional Assembly – so the figure should be 322 homes a year.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

I wish to register my opposition to the Local Plan.

In general I object to the proposed severe reduction in the Green Belt. This is not justified by the Plan, which includes highly dubious claims about housing needs but which, even if true, could be fully met using existing brownfield areas in and around Guildford which would in any case be much closer to existing facilities and infrastructure. And there is also a significant amount of land supposedly belonging to the University which does not appear to be considered for development, even for student accommodation. To attack the Green Belt now would destroy forever a valuable and attractive rural landscape which also supports essential wildlife and local recreational activity.

Number of New Houses Proposed

Whilst we must all take our fair share of new housing to meet the current demand, the number proposed for West Horsley seems vastly out of proportion when the size of the village is considered. I understand that it will be a 35% increase in the number of homes in our small village. This is not sustainable.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
A lot of work has gone into the Local Plan. It is obvious for anyone who has read through the Local Plan that the Guildford Borough Council’s civil servants have done an excellent job with the brief that were given. Unfortunately the brief does not address the borough’s needs adequately.

The situation we find ourselves in and in need to remediate is the result of the short-sighted 13 years of Conservative leadership of the GBC. We are in need of housing, both social as well as for the professionals in low to average income jobs that support Guildford’s borough; nurses, police officers, retail workers, bus drivers and a raft of other professionals struggle to find affordable accommodation within Guildford. This results in most of them living outside Guildford and commuting into town, resulting in part in the traffic gridlock most of us experience on a daily basis trying to traverse the city centre. The policies put forward by the GBC do not address the needs of our Borough.

We are calling on the Council to respect the nature and character of our villages and impose a maximum development target of 20% housing every four years (of the total number of houses envisioned in the Local Plan).

1. I object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 12,426 new homes, which is only a small reduction on the previous figure of 13,860. These numbers are still based on an overly high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no direct consultation with any residents. They remain too high as shown by an objective assessment made by the report made for the Guildford Residents Association (GRA) by Neil MacDonald (independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics).
2. Also in Policy S2 housing numbers, I object to the fact that downward economic pressures (including Brexit) have been adequately accounted for. Additionally in Policy E1, E2 there is too much emphasis is on providing retail and commercial in Guildford town centre, when the pattern of business is changing and more town centre housing is needed rather than retail. This would ease the pressure on housing on the Green Belt.
3. I object to the population growth figures in section 2.3, which have actually increased by almost 5000. By returning to a 2014 evidence base, I feel this does not account for more recent political and economic changes.
4. Furthermore, I object to Policy S2 because I believe the 12,426 homes includes estimated demand from London, and also now possibly from Woking’s perceived unmet need, and I feel Guildford will become a dormitory town for London and the surrounding areas, rather than meeting the needs of residents of Guildford Borough.
5. I object to the fact that in Policy S2, despite the afore mentioned slight apparent reduction in overall housing numbers and industrial space, the reduction is mostly in Normandy/Flexford and the load on the East of the borough is still disproportionate and has even increased.

Housing.

The scale of housing proposed will severely impact road congestion and the use of local amenities. The proposed growth is anything but organic and would require a fundamental review of amenity availability and use, which is lacking from the current proposals.

Relative size of proposed developments

The level of development proposed within East and West Horsley at 35% is vastly out of proportion to that of the size of developments within the rest of the county. The village cannot accommodate that level of development without major investment in infrastructure and other local provisions.

Village character

The proposed high-density housing sites within the villages are totally out of character with the current low density settlement, and will have a big impact on village life. It may not be the most picturesque of villages within the area, but there are historic buildings within it, and the village has a strong community. New housing developments should maintain the sensitivity of this.

Summary

I welcome the construction of new houses in the area in a sustainable fashion, in line with the sensitivities of the area, and within the capabilities of the village infrastructure and services. As outlined above, the current proposals are inadequate and do not meet the requirements outlined by government. I therefore hope that you will reject the proposals in their current state.

I object to the plan’s housing figure put forward of 13,860 houses. In addition to questions already being raised about the accuracy of the model used to obtain this figure, it is also pre Brexit, so most likely the figures will need to be reduced significantly. A lesser, more appropriate housing target, could then be accommodated using mainly Brownfield sites.

I object to the proposed disproportionate allocation of new houses across the borough. When looking at the existing numbers of houses in the Horsleys, we would be having an increase of 35%, compared to eg. urban Guildford which is only allocated 11%. Such a high density housing development would completely change the character of our small villages forever.

I object to Guildford Borough Council not looking closely enough for suitable Brownfield sites in urban Guildford which should be targeted first for development. These sites would mean the Green Belt is not destroyed and on a more practical level, they already have the infrastructure in place eg sustainable transport options, to cope with the increased numbers.

I object in the strongest possible terms to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). This Plan is unsustainable, unworkable and, in many provisions, unnecessary.

I set out below my objections to specific policies and matters within the Plan.

In particular, as a resident of West Clandon, living on The Street, I am concerned that the infrastructure is not sufficient, in particular the road through West Clandon will not support the additional traffic that development will bring. The road is already dangerous as the number of accidents attest.

I object in the strongest possible terms to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). This Plan is unsustainable, unworkable and, in many provisions, unnecessary.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.
The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.
It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I drive to my place of work each day from West Horsley. My route takes in the A3 and M25. I am acutely aware that the local road structure is completely unsuitable for today’s level of traffic. The queues every day on the A3, both north and south, on the M25 access roads, in both directions, and on the M25 itself, are totally unacceptable. It is a vital imperative that the Authorities take immediate and major action to relieve the congestion that is currently choking our roads. This is the situation today, and before any consideration of the significant increase in commuter vehicles as a result of these ‘plans’. I believe that there are further very large developments planned for nearby areas such as Burnt Common and Burpham. I see considerable unemployment and urban degeneration resulting simply from the inability to travel to any place of work.

This is, of course only one area where the infrastructure is totally overwhelmed. Many people, more qualified than me will explain the equally, or probably even more important, impossible situation with regards to schools, medical facilities, shops and public transport and other aspects of local infrastructure. None of these appear to have been adequately addressed.

I object to (policy S2) as the plan is unbalanced with too much proposed in the north east of the borough with large developments in Ripley/Send (A43) Clandon (A25) and Wisley (A35) and will result in the urbanization of these important villages which do not have the infrastructure to cope with such an increase.

The protection of the Green Belt, the Lungs of London, has been of paramount importance to generations and should be upheld at all costs.

It is known that pollution from traffic is detrimental to the brains of growing children and no good for the health of anyone. Development on the scale recommended is tantamount to murder. In particular, the building of the A3 Ripley Bypass some 40 years ago was to avoid the blockage and unreasonable amount of traffic going through Ripley. What does the Council think will happen now with so much proposed development to the traffic on our local roads? It is a 'no brainer' except for the very stupid. We will be back to square one, just as we were when a Guildford bypass had to be built to avoid the bypass that was already there.

Parking in Ripley is impossible for residents. As an ageing resident of Ripley I have to walk a mile to get to the shops and am unable to carry anything heavy home apart from the newspaper and perhaps some milk and the odd vegetable. How much longer I shall be able to continue to do this is in the lap of the gods. We have been promised proper parking in Ripley ever since I moved here in 1975 and almost as soon as it was provided it was taken away for development and the smaller car park there now provides parking for the "affordable housing" development recently built on it.

The housing proposed for Send was initially 435, then on the amended plan, (after a sustained and effective campaign by the Save send Action Group), 185, now on the latest plan, 485 houses. The proposals have changed each time not only as regards the number of houses to be built, but also their location. This suggests the Council has never had a clear plan - rather it smacks of desperately making policy on the hoof. It does not inspire the confidence of residents in the planning process on something that is going to affect them for decades to come. The proposals as regards the Send, Send Marsh and Burnt Common area are utterly disproportionate - the areas on the edge of the Borough closest to Woking are being asked to bear an entirely inappropriate amount of the development proposed in the Guildford Local Plan. I do not object to all development in the area, so trust I cannot be accused of "Nimbyism".

1. I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity. Any development of housing should take place within the bounds of the Guildford Urban Area where sufficient public transport exists (the council having cut public transport out to the villages) and could be used by commuters. The very last thing that is needed is housing where the occupiers would require cars for commuting as that will just make the traffic problems in the area worse.

2. I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

1. Highways England have already indicated that the A3 is at overcapacity, having objected to further parking at the Royal Surrey County Hospital on the grounds that it would increase traffic problems on the A3. Any proposed development outside the town boundary will just put further pressure on the local road network.

4.1.9 Noted that North Street is now included as a Strategic Site.

Housing numbers now given, rising from 450pa to 850pa over the 15 year period.2019 to 2034, totaling 9,810. This leaves 2,616 to be delivered during the four years 2015 to 2019, an average of 654 per year. This looks unrealistic compared with the numbers for the subsequent four years 2019 to 2023, which total 1,900. I do not understand why the table in the LAA shows a target of 654 for the first four years. For all subsequent years the targets follow an upward profile. Why not start at 380, the 2015/16 net completions, and profile up more steeply from there? The early deficit would then largely be removed. The use of 654 for the first four years appears to be highly arbitrary. Furthermore the sudden start of so many sites in 2019/20 seems highly artificial. However I support the general strategy proposed, except that the total number of new homes needed is less than 12,426.
“4.1.9a The figures set out in the Annual Housing Target table sum to a total of 12,426 homes.” This is not made obvious: see above.

4.1.9b It is not clear in the Plan where the crucial evidence is for the rolling five year supply in the short term. A Table roughly like Table 1 should be replaced by a diagram which gives a broad brush picture of how the housing target will be delivered over time (i.e. the diagram in the LAA). Some of the key LAA information should be brought into the Plan.

An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guilford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Having written to voice my concerns and objections, as an East Horsley resident, during the 2014 consultation period, I now write to express my concerns about the new Guildford Local Plan, particularly as it relates to the Horsleys, Effingham, Ockham and Wisley. I am not opposed to housing development, per se, and, as I live on a council estate, I am not driven by concern about a reduction in the value of my property. I am, however, concerned that, despite the undoubted time and money that has been spent on consultation and map work, the proposals lack coherence and seem to have been driven by an arbitrary mathematical model of projected housing need in Guildford Borough which is well in excess of the official national estimates for local population growth. The proposed scale of housing increase is out of all proportion to the character of these villages. In addition, the proposals also do not seem to cater for a mixed population which, given that it is the youngest and the poorest in our society who have the greatest need of accommodation, calls into question the drive to build so many new, large and very expensive properties unless it is just for profit.

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey. Why do you need to buck the trend?

The proposed Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there is a lot of development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]).

That is 36% of all the proposed Plan’s new housing proposed within this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing. Is this because the members of GBC do not live in these areas (as has been reported) and so are biased in their decisions?

<td>There are many brownfield sites available in the Guildford town centre which at the moment is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. These sites would be enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing. Surrey University already has planning permission for more than 1,500 accommodation units on its own brownfield campus but for several years has postponed this development. If the University were to complete this development, much of the town centre affordable accommodation would be available for rental/purchase.</td>

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2).

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri- borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt.

It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done.
The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The road infrastructure in West Clandon has the added disadvantage that West Clandon is a linear village and the road through it is narrow in places with many bends and poor visibility for access for pedestrians and vehicles alike. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I believe that the evidence used for population growth (an OAN of 12,426) is incorrect, giving a major overestimate of likely future housing needs. This is in part due to under-recording of students leaving after finishing their studies and due to an unacceptably low proposal of the proportion of students who should be accommodated on campus.

Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.
The Plan in general, and this policy in particular, does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. I object to the proposed use of greenbelt sites in the Plan when the opportunity to use brownfield sites has clearly not been properly explored. Development of the greenbelt should only occur in exceptional circumstances.

The University of Surrey should fulfil its obligation to provide much more student accommodation on campus, thus freeing up local housing for normal residential use.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn. The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high.

I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound.

A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole. Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.” Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”.

This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement. However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt. A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum. The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan. The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald. He is an independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit. NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra.
homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth.

The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.

There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.

The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast. A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA

The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.

2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.

3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.

4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction. Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target. The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards. It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed. The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan. Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt.
THE NEED TO APPLY CONSTRAINTS

Ministerial guidance in relation to building on the Green Belt is clear:

1. “the single issue of unmet need - is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development in the Green Belt” - Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 7th February 2014.

2. “we were always very clear that we would maintain key protections for the countryside, and, in particular, for the Green Belt. The Framework makes it clear that a Green Belt boundary may be altered only in exceptional circumstances and reiterates the importance and permanence of the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Michael Pitt, Planning Inspectorate 3rd March 2014.

3. “Planning Guidance, updated in March 2014, also states that unmet housing need is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt to constitute the very special circumstances justifying inappropriate development within the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 18th June 2014.

70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply.

Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries. Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements). Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 693 per annum to 500. In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council. This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 250 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 5,000 homes. All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 20,000 objections made by residents to the 2014 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure. It would also mean that there is currently 8.5 years supply of housing (2131/250) which is made up of existing permissions granted (1,518) and completions made (613) during 2013/2015. (Monitoring Report by GBC 2015) The Brexit vote may have strengthened government policy further. Theresa May, the new prime minister, announced on 11 July that she is personally committed to protecting the Green Belt once she takes office. Whilst I have many significant objections to the GBC Local Plan I applaud the policy statement by GBC in their Monitoring Report, “We will continue to monitor the use of previously developed land, and continue to identify as many opportunities as possible for redevelopment of previously developed land.” I believe it will be to the benefit of all residents if GBC can apply themselves vigorously to this endeavour in order to protect the Green Belt.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

To elaborate further, the proposed increase in the population of the areas affected by the June 2016 Plan substantially exceeds any increase arising from “organic” growth of the existing resident population of the Borough.

It is also clear that the primary beneficiaries for removing areas from the green belt protection are not the existing Borough residents but are

1. property developers together with a small number of people with vested interests in such developments taking place, and
2. people not living in the borough who might become potential new residents as a result of housing developments in current green belt areas.

There is absolutely no sound case as to why priority should be given to the interests of groups i and ii over the interests of the existing Borough residents. In fact, clearly the contrary is the case.

It is clear that there is overwhelming support for retaining the protection for our green belt areas in the Borough. The open and accountable local government required these days, demands that the Borough Council follow the views of the majority of the Borough population on the issues of:

1. What sort of size of increase in the resident population numbers we want to have in the Borough as a whole.
2. What sort of percentage increase in housing numbers is acceptable to existing communities within the Borough.
3. What types of housing developments the existing communities want to see in their areas.
4. Which alternatives, Green Belt or other sites, we want to see used for the proposed new housing developments.
5. The committed and Council-funded increases to infrastructure that need to be in place ready to support new housing developments before these swamp existing facilities.

1. I object to the large proposed development at 2,000 houses at Wisley Airfield, 2,000 houses at Gosden Hill and 1,850 houses at Blackwell Farm because it will destroy large areas of Green Belt and agricultural land and produce congestion on the A3 and surrounding roads including The land at Wisley Airfield is adjacent to land with endangered species and any development could harm those species.

1. I object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity. Any development of housing should take place within the bounds of the Guildford Urban Area where sufficient public transport exists (the council having cut public transport out to the villages) and could be used by The very last thing that is needed is housing where the occupiers would require cars for commuting as that will just make the traffic problems in the area worse.

1. I object to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

WE OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.
c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA.
It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere;
unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.
These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it.
The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.
It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
2) I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of the new housing be built within the Green Belt. There is ample brownfield land in the urban areas which needs to be regenerated, without the need to encroach on protected Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are for no good reason being forgotten and ignored.

3) I object to the disproportionate allocation of this new housing in this particular part of the borough which means that over 23% of the Plan’s new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2).

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand.

The road infrastructure in West Clandon has the added disadvantage that West Clandon is a linear village and the road through it is narrow in places with many bends and poor visibility for access for pedestrians and vehicles alike. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

Document:  Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites 2017 / Policy S2

- Some 295 houses in various smaller developments in West Horsley, 100 in Send and 15 in Ripley. These will generate traffic on the A 247 to access the A3.
- My objections to increased traffic on the A247 through West Clandon are outlined more fully elsewhere but include: (i) although notionally an A-road the A247 is narrow and winding in parts and is most unsuited to carrying additional traffic, (ii) the A247 has a single non-continuous footpath in several sections, (iii) a care home, a church car park and a pub, as well as very many houses, are located on the opposite side of the road to the only footpath, making pedestrian access difficult for people moving about the village on foot, especially for elderly and disabled people; (iv) the railway station and other commercial and residential properties have poor sight lines for access onto the A247 and difficulties in accessing the A247 from these properties will be exacerbated by increased traffic volume (and fewer “gaps” between cars); (v) the A247 is popular with cyclists and because of its narrow and winding nature the potential for accidents that additional traffic will cause is clear.
- The A247 may be an A-road on the map but in reality it is a residential road with numerous bends, narrow sections and side-entrances. The road through West Clandon already has numerous accident black spots, such as: (I) the exit from Clandon station which has extremely poor sight lines due to a humped back bridge where numerous accidents have occurred; (ii) the exit from the Onslow Arms pub which is almost blind due to the pub building being adjacent the road - a vehicle has recently ended up in the garden of the cottage opposite;
(iii) the narrow section outside “Summers” which is regularly littered with the wing mirrors of cars which have made contact, as well as being a dangerous area for pedestrians due to vehicles mounting the pavement to try to pass; (iv) the winding section outside Clandon Regis and near the primary school which regularly suffers from demolition of gate posts and fences as vehicles leave the road; (v) the bend near West Clandon church which has seen damage caused to the flint wall in recent years.

All of these developments will draw additional traffic to the A247 through the village. It would be naïve to think that the employment sites and schools will serve only the developments themselves. Apart from the normal movements of residents to and from the new sites there will be considerable additional traffic on the A247 generated by:

- children from elsewhere being delivered to schools and collected
- the employees of the offices and industrial sites getting to work and returning home
- the vehicle movements generated by distribution and storage activities
- traffic from Wisley wishing to travel south and returning
- traffic from Gosden Hill wishing to travel south and returning
- traffic from Slyfield wishing to travel south and returning
- private and commercial traffic originating in the south and accessing Gosden Hill, Burnt Common or the A3 and returning (including traffic from Dunsfold)

The A247 although an A road:

- is less than 2 vehicle wide in places. Larger vehicles routinely mount the (only) pavement to pass one another in the narrow sections.
- does not have continuous footpaths
- has a footpath only on one side of the road in long sections, including sections with pub, care home and church car park
- has several sharp bends
- has a hump-backed bridge with poor sight lines
- has other entrances with poor sight lines (eg Onslow Arms, church car park)
- has a very difficult junction to access the station
- is largely unlit
- has a primary school
- is already very congested at times, more so when delays on the A3 are severe, which is common in the evening rush hours (4pm to 630pm) and summer weekends
- cuts through the Conservation Area of West Clandon within which 19 listed buildings are located with road frontage. A further 9 listed buildings are located on the A247 in West Clandon north of the Conservation Area.

The A247 is in reality a residential road with numerous bends, narrow sections and side-entrances. The road through West Clandon already has numerous accident black spots, such as: (I) the exit from Clandon station which has extremely poor sight lines due to a humped back bridge where numerous accidents have occurred; (ii) the exit from the Onslow Arms pub which is almost blind due to the pub building being adjacent the road - a vehicle has recently ended up in the garden of the cottage opposite; (iii) the narrow section outside “Summers” which is regularly littered with the wing mirrors of cars which have made contact, as well as being a dangerous area for pedestrians due to vehicles mounting the pavement to try to pass; (iv) the winding section outside Clandon Regis and near the primary school which regularly suffers from demolition of gate posts and fences as vehicles leave the road; (v) the bend near West Clandon church which has seen damage caused to the flint wall in recent years.

Changes to the Plan have done nothing to alleviate the problems (particularly of traffic and congestion) raised in residents’ previous responses. Indeed it is now clear that the problems will be made much worse. There do not appear to be any changes which would be of benefit to the Clandons and indeed the cumulative effect of what is in the Plan and some external factors not in the Plan will have a much worse impact on the A247 through West Clandon and Send than the 2016 draft. Note that the A247 is the only road over, i.e. without a height restriction, the Guildford to Waterloo railway, north east of Guildford, which doesn’t involve travelling through the town centre and is already busy.

in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I object to Guildford Borough Council’s Draft Local Plan, June 2016. From consultation with others I have concluded that the Plan is unsound and unsustainable. My objections mainly relate to Housing Numbers, Infrastructure and Green Belt issues.

Housing: There is lack of evidence to support the alleged need for 693 new homes annually; double the previously quoted calculation and significantly higher than another independent estimate which I am aware of. That would mean about 40% of the total increase being built within a small radius of Burpham where I live. This, I believe, is disproportionately high.

Policy S2 states:

“During the plan period (2013-33), we will make provision for 13,860 new homes, 37,200 – 47,200 sq m of office and research and development (B1a and b) floorspace and 4.7 – 5.3 hectares of industrial (B1c, B2 and B8) employment land to help meet the needs for new homes, support the economy and supply 3,200 additional B class jobs.

The delivery of homes is expected to increase over the plan period, reflective of timescales associated with the delivery of strategic sites and infrastructure. The housing target each year is as set out below, however, this is not a ceiling, and earlier delivery of allocated sites will be supported where appropriate, subject to infrastructure provision.”

The RHS are supportive of this strategy and the provision of new homes and employment land across the Borough from strategic, allocated and non-allocated sites. Wisley Village provides opportunities for new housing subject to policy.

We have prepared representations on behalf of our client, the Royal Horticultural Society (RHS), in response to the June 2017 Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites (Reg 19). These representations should be read in conjunction with those dated 14 July 2016 submitted against the Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites (June 2016)) (see Appendix 1), submitted on the 22 September 2014 against the Local Plan Strategy and Sites Draft Local Plan (July 2014) and 27 November 2013 submitted against the Issues and Options Draft Local Plan (October 2013) (Appendix 2) in relation to both Wisley garden and village.

Background

As set out in previous representations, RHS Wisley is the flagship garden for the Royal Horticultural Society. The Society is the UK’s leading horticultural charity and for over 200 years has promoted the Science, Art and Practice of Horticulture. The reach of the RHS is very broad, encompassing gardeners, schoolchildren, the horticultural trade and the science community, all worldwide. These activities and principles have become embedded at RHS Wisley for over a century and the 1905 Laboratory building remains the focus for the Gardens. Surrounding this is approximately 200 acres of formal and informal gardens, glass houses and outbuildings. In addition, Wisley Village is largely owned by the Society and supports the operation of the Garden and in particular the Society’s educational activity by accommodating students and science activities through specialist research buildings and trial fields.

RHS Wisley is the top paid attraction within the Borough of Guildford and is the largest tourist attraction within Surrey, currently drawing in more than 1.2 million visitors a year, and targeted to rise to 1.4m by 2023. This is of national significance, compared with some 0.8 million at the Eden Project and 1.3 million at the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew. The gardens are of international significance through its global reach and proximity to international airports at Heathrow and Gatwick. With some 400 staff and more than 200 volunteers engaged at Wisley the site is a significant employer and generator of financial activity within the borough.

We suggest that the significance of the Society as a contributor to the Borough is given as much prominence in the Plan as for example Surrey University and Watts Gallery that are included. With the volume of staff and volunteers engaged at Wisley the site is a significant employer and generator of financial activity within the Borough.
The charitable purpose of the RHS is to inspire passion and excellence in the science, art and practice of horticulture. RHS Wisley is vital to the ability of the charity to deliver its purpose. The Garden is the most effective tool for educating the public (both adults and children) about horticultural skills for growing food and ornamental plants, science and environmental issues, as well as design It also acts as the base for all its public facing outreach work, including in local communities and schools.

The RHS has recently undertaken a comprehensive masterplanning process exploring the suitability of the existing ageing facilities and infrastructure at Wisley to meet the RHS’s longer term objectives as set out within the Masterplan Vision. This identified improvements to existing facilities at the Garden that are necessary to accommodate the projected increase in visitor numbers, and the Society has now embarked on a major investment at Wisley as part of a Strategic Investment Programme that is a step change to the Society’s charitable delivery and national profile. It is a pivotal moment for the RHS.

The following projects have been identified through the masterplanning process as being necessary to accommodate this growth at Wisley:

- Improvement to the garden entrance and retail facilities;
- Enhancement of the Laboratory building;
- A new National Centre for Horticultural Science and Learning;
- New office accommodation for a larger work and volunteer force;
- Improvement to the horticultural support (machinery yard and glass houses); and
- A new staff car park to avoid conflict with visitors.

This masterplan is now in the process of being implemented and the following planning applications have been consented:

- The Barn (application reference: 17/P/00796 (approved on 1 June 2016)) – New office accommodation;
- Hilltop (application reference: 16/P/00976 (approved on 30 September 2016)) – A new National Centre for Horticultural Science, and Learning;
- Front of House (application reference: 16/P/01080 & 16/P/01081 (approved on 30 September 2016)) - Improvement to the garden entrance and retail facilities and enhancement of the Laboratory building; and
- New Substations (application reference: 16/P/01037 (approved on 22 July 2016)).

The RHS want to ensure that the Local Plan supports the delivery of the masterplan for Wisley and the continual improvement of the Garden, for itself and as part of the local community. The GBC Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites Reg. 19 document forms the final consultation version of the GBC Local Plan following the consultation of the Proposed Local Plan Strategy and Sites Document in the summer of 2016.

Below we set out our representations on behalf of the RHS in response to the Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites document.

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy

Policy S2 states:

“During the plan period (2015-34), we will make provision for at least 12,426 new homes, 36,000 – 43,700 sq m of office and research and development (B1a and b) floorspace and 3.7 – 4.1 hectares of industrial (B1c, B2 and B8) employment land to help meet the needs for new homes, support the economy and supply 3,200 additional B class jobs. The delivery of homes is expected to increase over the plan period, reflective of timescales associated with the delivery of strategic sites and infrastructure. The housing target each year is as set out below, however, this is not a ceiling, and earlier delivery of allocated sites will be supported where appropriate, subject to infrastructure provision.”

The RHS are supportive of this strategy and the provision of new homes and employment land across the Borough from strategic, allocated and non-allocated sites. Wisley Village and the RHS owned land there, provides opportunities for new housing subject to other policies within the plan. As part of the RHS strategy the village is now being managed to provide increased open market lettings that contribute to housing needs.
I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or... other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.
1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clndon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Objectively Assessed Housing Need

The West Surrey SHMA 2015 concluded that there was an objectively assessed need for 13,860 dwellings (693dpa) in Guildford Borough. This conclusion was based on drawing together the following threads:

- The SHMA calculated an expected employment growth of 13,860 in the borough over the Plan period 2013-2033 giving rise to 693dpa;
- This figure was then adjusted to include:
  - Affordability pressures - Both across the HMA and in Guildford Borough itself, affordability has long been recognised as a critical issue. The level of households per year that are expected to require support to meet their housing needs and thus be eligible for affordable housing is significant at 455 households per year. A significant proportion of these are younger households. The SHMA responded to this level of need by seeking to improve affordability through adjusting the household formation rates to the 2001 level arising in a need of 668 dpa;
  - Student growth - A higher than anticipated level of growth in the student population than previously assumed in the demographic analysis and taking into account planning assumptions that a greater proportion of students would live in households rather than university managed accommodation; The Guildford Addendum Report, 2017 has been published to the West Surrey SHMA 2015 and has been used to inform the number of houses planned for over the lifetime of the Local Plan 2013 - 2033. The 2017 Addendum concludes that there is a need for 12,426 homes between 2015-2034 (654dpa), some 50 dpa less than the 2015 SHMA Report.

There would appear to be an over-reliance on economic factors affecting the housing requirement in a climate with much uncertainty with Brexit negotiations currently at an embryonic stage. The extent of the impact depends on international negotiations that are yet to take place and the government’s future policy response. This means that any estimates made will be subject to a high degree of uncertainty. The NAO Analysis Report July 2017 confirms that ‘Uncertainty will continue to remain for some time around the forms that trading relationships will eventually take after the UK leaves the EU’.

In the current climate where there is considerable uncertainty over the Brexit negotiations it is far too early to make assumptions about the implications they may have for the economy and particularly housing requirements. Accordingly, such elements as international migration should be set aside until such time as a greater degree of certainty as to the outcome is known.

It is therefore considered that the 2017 Guildford Addendum Report is premature in concluding a reduction in the objectively assessed housing needs of the Borough and that these should revert to the 2015 West Surrey SHMA figures.

Further, the NPPF which seeks to promote housing growth. Indeed one of the Core Planning Principles at paragraph 17 of the NPPF states that planning should:
‘Proactively drive and support sustainable economic development to deliver the homes, business and industrial units, infrastructure and thriving local places that the country needs. Every effort should be made objectively to identify and then meet the housing, business and other development needs of an area, and respond positively to wider opportunities for growth.’

More specifically, it should:
‘Encourage the effective use of land by reusing land that has been previously developed (brownfield land), provided that it is not of high environmental value;’
The effective use of such previously developed land will assist the local planning authority in meeting its objectively assessed housing needs and in so doing respond positively to wider opportunities for growth as required by the NPPF.

Duty to Cooperate

Reference is made in the Housing Delivery Topic Paper to the Memorandum of Understanding on housing delivery which was signed by the three authorities in the Strategic Housing Market Area, Guildford, Waverley and Woking. The MoU recognised that there is unmet need within the HMA and committed the three authorities to continued joint working to ensure housing needs across the HMA are met in full.

It is therefore also of some concern that the 2017 Addendum covers only Guildford Borough and therefore looks at the Borough in isolation from the rest of the Strategic Housing Market Area (Waverley and Woking). This has been highlighted through discussions at the Waverley Examination at the end of June 2017. The generally agreed view there was that Waverley were being overly prescriptive in their application of landscape designations and that further housing provision could be accepted as a result. Conversely, Woking, which adopted its Core Strategy in 2012 for the period up to 2027, plans for a housing provision of just 292dpa as opposed to its objectively assessed need of 517dpa. Consequently there is a significant unmet need in Woking Borough which should be addressed across the HMA as a whole. Neither Waverley, nor Guildford appear to be taking the Duty to Cooperate very seriously in this respect, demonstrated by the view expressed in the Topic Paper that Guildford is unable to sustainably accommodate any unmet need arising from Woking despite a rigorous justification to support that view, and the 2017 SHMA Addendum considering the needs of Guildford Borough in isolation from the rest of the SHMA. As a result of the debate at the Waverley Examination, it is therefore highly likely that the Inspector will recommend that Waverley takes a significant proportion of the unmet need from Woking, leaving the remainder to be identified within Guildford Borough. Further scrutiny of the constraints and opportunities for accommodating further development within Guildford to meet the overall needs of the SHMA must therefore be undertaken before the Duty to Co-operate can be considered to be appropriately discharged.

Five-year Supply of Housing Land

The 2017 Addendum to the LAA sets out the five year housing requirements 2019 - 2024 and the identified supply. Applying the 20% buffer as a consequence of persistent under-delivery, there is a shortfall over the five year period of some 881 units. Planning for a shortfall in the five year housing land supply at the outset of the Plan period, cannot be considered to be effective and the Plan is therefore currently considered unsound in this respect.

Where there is scope to increase the quantum of development on previously developed land this should be considered and an adjustment made to the proposed allocation sites accordingly.

Soundness

As a consequence, of the discussions above, objection is made to the Plan’s ‘Spatial Vision’ and Policy S2: Borough-wide Strategy, which reduces the delivery of homes from 13,860 to 12,426 in the period up to 2034.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

i) The delivery of housing should be reinstated to at least the level set out in the 2016 draft Plan i.e. ‘at least 693 dpa’ but with a further allowance to cover the current shortfall in housing land supply (881 units) plus a 10% buffer to secure flexibility and resilience across the Plan period.

I object to GBC using amended housing figures (SHMA) based on a flawed housing study which has attracted widespread criticism. I object to GBC making amendments without adhering to the government’s NPPF rules “to assist in urban regeneration, by encouraging the recycling of derelict and other urban land”. (NPPF, Section 9, para 80). I object to the amended plan ignoring the government’s NPPF guidelines - “…… local planning authorities should take account of the need to promote sustainable patterns of development. They should consider the consequences for sustainable development of channelling development towards urban areas inside the Green Belt boundary, towards towns and villages inset within the Green Belt or towards locations beyond the outer Green Belt boundary”. I object to GBC amending all of the large Green Belt sites and including large Green Belt sites throughout the borough for housing instead of proposing housing in every village and town, on a proportional basis, to meet local needs.

We act for Crimson Project Management. This representation relates to the SPATIAL DEVELOPMENT STRATEGY - Policy S2.

Our clients object to Policy S2 and to the accompanying Table 1 on the grounds that the proposed spatial strategy and the proposed allocations in respect of the provision of housing and educational facilities are inconsistent with the overarching strategic objective of delivering sustainable development and the presumption in favour of sustainable development that is set out at Policy S1.

In particular, the draft plan is deficient in not allocating a sustainable urban extension to Fairlands for a mixed use development comprising a new secondary school, housing, community and other local facilities whilst allocating sites for such uses which are demonstrably less sustainable.

Table 1 should be amended to include the sustainable extension to Fairlands as a village extension that will deliver up to 400 new homes within the next five years.

Please see also representations in respect of Appendix C - Infrastructure Schedule and Policy A46 - Land to the south of Normandy and North of Flexford and the comparative sustainability analysis that is contained in these representations.

Overall Housing Requirement

Since the previous consultation, the Council have reduced the overall housing target from 693 dwellings per annum (dpa) to 654dpa.

In support of our representations, Turley have produced a critique of the Council’s assessment of objectively assessed need and the associated evidence base.
The Turley report concludes that the Council’s updated OAN is not predicated upon a sound evidence base and fails to adequately assess demographic pressures or apply reasonable expectations in respect of job growth.

In addition, evidence is provided to demonstrate that the Borough suffers from acute housing affordability issues, such that a minimum uplift of 10% should be applied to the demographic projection of housing need to allow for market signals.

Consequently, the Turley report recommends that the Borough’s OAN should be revised to a minimum of 717dpa during the 19yr plan period (2015 to 2034), totaling 13,623 dwellings. For the avoidance of doubt, this proposed level of growth is only to meet needs arising in Guildford.

There is a requirement to fulfil the duty to cooperate having regard to need to address Woking’s unmet housing need. Paragraph 4.6 of Guildford Borough Council’s Housing Delivery Topic paper (June 2017) identifies an unmet need for Woking totaling 3,150 dwellings in the 14yr period 2013/14 to 2026/27. This would result in an additional requirement in excess of the 7171dpa identified in Turley’s assessment (see below).

For these reasons, the proposed housing requirement is not justified upon appropriate evidence and is not effective or consistent with national policy by failing to meet the Borough’s overall market and affordable housing needs.

Unmet Need Elsewhere in the Housing Market Area
In addition to undertaking an assessment of the Borough’s true OAN, the Turley report considers the level of unmet need arising elsewhere in the Housing Market Area (HMA) that comprises Guildford Borough, Waverley Borough and Woking Borough.

As referenced above, Woking’s unmet housing need (the difference between Woking’s adopted Core strategy requirement and the OAN) is 3,150 dwellings for the period 2013/14 to 2026/27. Currently there is no plan-led strategy to meet this unmet need in so far as Woking is currently preparing a Site Allocations DPD to meet the housing requirement in the Core Strategy, not that set out in the SHMA.

The proposed submission version of the Guildford Borough Local Plan makes no allowance for Woking’s unmet housing needs, nor does the submitted Waverley Borough Local Plan (presently at examination). Both plans purport to meet their own OAN in full, without any provision for Woking Borough. Moreover, there is no intention from Woking Borough to undertake a plan review that accounts for this need.

It follows that there is substantial housing under provision elsewhere in the HMA and as a Green Belt authority with no advancing plan review, this trend in Woking Borough shows no sign of resolution in the short or medium term.

Given the clear requirement set out in the NPPF for any shortfall across a HMA to be considered on a ‘collective’ basis this issue cannot be underplayed. It should be remembered that NPPF paragraph 47 requires Council’s to ensure that their Local Plan meets full OAN for market and affordable housing in the entire housing market area, not only within their administrative area.

For the above reasons, there is a need for Guildford Borough Council to increase the housing requirement so to better respond to defined pressing needs for market and affordable housing both within Guildford Borough and the HMA.

As drafted the Proposed Submission Local Plan fails the positive preparation soundness test on this basis.

Within the West Surrey HMA, Guildford evidently exhibits the strongest housing market linkages with Woking when compared with Waverley e.g. the strongest commuting flow from Woking is to Guildford (West Surrey SHMA (Sept 2015) (Para 2.43)).

Given the close function relationship between Woking and Guildford, it is logical to expect Guildford Borough to accommodate a greater percentage of Woking’s unmet need than might be expected to be met in Waverley which is located to the south of Guildford.
On this basis, we are of the view that Guildford Borough should accommodate at least 50% of Woking’s unmet housing needs. This means accommodating an additional 1,575 dwellings in Guildford Borough (Woking’s unmet need of 3,150 dwellings x 50%).

We therefore consider that the overall proposed housing requirement should be revised to make provision for at least 15,198 new dwellings (13,623 + 1,575) (800dpa (rounded)) over the plan period 2015 to 2034.

Proposed Phasing of the Housing Requirement

Paragraphs 6.27 to 6.31 of the Turley report consider the point at which the need for housing occurs within Guildford Borough during the course of the plan period.

Figure 6.1 of the Turley report demonstrates that the sharpest projected household growth in the plan period occurs in the first five years of the plan period (2015-20). This growth then declines throughout the plan period such that it is at its lowest level at the end of the plan period. Conversely, the Council is proposing a phased annual housing target that increases from 450dpa to 850dpa over the lifetime of the plan.

We have reviewed the position and even on an annualised basis, applying the Council’s unsound 654dpa requirement, page 8 of the Council’s Land Availability Assessment (“LAA”) (June 2017) show that the deficit in supply accumulated from the 2015 base-date of the plan period will not be addressed until 2025. This is wholly illogical and will result in a failure to meet housing needs for the first 10 years of the plan period and represents the antithesis of boosting significantly the supply of housing land which position is articulated at paragraph 47 of the Framework.

The above approach is inconsistent with the NPPF and Housing White Paper that require LPA’s to significantly boost the supply of housing now. This is especially relevant in Guildford Borough, that forms a Borough that has been the subject of a long standing housing land supply deficit and has persistently under delivered against identified needs. Consequently we object to the notional annualised housing targets included at in the table included at the bottom of Policy S2, on the basis this approach is inconsistent with national policy and is not justified by failing to reflect the clear evidence that the greatest housing need occurs early on in the plan period.

Five Year Housing Land Supply

Before commenting specifically upon the Council’s proposed housing distribution, we note there is a need for the plan to demonstrate a five-year housing land supply on the date of adoption. Any failure to secure this comprises an issue of soundness in respect of compliance with NPPF paragraph 47 and the objective of significantly boosting the supply of housing land and the requirement to demonstrate a five year supply.

The importance of demonstrating a 5 year housing land supply upon adoption, in order to achieve a sound plan, was noted by an EiP Inspector in examining the Canterbury District Local Plan:

‘The Framework indicates that relevant policies for the supply of housing should not be considered up-to-date if the local planning authority cannot demonstrate a 5-year supply of deliverable sites. As such, I consider that the Plan would be ineffective and not accord with national policy. It would therefore be unsound unless this can be remedied’.

We have commented above that the proposed housing requirement needs to be increased to 15,198 dwellings (800dpa) and that the proposed phased housing target approach is unsound. However, and even if one assesses the Council’s proposed phased housing requirement (from Policy S2) against the Council’s housing trajectory at page 8 of the Council’s Land Availability Assessment (Addendum) (June 2017), it is evident that the Council will not meet the cumulative phased housing requirement until target until 2024/2025 (there is an error in the entries in the penultimate row of the table on pg8 of the Council’s Land Availability Assessment (Addendum) (June 2017)).

On the basis of the Council’s phased housing requirement (which approach relies upon a lower target in the first seven years from the anticipated date of adoption (2019 onwards) completions will be significantly below the artificially constrained phased housing requirement until 2024/25.

At the rate of completions assumed by the Council, the cumulative deficit would extend further into the plan period if the unsound phasing of the housing requirement were corrected and the 654dpa annualised target was to be used for monitoring purposes. In addition, any uplift in the OAN to take account of the representations made, including the assessment undertaken by Turley, would compound the position yet further.

We illustrate the position against the Policy S2 phasing approach in Table 1 below:

The position set against an annualised 654dpa on the basis of the Council’s derived OAN of 12,436 dwellings during the 19 year plan period is set out in Table 2 below:

Table 2 shows a cumulative shortfall of 856 dwellings against the 654dpa annualised target within the first 10 years of the plan. Of particularly concern is that the cumulative target is not met until 2029/30. This further emphasises the flawed approach to housing delivery in so far as current needs won’t be met, on the Council’s trajectory for 12 years. The position is even more stark when one applies the Turley OAN of 717dpa or the 800dpa taking into account Woking’s unmet need.

In light of the above findings it is clear that a material housing land supply deficit occurs upon adoption of the Plan and will be sustained for a long time into the plan period. On the basis of the foregoing, the Council is not able to demonstrate a five year supply of deliverable housing land on adoption of the Plan.

Housing Delivery

It is therefore essential that the Plan identifies sites that can deliver within the early part of the plan period in order to secure the soundness requirement to demonstrate a 5-year housing land supply upon adoption. This becomes yet more essential when one considers the past under delivery in the Borough. the resulting impact from this sustained under delivery, is reflected in the Turley evidence (Figure 6.1) that confirms the need for housing is most pressing in the early years of the plan period.

A further consideration of particular standing is that the above positions reflect the Council’s delivery assumptions, which relies upon unreasonable assumptions relating to the delivery of the strategic sites, including Slyfield (A24), Gosden Hill (A25), Blackwell Farm (A26); and Former Wisley Airfield (A35).

Given the inherent difficulties in securing the requisite infrastructure funding and provision for these sites, in particular improvements to the A3 (including new junctions) as well as, in the case of Slyfield, the need to find a site and deliver a new waste treatment works, we are of the view that the trajectories for these sites are too optimistic and unrealistic.

Setting aside our objections to the Wisley Airfield site as a matter of principle, even delaying these sites by only two monitoring years would see the loss of 1,360 dwellings from the Council’s purported supply. This demonstrates the lack of flexibility in the plan to deal with changing circumstances.

We are aware that as a Green Belt constrained authority and one that has failed to have an up to date development plan for many years, the Borough faces a significant challenge in reversing this historic under delivery early on in the plan period. However, it is essential that this under delivery (I.e. the green line illustrated in the LAA above) is rectified as early on in the plan period as possible.

We note that the Borough’s current Local Plan became time expired in 2006. It follows that the Council have failed to plan for housing growth in a proactive plan led manner for over a decade. This is the reason for such substantial under delivery over the past decade and the resulting need for housing in the early part of the plan period, which position we say is acute.

The Borough’s failure to produce an up to date Plan over this period must not be used as justification to delay housing delivery until the latter part of the plan period. Consequently there is an essential need to review whether a revised spatial strategy would enable a greater level of housing delivery in the first 5-10 years of the proposed plan period.

Part of the necessary solution is to identify sites that can provide material boosts to the overall deliverable supply within the immediate five year period. Presently the plan is overly reliant upon sites that have significant lag times associated with them. Our client’s proposal (see representations below) would enable two or more sales outlets to be established on the Normandy/Flexford (Policy A46) site with completions at approximately 60+dpa per outlet.

If one were to apply a base date of say 2019 (from anticipated adoption of the Plan), a minimum of 300 dwellings could be delivered at the Normandy/Flexford site within the 5 year period to 2024. Such deliverability is achievable in part due to the site’s greenfield nature and the fact that it is controlled by an established national housebuilder.

Proposed Changes: Increase the housing target to a minimum 15,198 (800dpa) dwellings over the plan period 2015 to 2034.

Removal of the ‘annual housing target’ table at the bottom of Policy S2.

A modified target of 12426 houses still does not reflect local need or conditions.

Conversely changing the target based on a SHMA document which remains unexplained adds to the accusation that the number is made up, rather than calculated based on a clear set of assumptions.

Guildford is a town of 70000 residents, and we have a University of 14000 students. Under any definition that is a monopoly. The affect this has had on the town, and housing is dramatic.

Guildford residents association (GRA) have employed a professional analyst (Neil MacDonald), and I would defer to his report and conclusions, on numbers and lack of transparency.

1) Introduction:

1. This paper sets out representations on behalf of Bewley Homes Plc (“Bewley”) in respect of Guildford Borough Council’s proposed submission draft Local Plan Regulation 19 consultation (“the Plan”).
2. For ease and consistency these representations are presented in two parts. The first part sets out Bewley Homes’ representations in relation to the Plan as drafted. The second part (see separate volume) provides detail on a proposed alternative housing site that Bewley considers should be allocated at part of the Local Plan to ensure the Council meets its housing obligations over the plan period.
3. The individual components of the plan are identified throughout where comments are being made. A separate consultation response proforma has been prepared for each individual representation and is submitted alongside this document.
4. In terms of format the remainder of this document identifies the relevant paragraph or policy reference within the proposed submission document where representations are being made and confirms whether Bewley is raising objection or support together with which soundness tests or legal compliance issues are being raised.

2) Spatial Planning Context and Housing Delivery

1. As a starting point it is considered important to set the background against which the current draft Local Plan is being prepared within Guildford Borough.
2. The current adopted Local Plan was adopted on 09 January 2003 and provided a planning framework for the period up to 2006. The adopted Local Plan is therefore time expired and has been so for a period of 10 years.
3. The Council’s progress on the preparation of a new Local Plan over this 10 year period has been woefully inadequate. As a consequence of the vacuum created by a lack of up-to-date policy within the Borough the Council’s capability to maintain an adequate supply of deliverable housing land has been severely hampered.
4. Until recent years and, in particular the publication of its Strategic Housing Market Assessment in 2014, the Council has not even been in a position to confirm the state of its housing land supply shortfall.
5. The Council’s current stated housing land supply position set out in its Annual Monitoring Report dated October 2015 confirms that it has at best a 2.4 year supply with a 20% buffer.
6. This extremely low level of supply is also only based on an assessment base date of 2013 i.e. it fails to take on board the persistent history of failure over the preceding years since the expiry of the previous Local Plan in 2006.
7. The reason for highlighting the matter of the Council’s extremely poor record in terms of both plan making and housing delivery is that any new Local Plan should place its emphasis not only on seeking to meet the full Objectively Assessed Needs (“OAN”) identified for the Borough but should also look to ensure that a significant proportion of that requirement is supplied in the early years of the plan period.
8. This approach is further reinforced by the upward trend in need that is demonstrated by the most recent population data published by the Office of National Statistics (ONS) on 26 May 2016 in relation to migration trends. This data has identified that net long term migration is now at its highest in the UK for over 10 years at +333,000. Whilst this does not specifically confirm that further housing will be required in Guildford Borough it is a clear indication that the pressure for new housing across the UK and in the South East region in particular will continue to increase.
9. It is this kind of symptom that the Government is seeking to treat through its National policy requirement to significantly boost the supply of new housing and a focus on the presumption in favour of sustainable development.
10. Furthermore the Council’s position in terms of affordable housing need as confirmed in its October 2015 SHMA increases the importance of the timely delivery of housing across the Borough. The SHMA records a need of some 456 dpa for affordable housing, which equates to 66% of the total OAN of 693 dpa.
11. With this background in mind the remainder of this section of the representations provides specific comments on the various paragraphs and policies within the Plan.

Paragraph 1.3 – OBJECT: UNSound – Not Positively Prepared, Justified or Consistent with National Policy:

12. The Council states in this paragraph that the Plan contains overarching policies and allocates land for housing, employment, community facilities and other types of development. It goes on to state that the second part of the Local Plan (which is yet to be prepared) will deal with the detailed development control policies.

13. On that basis it is incumbent upon the Council to ensure that the Plan does indeed allocate all land that is necessary to meet its housing and other development obligations.

14. For the reasons that Bewley has set out in this document it is clear that there are fundamental flaws in the Plan as drafted as well as a number of the strategic land allocations that will result in the document both being unsound and unable to meet the development needs of the Borough.

15. The approach the Council is taking in dealing with all land allocations in the Plan is laudable but does therefore mean that there are no second chances in terms of meeting any shortfall created by the failure of any one or a number of its land allocations within the Plan.

Policy S2 – OBJECT: UNSOUND – Not Positively Prepared, Justified or Consistent with National Policy:

Bewley is supportive of the fact that the Council is seeking to plan for the whole of its OAN as identified in the October 2015 version of its SHMA. This is the correct approach to take and is in conformity with National policy set out in the Framework (Paragraph 47) and the NPPG in the circumstances where, as is the case in Guildford Borough, the level of constraints do not justify a reduction in delivery against the OAN.

The above positive point within the policy is however offset by the housing trajectory set out in the table that forms part of the policy wording. It is clear that the Council is continuing with its trend of ‘putting off this year what can be dealt with in future years’.

Given the historic failure of the Council to deliver housing over a sustained period in the 10 years between the expiry of the old Local Plan and the present day and the extremely low level of supply currently in place the Council should be seizing the opportunity afforded by the new Local Plan to proactively deliver housing in the early years of the plan period.

The current trajectory seeks to push the majority of the housing delivery for the Borough in the second half of the Plan period i.e. from 2023 onwards. In fact the trajectory does not provide any delivery figures at all for the first five years of the plan period from 2013 – 2018.
The Council is therefore embarking on a strategy that will push back delivery of much needed housing to the later stages of the plan period.

This approach, which is predicated on the delivery of major development locations that are by their nature slow to deliver, will further exacerbate the current shortfall in supply and fail those most vulnerable members of the community in need of affordable housing. Additionally the major development locations identified by the Council all have significant constraints that need to be addressed before any new dwellings can be delivered.

Whilst the Council has identified that its housing requirement is ‘not a ceiling’ and that earlier delivery of allocated sites will be supported where appropriate such a reliance on the ‘hope’ that sites will come forward rather than positively planning for early delivery is simply unacceptable and fails to meet the test of being positively prepared and in conformity with National policy.

The Council’s development strategy for the delivery of new housing across the Borough is therefore inherently flawed and either a significant change is required that moves away from major development locations or further land is allocated to enable delivery in the early years of the plan period whilst the major development locations come up to speed.

In either scenario further land allocations should be made in sustainable locations, which the Council’s evidence base already confirms are available (see representations below).

It is perhaps rather telling that the Council is aware of the significant shortcoming in its development strategy for the delivery of housing by the fact that Policy S2 is the only policy in the document that is not supported by a reasoned justification. This in Bewley’s view is because there is no reasoned justification for the development strategy the Council is seeking to pursue in the face of the clear and compelling evidence that housing should be prioritised in the early years of the plan and that capacity exists in locations that are capable of delivering in a sustainable manner.

Bewley Homes’ concerns with the delivery strategy that the Council is pursuing are supported by the conclusions of the Sustainability Appraisal (“SA”) undertaken by AECOM to support the Plan. In particular the SA notes (Page 9 of the Non-Technical Summary and Second paragraph of Page 29 of the main SA document refer) that there are question marks regarding the housing trajectory (and in particular the supply of housing in the early part of the plan period). The SA goes on to state that these are detailed matters that will benefit from open discussion during the plan’s examination.

The approach advocated by the SA to leave the debate on delivery until the examination is itself fundamentally flawed. The Council should be in a position where it progresses to the submission stage with a Plan that can deliver the required level of housing consistently across the plan period without any ‘question marks’. Given the significant shortfall in supply currently and the backlog of unmet need in the District certainty of delivery in the early years is paramount to the success of the Plan.

The ‘question mark’ identified by the SA on its own is enough to demonstrate that the Plan fails the tests of soundness and cannot proceed to examination.

The development strategy should therefore be changed to ensure that housing is being proactively delivered in the early stages of the plan period rather than the current approach that will reinforce the Council’s position in terms of failing to deliver.

The housing requirement identified (693 dpa) must be regarded as a minimum and draft Policy S2 must be amended to clearly state this. In addition the Council should be allocating further land on small to medium sized sites that can deliver in the short term to address its significant backlog in need and to rectify the current shortfall in housing land supply. Given the Council’s persistent failure to deliver new housing over the last decade or more the very least that the Council should be planning for is a 20% buffer over and above the total housing requirement generated by the OAN. The SA report currently confirms the Council is planning for a 14% buffer, which is inadequate and, will lead to failure.

A minimum requirement of 832 dpa should therefore be planned for by the Council, which would equate to a total requirement of 16,640 dwellings over the 20 year plan period i.e. an increase of 2,780 dwellings.

Allocation of these additional dwellings on small to medium sized sites, such as that promoted by Bewley Homes, will provide the necessary flexibility to ensure that the Council can maintain a rolling 5 year supply of deliverable housing sites and most importantly that it will deliver housing in the early years of the plan period to help rectify the significant backlog of unmet demand.

Table 1 - OBJECT: UNSOUND – Not Positively Prepared, Justified or Consistent with National Policy:

Bewley Homes objects to the Council’s inclusion of a windfall allowance within Table 1 equating to 625 dwellings over the period 2018 – 2033.

Given the Council’s history of persistent failure to deliver housing it is considered that any reliance upon windfalls in the Plan is unsound. The Council should be planning positively to ensure that sufficient land is identified to meet its OAN as a minimum and should not be relying upon windfalls to make up the numbers where the history of delivery has been so poor.

It is considered that windfalls should therefore be removed from Table 1 and regarded as an additional ‘bonus’ over and above the planned delivery to meet the minimum OAN.

This approach would accord with Government policy contained in the Framework at Paragraphs 47 and 48 and supplemented by the advice in the NPPG at Paragraph: 24 Reference ID: 3-24-20140306.

Detailed Representations in Relation to Effingham

Having provided representations in relation to the Plan as drafted and the accompanying SA (see Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations) this section sets out Bewley Homes’ proposal for the allocation of land at Hester’s Yard, Wood Street Village as a sustainable location immediately adjacent to the settlement. The proposal is supported, where relevant, by appropriate detailed technical evidence primarily in relation to the following matters:

- Landscape and Visual Impact and Green Belt HDA
- Highways and Transportation Matters Motion

As a starting point it is important to highlight that Bewley is supportive of the Council’s identification of Wood Street Village as a sustainable location and as a consequence the proposal to remove the settlement from the Green Belt.

This section focuses on Bewley’s objection to the Plan on the basis that further greenfield housing sites are required to deliver the housing necessary to meet the OAN and most importantly smaller sites should be allocated to enable delivery in the early years of the plan period together with ensuring flexibility.
Furthermore and for the reasons Bewley has identified above there are fundamental flaws in the Council’s proposals to allocate 2,000 dwellings at Wisley and 1,800 dwellings at Blackwell Farm. The removal of these two allocations would place greater importance on the identification of other suitable and sustainable locations in the Borough to meet the overall housing need. Notwithstanding this point there is a need for the allocation of further sites to ensure sufficient flexibility in terms of supply of housing throughout the Plan period and to enable the Council to respond positively to changes in demand and delivery without needing to revert to a review of the Local Plan.

As set out in Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations the Council has not undertaken a full review of all suitable and available alternatives nor has its consultants explored other options for release from the Green Belt. As a consequence the Council has simply decided not to make any provision for growth to meet the needs of the community at all throughout the plan period within Wood Street Village.

The Council’s approach in this regard is without foundation and based on flawed evidence.

As demonstrated in the attached appraisals (and explored below) land at Orestan Lane represents a viable location for a relatively limited release of land from the Green Belt to provide a scale of development that is appropriate and proportionate to the size of the settlement, which the Council itself acknowledge as a sustainable location.

As identified in Part 1 of Bewley Homes representations the Council’s current development strategy fails to ensure delivery in the early years of the plan period to meet the needs of the Borough’s population in terms of new housing. There is a need for the release of more modest scale housing sites in sustainable locations, such as Wood Street Village, that can deliver housing in the first 5 years of the Plan period in particular. Equally the Council’s current approach fails the residents of Wood Street Village in terms of meeting their needs for further open market and affordable housing.

As confirmed in the Council’s own Settlement Hierarchy Study (May 2014) Wood Street Village is regarded as a Large Village, which is the third tier in the settlement hierarchy below the Rural Service Centre of East Horsley and the Urban Area of Guildford, Ash and Tongham. Wood Street Village is therefore a suitable and sustainable location for accommodating a modest scale of growth in the manner proposed by Bewley Homes in these representations.

Turning to consider Bewley Homes promotion site. Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham is considered to comprise a suitable location for release from the Green Belt and allocation for approximately 40 dwellings to help deliver the Council’s housing requirement for the following reasons:

Location and Context:

The proposed allocation site is situated immediately adjacent to the currently proposed boundary for the settlement of Wood Street Village and the front section of the site is actually within the settlement and benefits from a direct road frontage onto Oak Hill. As set out above Wood Street Village comprises a sustainable location for growth as identified by the Council in its settlement hierarchy. The Council’s regard for the sustainability of the settlement is reflected in its desire to roll back the Green Belt boundaries in the Plan.

The promotion site itself comprises a variety of commercial uses including open storage, vehicle repairs and servicing. The site is predominantly previously-developed land in accordance with the definition set out in Annex 2 of the Framework.

Given the emphasis that the Council is placing upon the release of previously-developed land to meet its housing requirement this promotion site is considered to comprise just the kind of location that should be allocated in accordance with Paragraph 4.1.6 of the Plan that states:

> Our preference is to focus growth in the most sustainable locations, making best use of previously developed land (including in the Green Belt if appropriate).

In both physical and visual terms the site relates well to the settlement and appears as part of the settlement when viewed on the ground.

The site benefits from direct access to local services and facilities as set out in the attached Transport Accessibility Appraisal prepared by Motion.
Contribution to Green Belt and Landscape and Visual Impact:

Having established that Wood Street Village is considered to comprise a sustainable location for growth and that the promotion site is well related to the settlement the next key consideration is the matter of the contribution that the site makes to the Green Belt alongside more general landscape and visual impact issues.

It is relevant to note that the Council’s Green Belt and Countryside Study undertaken by Pegasus in January 2013 did not assess the promotion site when consideration was given to Wood Street Village. No conclusion has therefore been drawn on behalf of the Council as to the contribution the promotion site may make to the Green Belt.

To address this matter Bewley has instructed its landscape architect EDP to undertake a review of the contribution the site makes to the Green Belt and also more general landscape and visual impact issues. A copy of the review is attached at Annex 2.

In summary the review concluded the following:

‘This review provides a clear indication that the site is entirely suitable for extraction from the Green Belt, without resulting in any adverse effects on the Green Belt function as identified within the NPPF, or on the local landscape character or the amenity of local visual receptors. This results primarily from the clearly demarcated boundary features, existing commercial uses within the site, the enclosed nature of the site and the consequential limitation in landscape and visual effects, but also the way in which the site is severed from the key area providing openness between Wood Street Village and Fairlands.

A development which seeks to address the constraints of the site, would contribute to retaining the openness of the Green Belt by providing much needed housing on a site where Green Belt function would not be comprised, whilst also providing a sustainable and high quality development which links very well to the existing village.’

It is therefore evident that in terms both of the Green Belt and landscape and visual impact matters the promotion site is acceptable and should be released for housing.

Transport and Highway Impacts:

In relation to transport and highway impacts the technical appraisal undertaken by Motion confirms that adequate vehicular access can be achieved to the site from Oak Hill in accordance with the requirements set out in Manual for Streets.

The site is well located in terms of local community facilities that can be accessed via a range of transportation modes in accordance with the requirements of the Framework and the NPPG.

The site is therefore sustainably located in relation to existing services and facilities within the settlement of Wood Street Village.

Flooding and Drainage:

The whole site is within Flood Zone 1 on the Environment Agency’s indicative flood mapping and is not identified as being at risk from any known surface water flooding events. In this respect the site is sequentially preferable in flood risk terms. Furthermore the site is sequentially preferable when compared with a number of other locations such as Land at Wisley and Normandy/Flexford both of which contain land in Flood Zones 2 and 3.

There are no known land drainage issues on the site and in this respect a Sustainable Urban Drainage System (“SUDS”) could be employed as part of any development on the land.

Other Technical Considerations:

Other technical considerations such as ecology, archaeology, arboriculture, noise, etc are not considered to pose a constraint to the development of the site for housing such as to preclude the favourable consideration of the site as a housing allocation.
The Approach to Allocation – Presumption in Favour of Sustainable Development:

Taking into account Bewley’s representations that consider the need for the allocation of additional sites to ensure the Council can deliver housing in the early years of the plan period combined with the flaws in at least two of its large scale allocations there is a clear and present need for the inclusion of this site for housing in the Local Plan.

The Government emphasis in national Policy is centre on the presumption in favour of sustainable development. Paragraph 7 of the Framework identifies the three strands of sustainable development as comprising the economic, social and environmental strands. If these can be met then there is a clear presumption in favour that should lead to the natural conclusion the land should be allocated for housing.

Economic – The delivery of new housing on the promotion site will secure local employment in the short term during the construction phase, which is now a well-established and accepted benefit of residential development. Additionally any new residential development will contribute to the local economy in terms of Planning Obligations and via other means such as future Council tax revenues, new homes bonus and indirectly through increased revenue into the local economy. The economic limb is therefore met by the promotion site

Social – As set out earlier within Bewley’s representations there is a clear and present need for new housing in the Borough now to meet the substantial shortfall in supply and to ensure that the OAN can be delivered year on year from the start of the plan period rather than from half way through it. Additionally the Council’s SHMA identifies substantial affordable housing need that cannot ever be met in the life of the new Plan based on the proposed affordable housing policy approach. Finally the Council’s proposed reliance upon strategic development, particularly at Wisley and Blackwell Farm, is likely to lead to failure in terms of delivering the overall housing requirement where the Council is reliant upon every source of supply to deliver in order to meet its OAN.

Therefore any proposals of more modest scale that can deliver a range of open market and affordable dwellings in a timely manner will result in social benefit in terms of helping to meet the clearly identified needs and providing the Council with a buffer of additional housing to help safeguard against non-delivery elsewhere

Environmental – It has been demonstrated through the detailed review undertaken by HDA that the site can be released from the Green Belt without causing any unacceptable harm either in Green Belt or landscape and visual impact terms. Furthermore the site is accessible to local services and facilities, integrates well with the settlement and, will not give rise to any undue adverse impacts on the local highway network. The environmental limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

For all of the above reasons it is considered that Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham comprises a sustainable location for the allocation of approximately 40 dwellings that will assist the Council in ensuring its housing delivery obligations are met and that most importantly delivery of the right level of housing takes place early in the plan period.

Bewley therefore considers that for the Plan to be found sound further land allocations are required and Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham comprises a sustainable option that is available for immediate delivery. The site should be allocated for housing, included within the settlement and removed from the Green Belt.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Introduction:

1.1 This paper sets out representations on behalf of Bewley Homes Plc (“Bewley”) in respect of Guildford Borough Council’s proposed revised submission draft Local Plan Regulation 19 consultation (“the Plan”).

1.2 For ease and consistency these representations are presented in two parts. The first part sets out Bewley Homes’ representations in relation to the Plan as drafted. The second part (see separate volume) provides detail on a proposed alternative housing site that Bewley considers should be allocated at part of the Local Plan to ensure the Council meets its housing obligations over the plan period.

1.3 The individual components of the plan are identified throughout where comments are being made. A separate consultation response proforma has been prepared for each individual representation and is submitted alongside this document.

1.4 In terms of format the remainder of this document identifies the relevant paragraph or policy reference within the proposed submission document where representations are being made and confirms whether Bewley is raising objection or support together with which soundness tests or legal compliance issues are being raised.

2.0 Spatial Planning Context and Housing Delivery

2.1 As a starting point it is considered important to set the background against which the current draft Local Plan is being prepared within Guildford Borough.

2.2 The current adopted Local Plan was adopted on 09 January 2003 and provided a planning framework for the period up to 2006. The adopted Local Plan is therefore time expired and has been so for a period of 11 years.

2.3 The Council’s progress on the preparation of a new Local Plan over this 11 year period has been woefully inadequate. As a consequence of the vacuum created by a lack of up-to-date policy within the Borough the Council’s capability to maintain an adequate supply of deliverable housing land has been severely hampered.

2.4 Until recent years and, in particular the publication of its Strategic Housing Market Assessment initially in 2014, the Council has not even been in a position to confirm the state of its housing land supply shortfall.

2.5 The Council’s current stated housing land supply position set out in its Land Availability Assessment (“LAA”) Addendum April 2017 states that it has at best a 2.3 year supply with a 20% buffer. This compares with the position in 2016, which was at best a 2.4 year supply with a 20% buffer. The Council’s poor record in terms of housing delivery has therefore worsened during the course of the last monitoring year and since the initial Regulation 19 version of the Local Plan was published.

2.6 This extremely low level of supply is also only based on an assessment base date of 2013 i.e. it fails to take on board the persistent history of failure over the preceding years since the expiry of the previous Local Plan in 2006.

2.7 The reason for highlighting the matter of the Council’s extremely poor record in terms of both plan making and housing delivery is that any new Local Plan should place its emphasis not only on seeking to meet the full Objectively Assessed Needs (“OAN”) identified for the Borough but should also look to ensure that a significant proportion of that requirement is supplied in the early years of the plan period. The current approach set out the Plan does the exact opposite by including a stepped trajectory that pushes delivery back to the later years of the plan period predicated on the long lead in times from a number of strategic locations.

2.8 This approach is further reinforced by the upward trend in need that is demonstrated by the most recent population data published by the Office of National Statistics (ONS) in February 2017 in relation to migration trends. This data has identified that net long term migration remains high at a level of +273,000. Whilst this does not specifically confirm that further housing will be required in Guildford Borough it is a clear indication that the pressure for new housing across the UK and in the South East region in particular will continue to increase.

2.9 It is this kind of symptom that the Government is seeking to treat through its National policy requirement to significantly boost the supply of new housing and a focus on the presumption in favour of sustainable development.
2.10 Furthermore the Council’s position in terms of affordable housing need as confirmed in its March 2017 SHMA Addendum increases the importance of the timely delivery of housing across the Borough. The SHMA Addendum records a need of some 517 dpa for affordable housing, which equates to 79% of the total OAN of 654 dpa. This position has worsened significantly from that set out in the Regulation 19 consultation version of the Plan in 2016. The 2016 version identified 456 dpa for affordable housing, which equated to 66% of the total OAN of 693 dpa set out at that time.

2.11 With this background in mind the remainder of this section of the representations provides specific comments on the various paragraphs and policies within the Plan.

Uplift for Student Accommodation Requirements:

2.33 Linked to the presence of the University of Surrey the Addendum report includes an uplift for specific student accommodation. Bewley does not dispute this uplift or the need for it.

Unmet Need in the HMA – Duty to Cooperate:

2.34 The Addendum report makes no reference to unmet need in the HMA and certainly makes no adjustment to the OAN to reflect unmet need.

2.35 Within the HMA there is a substantial unmet need equating to 3,150 dwellings arising from Woking.

2.36 This level of unmet need is acknowledged to exist by the Council in Box 6.8 (Page 27) of its Sustainability Appraisal (“SA”).

2.37 At the recent Examination Hearings for the Waverley Borough Local Plan that concluded on 06 July 2017 the Inspector was presented with clear and unequivocal evidence (see Statements attached at Annex 1) that Woking was unable to deal with any of its unmet need in the current plan period and that in fact its unmet need would be likely to rise during the course of the next plan period due to the level of environmental constraint imposed on the Borough.

2.38 Guildford also sought to advance a case that it would be unable to deal with any of Woking’s unmet need. The Waverley Local Plan Inspector dismissed Guildford’s arguments and expressly concluded that Guildford would need to take ‘its fair share’ of Woking’s unmet need.

2.39 The Inspector went on to conclude that Waverley Borough should take 50% of the unmet need arising from Woking equating to a total 1,575 dwellings over its 19 year plan period i.e. an annual uplift of 83 dpa to its housing requirement.

2.40 This leaves a shortfall of 1,575 dwellings to be dealt with in the HMA. In the absence of any other LPA in the HMA and the fact that Guildford has failed so far to even consider taking any unmet need Bewley Homes considers that as a starting point the whole 1,575 dwellings should be provided in the Plan.

2.41 The current Plan period extends from 2013 – 2034 i.e. 21 years. The remaining unmet need from Woking of 1,575 dwellings therefore equates to an annual uplift of 75 dpa.

2.42 This is considered an entirely reasonable approach to take bearing in mind the clear Government policy set out in Paragraph 47 of the Framework that requires LPAs to meet the entire objectively assessed needs of the HMA in their Plans. Impact in Terms of Duty to Cooperate:

2.43 The Council’s Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper (“DTC”) notes at Paragraph 4.41 the unmet need arising from Woking equating to a total of 3,150 dwellings. The DTC also references a Memorandum of Understanding between the three constituent local planning authorities in the HMA (Woking, Guildford and Waverley), which states that the authorities will continue future joint working to ensure as far as possible that the housing needs across the HMA are met.

2.44 The Memorandum of Understanding was never signed by all three authorities.

2.45 Furthermore its content does not reflect the current approach being taken by Guildford Borough in relation to the calculation of its OAN that sets a lower figure than the previous iteration of the SHMA. Equally the Memorandum of Understanding is apparently at odds with the express evidence presented by all three authorities to the Waverley Local Plan Examination. It is therefore considered that the weight to be attached to this document is extremely limited.

2.46 The DTC continues at Paragraph 4.50 to state that the Council does not consider it can sustainably accommodate any unmet need arising from Woking. This is indicative of the flawed approach the Council has taken because it must first calculation its OAN to meet the needs in the HMA including any unmet need arising from Woking and then test that OAN against the sustainable capacity of the Borough. Put in simply terms the Council has failed to do this.

2.47 Equally Bewley Homes considers the Council has completely failed in its legal obligation under the Duty to Cooperate because there is a clear unmet need arising from Woking that both the Council and the adjoining authority Waverley are protesting cannot be met. Yet neither authority has properly sought to test whether this unmet need (or a proportion of it) can be met. The communication between the three constituent authorities in the HMA appears to be at odds with the Memorandum of Understanding and fails to properly address the needs of the HMA. Consequently the Duty to Cooperate is not complied with in this instance.

Calculation of correct Housing Requirement:

2.48 Based on the above representations it is clear that the Council’s calculation of its housing requirement as based on the 2017 SHMA Addendum is incorrect. The correct calculation of housing requirement for the Borough against which the Plan should be prepared is summarised below:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>dpa</th>
<th>Running Total</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2014 Population projections</td>
<td>577</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uplift for Market Signals of 25%</td>
<td>144</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uplift for Employment</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uplift for Student Accommodation</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unmet Need in HMA – 50% of Woking</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TOTAL</td>
<td>821</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

2.49 The figure currently set out in the Plan of 654 dpa falls well short of the actual requirement for the Borough based on the clear evidence and Government policy/advice on the most appropriate way of calculating OAN together with the importance of meeting all housing need in the HMA.

2.50 Over the 21 year Plan period the above annual requirement equates to 17,241 dwellings, which is an uplift of 3,500 dwellings over the Plan period when compared with the current requirement in the Plan.

2.51 A similar level of uplift appears to have been tested through the Council’s SA under option 8, which unsurprisingly scores the best in terms housing delivery (Table 7.3 on Page 39 of the SA refers). Option 8 only scores low in relation to ecology, landscape and transport all of which are matters that can be addressed via appropriate mitigation delivered by new development and should not therefore be seen as constraints to the provision of the correct housing requirement for the Borough. Further comments on the SA are set out in Section 3 below.

2.52 Bewley notes that the draft policy refers to the housing requirement as a minimum through the use of the wording ‘at least’, which is supported and should be retained alongside any uplift to the current draft figures.

2.53 In the current national policy climate where Government policy and guidance clearly places an emphasis on significantly boosting the supply of new housing it is vital that housing requirement policies in Development Plans are identified as minima rather than maxima.

Stepped Trajectory:
2.54 The current draft wording for Policy S2 includes a stepped trajectory that seeks to push a significant proportion (some 6,800 dwellings) into the period 2025 – 2034. Furthermore the trajectory only commences in 2019 and therefore excludes the period 2013 – 2018. As a consequence the ‘Annual Housing Target’ table only shows a total provision of 9,810 dwellings, which is nowhere near the full requirement even when using the Council’s annual figure of 654 dpa. The sentence in Paragraph 4.1.9a is therefore wrong.

2.55 Aside from the clear factual inaccuracies in the wording of the table and the accompanying text the Council’s use of a stepped trajectory has the direct affect of pushing back delivery to the later years of the Plan period. This approach is at odds with clear Government policy and guidance for the following reasons:

· Reason 1 – The Council has a clear and present need for new housing delivery now as expressed in its significant 5-year housing land supply shortfall;
· Reason 2 – The Council has a persistent history of under provision as evidenced in its Annual Monitoring Reports and confirmed by its voluntary acceptance of the 20% Buffer;
· Reason 3 – The affordability ratio in the Borough is one of the highest in the Country making Guildford Borough one of the least affordable places to live;
· Reason 4 – The affordable housing need in the Borough is massive and cannot possibly be met by the current policy approach and suggested housing requirement;
· Reason 5 – The delays in the delivery of acceptable and sustainable developments have primarily been due to Member intransigence opposing otherwise appropriate development; and,
· Reason 5 – Delay to the delivery of housing in the Borough will only serve to worsen the current housing shortfall.

2.56 The Council’s argument in Paragraph 4.1.9a that the stepped trajectory is necessary because of the likely delivery rates on the strategic greenfield sites is a demonstration that its spatial delivery strategy is flawed and that as a consequence more smaller sites need to be allocated to balance the delivery trajectory. The Council has not properly assessed this approach nor has it sought to plan positively to address identified constraints to the delivery of sufficient sites such that an even trajectory can and should be delivered.

2.57 There is in Bewley Homes’ view no sound reason for taking the approach the Council has in terms of a stepped trajectory that will only serve to make an appalling record of housing delivery worse.

2.58 As confirmed by Sajid Javid in his recent LGA speech: ‘Where housing is particularly unaffordable, local leaders need to take a long, hard, honest look to see if they are planning for the right number of homes.’

2.59 In Bewley Homes’ view this Council has not yet take that long, hard, honest look to ensure that it is planning for the right number of homes and at the right time. The current Plan strategy is flawed and if progressed to Examination will fail the tests of soundness in terms of not being positively prepared, not consistent with National policy, Not justified and potentially in relation to unmet need would fail in the duty to cooperate.

Five Year Housing Land Supply:

2.60 The starting point for the current consultation in terms of 5-year housing land supply is set out in the April 2017 LAA, which identifies at best 2.3 years supply with the inclusion of a 20% buffer. The Council’s starting position is therefore one of a significant shortfall and an acknowledgement of persistent failure in terms of delivery.

2.61 When this starting point is compared with the proposed development strategy and the use of a stepped trajectory that pushes back supply to the later stages of the plan period due to the over reliance on a small number of strategic allocation sites, the Council’s 5-year housing land supply position is only set to worsen. In short the Council’s current approach is set up to fail immediately upon the adoption of the Local Plan.

2.62 The consequence of this approach is that Paragraphs 14 and 49 will continue to be engaged and the policies for the supply of housing in the newly adopted Local Plan will immediately be rendered out-of-date. Setting up a Local Plan to fail in this way is unsound and flies in the face of the plan led system advocated by Government and set out in Statute (S38(6) 2004 Act).
2.63 The Council’s housing delivery trajectory set out in the table on Page 8 of the LAA Addendum (June 2017) confirms that the only way the Council comes close to demonstrating a 5-year supply is with the use of a stepped trajectory and reliance on sites that fail to meet the Footnote 11 test, as confirmed by the fact that the Council’s 5-year supply assessment set out in the table on Page 12 of the LAA Addendum contains different (and lower) annual supply figures. When the correct OAN is applied and the stepped trajectory removed combined with the extremely low supply starting point it is clear the Plan trajectory will fail to sustain a rolling 5-year supply.

2.64 The table below summarises the clear discrepancies in the Council’s approach when either the table on Page 8 or Page 12 of the LAA Addendum is used. In both cases the Council’s position confirms it has set the Plan up to fail in terms of 5-year supply. This is at odds with the Framework and the NPPG in particular Paragraph 033 Reference ID: 3-033-20150327:

2.65 This is a further demonstration of the fact that the Council’s development strategy must be revised to remove the stepped trajectory and seek to allocate further deliverable sites that can contribute to supply early in the plan period. A sustainable spatial strategy can be achieved in Guildford Borough that will enable a return to a plan led system of decision making, which has been sorely lacking for over a decade.

1.0 Detailed Representations in Relation to Effingham

1.1 Having provided representations in relation to the Plan as drafted and the accompanying SA (see Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations) this section sets out Bewley Homes’ proposal for the allocation of land at Orestan Lane, Effingham as a sustainable location immediately adjacent to the settlement. The proposal is supported, where relevant, by appropriate detailed technical evidence primarily in relation to the following matters:

· Landscape and Visual Impact and Green Belt HIDA
· Highways and Transportation Matters Motion

1.2 As a starting point it is important to highlight that Bewley is supportive of the Council’s identification of Effingham as a sustainable location and as a consequence the proposal to remove the settlement from the Green Belt.

1.3 This section focuses on Bewley’s objection to the Plan on the basis that further greenfield housing sites are required to deliver the housing necessary to meet the OAN and most importantly smaller sites should be allocated to enable delivery in the early years of the plan period together with ensuring flexibility.
1.4 The need for the Council to properly consider the available supply from smaller sites currently within the Green Belt is of vital importance. The level of historic under supply in the Borough is substantial and the current Plan strategy is set up to fail by not even maintaining a 5-year supply of deliverable housing sites across the Plan period. Further the Council’s strategy that is currently reliant on a small number of strategic allocations for delivery has singularly failed to address the clear and present need for housing now. The strategy consciously looks to push delivery back to the end of the Plan period whilst ignoring available, suitable and achievable sites that are situated in acknowledged sustainable locations.

1.5 The Green Belt boundary review undertaken by the Council is woefully inadequate and fails to properly consider all suitable locations, such as the promotion site, that could be delivered in the early years of the Plan period and without material harm to the objectives of the Green Belt as demonstrated by the detailed technical appraisal evidence provided by Bewley Homes.

1.6 The development strategy in the emerging Plan therefore requires fundamental review to enable the Council to address the needs of the Borough’s residents.

1.7 Furthermore and for the reasons Bewley has identified above there are fundamental flaws in the Council’s proposals to allocate 2,000 dwellings at Wisley and 1,800 dwellings at Blackwell Farm. The removal of these two allocations would place greater importance on the identification of other suitable and sustainable locations in the Borough to meet the overall housing need. Notwithstanding this point there is a need for the allocation of further sites to ensure sufficient flexibility in terms of supply of housing throughout the Plan period and to enable the Council to respond positively to changes in demand and delivery without needing to revert to a review of the Local Plan.

1.8 In specific relation to Effingham Bewley Homes’ notes that the Council had previously (at the Sites Issues and Options Consultation stage in October 2013) proposed two locations as potential housing allocations and Green Belt boundary releases at Effingham.

1.9 It would appear from a review of the Green Belt assessment prepared by Pegasus on behalf of the Council that the two proposed allocations were simply removed by the Council purely on the basis that they attracted objection rather than as a result of objective assessment.

1.10 Setting this point to one side and as set out in Sections 2 and 3 above the Council has not undertaken a full review of all suitable and available alternatives nor has its consultants explored other options for release from the Green Belt. As a consequence the Council has simply decided to change from a position whereby housing was to be allocated in Effingham to a position that it now proposes no growth to meet the needs of the community at all throughout the plan period.

1.11 The Council’s approach in this regard is without foundation and based on flawed evidence.

1.12 As demonstrated in the attached appraisals (and explored below) land at Orestan Lane represents a viable location for a relatively limited release of land from the Green Belt to provide a scale of development that is appropriate and proportionate to the size of the settlement, which the Council itself acknowledge as a sustainable location.

1.13 Much of the attached appraisal information was provided to the Council in representations submitted in 2013. This information remains relevant to these representations given that the Council has not acted on or responded to the original representations. Updates and additional information is also included to ensure the appraisals respond to the approach the Council is now pursuing in the Plan.

1.14 As identified in Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations the Council’s current development strategy fails to ensure delivery in the early years of the plan period to meet the needs of the Borough’s population in terms of new housing. There is a need for the release of more modest scale housing sites in sustainable locations, such as Effingham, that can deliver housing in the first 5 years of the Plan period in particular. Equally the Council’s current approach fails the residents of Effingham in terms of meeting their needs for further open market and affordable housing.

1.15 As confirmed in the Council’s own Settlement Hierarchy Study (May 2014) Effingham is regarded as a Large Village, which is the third tier in the settlement hierarchy below the Rural Service Centre of East Horsley and the Urban Area of Guildford, Ash and Tongham. Effingham is therefore a suitable and sustainable location for accommodating a modest scale of growth in the manner proposed by Bewley Homes in these representations.

1.16 Turning to consider Bewley Homes promotion site. Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham is considered to comprise a suitable location for release from the Green Belt and allocation for approximately 40 dwellings to help deliver the Council’s housing requirement for the following reasons:

Location and Context:

1.16.1 The proposed allocation site is situated immediately adjacent to the currently proposed boundary for the settlement of Effingham and fronts onto Orestan Lane. As set out above Effingham comprises a sustainable location for growth as identified by the Council in its settlement hierarchy. The Council’s regard for the sustainability of the settlement is also reflected by its initial proposal for allocation options in 2013 on peripheral greenfield sites as releases from the Green Belt.

1.16.2 The promotion site itself comprises three paddocks that are well contained by mature landscape planting and trees. The site is framed by existing residential development to the north (Leeewood Way) and development to the south of Orestan Lane and further west along the lane.

1.16.3 In both physical and visual terms the site relates well to the settlement and appears as part of the settlement when viewed on the ground.

1.16.4 The site benefits from direct access to local services and facilities as set out in the attached Transport Accessibility Appraisal prepared by Motion. With regard to the relative accessibility of the site to services and facilities when compared with the two locations that the Council explored in 2013 it is apparent that, using the same methodology as that employed by the Council, the promotion site scores better in terms of its accessibility and is therefore more sustainability located in terms of the existing services and facilities in the village.

Contribution to Green Belt and Landscape and Visual Impact:

1.16.5 Having established that Effingham is considered to comprise a sustainable location for growth and that the promotion site is well related to the settlement the next key consideration is the matter of the contribution that the site makes to the Green Belt alongside more general landscape and visual impact issues.

1.16.6 It is relevant to note that the Council’s Green Belt and Countryside Study undertaken by Pegasus in January 2013 did not assess the promotion site when consideration was given to Effingham. No conclusion has therefore been drawn on behalf of the Council as to the contribution the promotion site may make to the Green Belt.

1.16.7 To address this matter Bewley has instructed its landscape architect HDA to undertake a review of the contribution the site makes to the Green Belt and also more general landscape and visual impact issues. A copy of the review is attached at Annex 3.

1.16.8 In summary the review concluded the following:

‘If the site were developed it would infill a gap in the existing settlement which has well defined boundaries. The site would not therefore result in the “unrestricted sprawl” of Effingham. Development of the site would not result in the coalescence of settlements. East Horsley is separated from the site and Effingham by a large belt of woodland which physically and visually separates the two settlements and is key to the functionality of these settlements. Development within the site would have no effect on the separation of Effingham and East Horsley…..’

‘In conclusion, the site would form a discrete and appropriate location for residential development in Effingham. The site could be developed without adverse impacts on the Green Belt designation or Effingham Conservation Area. There are strong landscape features on the site which should be retained and would add character and containment to a new development, integrating the site into the existing settlement edge.’

1.16.9 It is therefore evident that in terms both of the Green Belt and landscape and visual impact matters the promotion site is acceptable and should be released for housing.
Heritage Assets – Effingham Conservation Area:

1.16.10 The site is located partly within the Effingham Conservation Area and therefore the impact that any residential development would have on this Heritage Asset needs to be given careful consideration.

1.16.11 This matter has been considered by Bewley Homes’ project team and in particular relation to visual and physical impacts HDA concludes that:

‘In the context of the Effingham Conservation Area the site has no visual relationship with the historic core of the village and does not affect the setting of any local listed buildings. The site comprises a number of fields in pasture used for grazing horses and as such the impact of the site at present could be described as neutral in terms of its contribution to the character of the Conservation Area, rather than either positive or adverse. Building on the site affords opportunities for enhancement of the Conservation Area, particularly if the new housing development were of ‘modestly sized two storey dwellings set in small terraces or pairs…..together with irregularly shaped plots, visible gardens, trees, open green spaces’. Appropriate development within the site could make a positive contribution to local character and distinctiveness.’

Transport and Highway Impacts:

1.16.12 In relation to transport and highway impacts the technical appraisal undertaken by Motion confirms that adequate vehicular access can be achieved to the site from Orestan Lane in accordance with the requirements set out in Manual for Streets.

1.16.13 The site is well located in terms of local community facilities that can be accessed via a range of transportation modes in accordance with the requirements of the Framework and the NPPG.

1.16.14 The site is therefore sustainably located in relation to existing services and facilities within the settlement of Effingham.

Flooding and Drainage:

1.16.15 The whole site is within Flood Zone 1 on the Environment Agency’s indicative flood mapping and is not identified as being at risk from any known surface water flooding events. In this respect the site is sequentially preferable in flood risk terms. Furthermore the site is sequentially preferable when compared with a number of other locations such as Land at Wisley and Normandy/Flexford both of which contain land in Flood Zones 2 and 3.

1.16.16 There are no known land drainage issues on the site and in this respect a Sustainable Urban Drainage System (“SUDS”) could be employed as part of any development on the land.

Other Technical Considerations:

1.16.17 Other technical considerations such as ecology, archaeology, arboriculture, noise, etc are not considered to pose a constraint to the development of the site for housing such as to preclude the favourable consideration of the site as a housing allocation.

The Approach to Allocation – Presumption in Favour of Sustainable Development:

1.16.18 Taking into account Bewley’s representations that consider the need for the allocation of additional sites to ensure the Council can deliver housing in the early years of the plan period combined with the flaws in at least two of its large scale allocations there is a clear and present need for the inclusion of this site for housing in the Local Plan.

1.16.19 The Government emphasis in national Policy is centre on the presumption in favour of sustainable development. Paragraph 7 of the Framework identifies the three strands of sustainable development as comprising the economic, social and environmental strands. If these can be met then there is a clear presumption in favour that should lead to the natural conclusion the land should be allocated for housing.
1.16.20 Economic – The delivery of new housing on the promotion site will secure local employment in the short term during the construction phase, which is now a well-established and accepted benefit of residential development. Additionally any new residential development will contribute to the local economy in terms of Planning Obligations and via other means such as future Council tax revenues, new homes bonus and indirectly through increased revenue into the local economy. The economic limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

1.16.21 Social – As set out earlier within Bewley’s representations there is a clear and present need for new housing in the Borough now to meet the substantial shortfall in supply and to ensure that the OAN can be delivered year on year from the start of the plan period rather than from half way through it. Additionally the Council’s SHMA identifies substantial affordable housing need that cannot ever be met in the life of the new Plan based on the proposed affordable housing policy approach. Finally the Council’s proposed reliance upon strategic development, particularly at Wisley and Blackwell Farm, is likely to lead to failure in terms of delivering the overall housing requirement where the Council is reliant upon every source of supply to deliver in order to meet its OAN.

1.16.22 Therefore any proposals of more modest scale that can deliver a range of open market and affordable dwellings in a timely manner will result in social benefit in terms of helping to meet the clearly identified needs and providing the Council with a buffer of additional housing to help safeguard against non-delivery elsewhere.

1.16.23 Environmental – It has been demonstrated through the detailed review undertaken by HDA that the site can be released from the Green Belt without causing any unacceptable harm either in Green Belt or landscape and visual impact terms. Furthermore the site is accessible to local services and facilities, integrates well with the settlement and, will not give rise to any undue adverse impacts on the local highway network. The environmental limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

1.17 For all of the above reasons it is considered that Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham comprises a sustainable location for the allocation of approximately 40 dwellings that will assist the Council in ensuring its housing delivery obligations are met and that most importantly delivery of the right level of housing takes place early in the plan period.

1.18 Bewley therefore considers that for the Plan to be found sound further land allocations are required and Land at Orestan Lane, Effingham comprises a sustainable option that is available for immediate delivery. The site should be allocated for housing, included within the settlement and removed from the Green Belt.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

1.2 As a starting point it is important to highlight that Bewley is supportive of the Council’s identification of Wood Street Village as a sustainable location and as a consequence the proposal to remove the settlement from the Green Belt.

1.3 This section focuses on Bewley’s objection to the Plan on the basis that further greenfield housing sites are required to deliver the housing necessary to meet the OAN and most importantly smaller sites should be allocated to enable delivery in the early years of the plan period together with ensuring flexibility.

1.4 The need for the Council to properly consider the available supply from smaller sites currently within the Green Belt is of vital importance. The level of historic under supply in the Borough is substantial and the current Plan strategy is set up to fail by not even maintaining a 5-year supply of deliverable housing sites across the Plan period. Further the Council’s strategy that is currently reliant on a small number of strategic allocations for delivery has singularly failed to address the clear and present need for housing now. The strategy consciously looks to push delivery back to the end of the Plan period whilst ignoring available, suitable and achievable sites that are situated in acknowledged sustainable locations.

1.5 The Green Belt boundary review undertaken by the Council is woefully inadequate and fails to properly consider all suitable locations, such as the promotion site, that could be delivered in the early years of the Plan period and without material harm to the objectives of the Green Belt as demonstrated by the detailed technical appraisal evidence provided by Bewley Homes. The Council has missed the opportunity presented by Bewley Homes’ promotion site in this instance given that it comprises previously-developed land partly within the settlement. In accordance with the Council’s spatial strategy the release of land such as this promotion site is a priority for the Council, which has been completely overlooked in this instance.

1.6 The development strategy in the emerging Plan therefore requires fundamental review to enable the Council to address the needs of the Borough’s residents.

1.7 Furthermore and for the reasons Bewley has identified above there are fundamental flaws in the Council’s proposals to allocate 2,000 dwellings at Wisley and 1,800 dwellings at Blackwell Farm. The removal of these two allocations would place greater importance on the identification of other suitable and sustainable locations in the Borough to meet the overall housing need. Notwithstanding this point there is a need for the allocation of further sites to ensure sufficient flexibility in terms of supply of housing throughout the Plan period and to enable the Council to respond positively to changes in demand and delivery without needing to revert to a review of the Local Plan.

1.8 As set out in Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations the Council has not undertaken a full review of all suitable and available alternatives nor has its consultants explored other options for release from the Green Belt. As a consequence the Council has simply decided not to make any provision for growth to meet the needs of the community at all throughout the plan period within Wood Street Village.

1.9 The Council’s approach in this regard is without foundation and based on flawed evidence.

1.10 As demonstrated in the attached appraisals (and explored below) land at Hester’s Yard represents a viable location for a relatively limited release of land from the Green Belt on a previously-developed site to provide a scale of development that is appropriate and proportionate to the size of the settlement, which the Council itself acknowledge as a sustainable location.

1.11 As identified in Part 1 of Bewley Homes representations the Council’s current development strategy fails to ensure delivery in the early years of the plan period to meet the needs of the Borough’s population in terms of new housing. There is a need for the release of more modest scale housing sites in sustainable locations, such as Wood Street Village, that can deliver housing in the first 5 years of the Plan period in particular. Equally the Council’s current approach fails the residents of Wood Street Village in terms of meeting their needs for further open market and affordable housing.

1.12 As confirmed in the Council’s own Settlement Hierarchy Study (May 2014) Wood Street Village is regarded as a Large Village, which is the third tier in the settlement hierarchy below the Rural Service Centre of East Horsley and the Urban Area of Guildford, Ash and Tongham. Wood Street Village is therefore a suitable and sustainable location for accommodating a modest scale of growth in the manner proposed by Bewley Homes in these representations.
1.13 Turning to consider Bewley Homes promotion site. Land at Hester’s Yard, Wood Street Village is considered to comprise a suitable location for release from the Green Belt and allocation for approximately 40 dwellings to help deliver the Council’s housing requirement for the following reasons:

Location and Context:

1.13.1 The proposed allocation site is situated immediately adjacent to the currently proposed boundary for the settlement of Wood Street Village and the front section of the site is actually within the settlement and benefits from a direct road frontage onto Oak Hill. As set out above Wood Street Village comprises a sustainable location for growth as identified by the Council in its settlement hierarchy. The Council’s regard for the sustainability of the settlement is reflected in its desire to roll back the Green Belt boundaries in the Plan.

1.13.2 The promotion site itself comprises a variety of commercial uses including open storage, vehicle repairs and servicing. The site is predominantly previously developed land in accordance with the definition set out in Annex 2 of the Framework.

1.13.3 Given the emphasis that the Council is placing upon the release of previously developed land to meet its housing requirement this promotion site is considered to comprise just the kind of location that should be allocated in accordance with Paragraph 4.1.6 of the Plan that states:

> Our preference is to focus growth in the most sustainable locations, making best use of previously developed land (including in the Green Belt if appropriate).’ (Bold is our emphasis)

1.13.4 In both physical and visual terms the site relates well to the settlement and appears as part of the settlement when viewed on the ground.

1.13.5 The site benefits from direct access to local services and facilities as set out in the attached Transport Accessibility Appraisal prepared by Motion.

Contribution to Green Belt and Landscape and Visual Impact:

1.13.6 Having established that Wood Street Village is considered to comprise a sustainable location for growth and that the promotion site is well related to the settlement the next key consideration is the matter of the contribution that the site makes to the Green Belt alongside more general landscape and visual impact issues.

1.13.7 It is relevant to note that the Council’s Green Belt and Countryside Study undertaken by Pegasus in January 2013 did not assess the promotion site when consideration was given to Wood Street Village. No conclusion has therefore been drawn on behalf of the Council as to the contribution the promotion site may make to the Green Belt.

1.13.8 To address this matter Bewley has instructed its landscape architect EDP to undertake a review of the contribution the site makes to the Green Belt and also more general landscape and visual impact issues. A copy of the review is attached at Annex 2.

1.13.9 In summary the review concluded the following:

> This review provides a clear indication that the site is entirely suitable for extraction from the Green Belt, without resulting in any adverse effects on the Green Belt function as identified within the NPPF, or on the local landscape character or the amenity of local visual receptors. This results primarily from the clearly demarcated boundary features, existing commercial uses within the site, the enclosed nature of the site and the consequential limitation in landscape and visual effects, but also the way in which the site is severed from the key area providing openness between Wood Street Village and Fairlands.

> A development which seeks to address the constraints of the site, would contribute to retaining the openness of the Green Belt by providing much needed housing on a site where Green Belt function would not be comprised, whilst also providing a sustainable and high quality development which links very well to the existing village.’
1.13.10 It is therefore evident that in terms both of the Green Belt and landscape and visual impact matters the promotion site is acceptable and should be released for housing.

Transport and Highway Impacts:

1.13.11 In relation to transport and highway impacts the technical appraisal undertaken by Motion confirms that adequate vehicular access can be achieved to the site from Oak Hill in accordance with the requirements set out in Manual for Streets.

1.13.12 The site is well located in terms of local community facilities that can be accessed via a range of transportation modes in accordance with the requirements of the Framework and the NPPG.

1.13.13 The site is therefore sustainably located in relation to existing services and facilities within the settlement of Wood Street Village.

Flooding and Drainage:

1.13.14 The whole site is within Flood Zone 1 on the Environment Agency’s indicative flood mapping and is not identified as being at risk from any known surface water flooding events. In this respect the site is sequentially preferable in flood risk terms. Furthermore the site is sequentially preferable when compared with a number of other locations such as Land at Wisley and Normandy/Flexford both of which contain land in Flood Zones 2 and 3.

1.13.15 There are no known land drainage issues on the site and in this respect a Sustainable Urban Drainage System (“SUDS”) could be employed as part of any development on the land.

Other Technical Considerations:

1.13.16 Other technical considerations such as ecology, archaeology, arboriculture, noise, etc are not considered to pose a constraint to the development of the site for housing such as to preclude the favourable consideration of the site as a housing allocation.

The Approach to Allocation – Presumption in Favour of Sustainable Development:

1.13.17 Taking into account Bewley’s representations that consider the need for the allocation of additional sites to ensure the Council can deliver housing in the early years of the plan period combined with the flaws in at least two of its large scale allocations there is a clear and present need for the inclusion of this site for housing in the Local Plan.

Additionally any new residential development will contribute to the local economy in terms of Planning Obligations and via other means such as future Council tax revenues, new homes bonus and indirectly through increased revenue into the local economy. The economic limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

1.13.20 Social – As set out earlier within Bewley’s representations there is a clear and present need for new housing in the Borough now to meet the substantial shortfall in supply and to ensure that the OAN can be delivered year on year from the start of the plan period rather than from half way through it. Additionally the Council’s SHMA identifies substantial affordable housing need that cannot ever be met in the life of the new Plan based on the proposed affordable housing policy approach. Finally the Council’s proposed reliance upon strategic development, particularly at Wisley and Blackwell Farm, is likely to lead to failure in terms of delivering the overall housing requirement where the Council is reliant upon every source of supply to deliver in order to meet its OAN.
1.13.21 Therefore any proposals of more modest scale that can deliver a range of open market and affordable dwellings in a timely manner will result in social benefit in terms of helping to meet the clearly identified needs and providing the Council with a buffer of additional housing to help safeguard against non-delivery elsewhere.

1.0 Detailed Representations in Relation to West Horsley

1.1 Having provided representations in relation to the Plan as drafted and the accompanying SA (see Part 1 of Bewley Homes’ representations) this section sets out Bewley Homes’ proposal for the allocation of land at Foxbury, West Horsley as a sustainable location immediately adjacent to the settlement. The proposal is supported, where relevant, by appropriate detailed technical evidence primarily in relation to the following matters:

- Landscape and Visual Impact and Green Belt
- Highways and Transportation Matters

1.2 As a starting point it is important to highlight that Bewley is supportive of the Council’s identification of East and West Horsley as a sustainable location for accommodating growth and as a consequence the proposal to remove the settlement from the Green Belt and allocate new housing land.

1.3 This section focuses on Bewley’s objection to the Plan on the basis that further greenfield housing sites are clearly required to deliver the housing necessary to meet the correct OAN and most importantly smaller sites should be allocated to enable delivery in the early years of the plan period together with ensuring flexibility.

1.4 The need for the Council to properly consider the available supply from smaller sites currently within the Green Belt is of vital importance. The level of historic under supply in the Borough is substantial and the current Plan strategy is set up to fail by not even maintaining a 5-year supply of deliverable housing sites across the Plan period. 1.5 The Green Belt boundary review undertaken by the Council is woefully inadequate and fails to properly consider all suitable locations, such as the promotion site, that could be delivered in the early years of the Plan period and without material harm to the objectives of the Green Belt as demonstrated by the detailed technical appraisal evidence provided by Bewley Homes.

1.6 The development strategy in the emerging Plan therefore requires fundamental review to enable the Council to address the needs of the Borough’s residents.

1.7 Furthermore and for the reasons Bewley has identified above there are fundamental flaws in the Council’s proposals to allocate 2,000 dwellings at Wisley and 1,800 dwellings at Blackwell Farm. The removal of these two allocations would place greater importance on the identification of other suitable and sustainable locations in the Borough to meet the overall housing need. Notwithstanding this point there is a need for the allocation of further sites to ensure sufficient flexibility in terms of supply of housing throughout the Plan period and to enable the Council to respond positively to changes in demand and delivery without needing to revert to a review of the Local Plan.

1.8 Horsley is a sustainable location for accommodating further growth and the Council has not properly assessed its capacity nor has it considered the detailed technical appraisal information presented by Bewley Homes in its representations to the first Regulation 19 consultation in 2016. This failure on the part of the Council has resulted in the Plan missing the opportunity to allocate further land in a sustainable manner to help meet the needs of the Borough’s residents.

1.11 Turning to consider Bewley Homes promotion site. Land at Foxbury is considered to comprise a suitable location for release from the Green Belt and allocation for approximately 50 dwellings to help deliver the Council’s housing requirement for the following reasons:

Location and Context:

1.11.1 The proposed allocation site is situated immediately adjacent to the currently proposed boundary for the settlement of West Horsley and fronts onto the A246 (Epsom Road). West Horsley comprises a sustainable location for growth as identified by the Council in its settlement hierarchy. The Council’s regard for the sustainability of the settlement is also reflected its proposed allocation of some 485 dwellings on other sites including peripheral greenfield locations.

1.11.2 The promotion site itself is framed by Cranmore School and its grounds to the west, Squires Garden Centre to the east, an area of woodland (within Bewley’s control) to the north and the A246 to the south.

1.11.3 In both physical and visual terms the site relates well to the settlement and appears as part of the settlement when viewed on the ground.

1.11.4 The site benefits from direct access to local services and facilities as illustrated on the attached plan (see Transport Accessibility Appraisal prepared by Motion – Annex 3) and in particular the following key facilities:

- Cranmore School
- Newsagent
- Dentist
- Post Office
- Village Hall
- Bus Stops

Contribution to Green Belt and Landscape and Visual Impact:

1.11.5 Having established that West Horsley is considered to comprise a sustainable location for growth and that the promotion site is well related to the settlement the next key consideration is the matter of the contribution that the site makes to the Green Belt alongside more general landscape and visual impact issues.

1.11.6 It is relevant to note that the Council’s Green Belt and Countryside Study undertaken by Pegasus in January 2013 did not assess the promotion site when consideration was given to West Horsley. No conclusion has therefore been drawn on behalf of the Council as to the contribution the promotion site may make to the Green Belt.
1.11.7 To address this matter Bewley has instructed its landscape architect EDP to undertake a review of the contribution the site makes to the Green Belt and also more general landscape and visual impact issues. A copy of the review is attached at Annex 2.

1.11.8 In summary the review concluded the following:

‘…..the findings of the review undertaken clearly demonstrate that the site could be released from Green Belt without adversely affecting the wider functions in the context of the area of open land between East and West Horsley. The consideration goes further to consider the sustainability issues of the site, and whether the boundaries of the site could provide a long term, defensible, development area, which serves to contribute to Green Belt functions.

In these respects the site is again found to be viable, both with reference to the other Potential Development Areas (PDAs) around the village (as identified within the Council’s Green Belt review of 2015) and also in its own right. The site is essentially a parcel of land contained on all sides by existing strong boundary features (mostly of an urban character), and serves no function in terms of maintaining the open area between East and West Horsley.

In terms of potential landscape and visual effects, the limitation in views available of a proposed development in this location confirms that development on the site would have little, or no, effects upon either sensitive or non-sensitive receptors, with any change limited to those receptors passing along the A246, a small number of adjacent residential dwellings and glimpse views from a nearby bridleway.

In landscape terms the site is not within the AONB or AGLV, and will not be openly visible from either area; indeed it is likely that there will be no views from the AONB, except perhaps distant views from a small number of residences along Shere Road, where views would be in the context of the existing settlement. There will be a change from an open pasture field to one of built development, but even the Council’s own Green Belt study identifies (erroneously) this site as medium density development, indicating the heavily influenced character of the site.’

1.11.9 It is therefore evident that in terms both of the Green Belt and landscape and visual impact matters the promotion site is acceptable and should be released for housing.

Transport and Highway Impacts:

1.11.10 In relation to transport and highway impacts the technical appraisal undertaken by Motion confirms that adequate vehicular access can be achieved to the site from Epsom Road in accordance with the requirements set out in Manual for Streets.

1.11.11 The site is well located in terms of local community facilities that can be accessed via a range of transportation modes in accordance with the requirements of the Framework and the NPPG.

1.11.12 The site is therefore sustainably located in relation to existing services and facilities within the settlement of West Horsley.

Flooding and Drainage:

1.11.13 The whole site is within Flood Zone 1 on the Environment Agency’s indicative flood mapping and is not identified as being at risk from many known surface water flooding events. In this respect the site is sequentially preferable in flood risk terms. Furthermore the site is sequentially preferable when compared with a number of other locations such as Land at Wisley and Normandy/Flexford both of which contain land in Flood Zones 2 and 3.

1.11.14 There are no known land drainage issues on the site and in this respect a Sustainable Urban Drainage System
(“SUDS”) could be employed as part of any development on the land.

Other Technical Considerations:

1.11.15 Other technical considerations such as ecology, archaeology, arboriculture, noise, etc are not considered to pose a constraint to the development of the site for housing such as to preclude the favourable consideration of the site as a housing allocation.
The Approach to Allocation – Presumption in Favour of Sustainable Development:

1.11.16 Taking into account Bewley’s representations that consider the need for the allocation of additional sites to ensure the Council can deliver housing in the early years of the plan period combined with the flaws in at least two of its large scale allocations there is a clear and present need for the inclusion of this site for housing in the Local Plan.

1.11.17 The Government emphasis in national Policy is centre on the presumption in favour of sustainable development. Paragraph 7 of the Framework identifies the three strands of sustainable development as comprising the economic, social and environmental strands. If these can be met then there is a clear presumption in favour that should lead to the natural conclusion the land should be allocated for housing.

1.11.18 Economic – The delivery of new housing on the promotion site will secure local employment in the short term during the construction phase, which is now a well established and accepted benefit of residential development. Additionally any new residential development will contribute to the local economy in terms of Planning Obligations and via other means such as future Council tax revenues, new homes bonus and indirectly through increased revenue into the local economy. The economic limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

1.11.19 Social – As set out earlier within Bewley’s representations there is a clear and present need for new housing in the Borough now to meet the substantial shortfall in supply and to ensure that the OAN can be delivered year on year from the start of the plan period rather than from half way through it. Additionally the Council’s SHMA identifies substantial affordable housing need that cannot ever be met in the life of the new Plan based on the proposed affordable housing policy approach. Finally the Council’s proposed reliance upon strategic development, particularly at Wisley and Blackwell Farm, is likely to lead to failure in terms of delivering the overall housing requirement where the Council is reliant upon every source of supply to deliver in order to meet its OAN.

1.11.20 Therefore any proposals of more modest scale that can deliver a range of open market and affordable dwellings in a timely manner will result in social benefit in terms of helping to meet the clearly identified needs and providing the Council with a buffer of additional housing to help safeguard against non-delivery elsewhere.

1.11.21 Environmental – It has been demonstrated through the detailed review undertaken by EDP that the site can be released from the Green Belt without causing any unacceptable harm either in Green Belt or landscape and visual impact terms. Furthermore the site is accessible to local services and facilities, integrates well with the settlement and will not give rise to any undue adverse impacts on the local highway network. The environmental limb is therefore met by the promotion site.

1.12 For all of the above reasons it is considered that Land at Foxbury, West Horsley comprises a sustainable location for the allocation of approximately 50 dwellings that will assist the Council in ensuring its housing delivery obligations are met and that most importantly delivery of the right level of housing takes place early in the plan period.

1.13 Bewley therefore considers that for the Plan to be found sound further land allocations are required and Land at Foxbury comprises a sustainable option that is available for immediate delivery. The site should be allocated for housing, removed from the Green Belt and included within the settlement boundary for West Horsley.

Representations relating to Policy S2 ‘Housing Provision’

Since the publication of the NPPF in 2012, the central thrust of the Government’s planning strategy has been to ‘significantly boost’ the supply of housing, including a requirement for Local Planning Authorities (LPA) to meet the full, objectively assessed needs (OAN) for housing within their areas. Policy S2 sets out how the Council intends to meet the housing needs of the Borough over the plan period, therefore these representations relate to the adequacy of this policy in meeting these needs, with particular regard to the issues of the deficit in supply, the need to account for market signals, and the duty to cooperate. We suggest that potential solutions to housing supply could include the identification of additional housing site allocations and an increased windfall allowance to allow flexibility to adapt to changing needs.

Supply Deficit

As stated above, it is important that the plan genuinely addresses the full OAN for the Borough if the Council are to demonstrate a 5-year housing land supply in the early years of the emerging plan period. Significantly, the NPPF requires that where there has been a persistent under delivery of housing, a buffer of 20% should be applied to provide a realistic prospect of achieving the planned supply.

We note that housing supply within Guildford Borough has been somewhat low in recent years. The Council’s Land Availability Assessment (LAA) published February 2016 notes that as of the monitoring year 2015/16, there is an existing shortfall of at least 1,351 units, which is expected to increase to 2,019 units by monitoring year 2017/18. Based on the Council’s housing delivery expectations, the emerging Local Plan will not address this shortfall until the year 2026/27.

On the basis of the housing supply identified within the Pre Submission Local Plan, we do not consider that the Council would be able to sustain a 5 year housing land supply into the plan period, therefore it is our view that further sites should be identified to enable the Council to deliver more housing within the first 5 years. This will enable the Council to meet its OAN prior to larger strategic sites coming forward in accordance with the housing trajectory in the LAA.

Improving affordability, having regard to market signals The NPPF explains at Paragraph 17 that there are certain underlying principles which should be applied when assessing housing need. One of these is the need to take into account market signals, such as land prices and housing affordability:

“[Local Plans] should take account of market signals, such as land prices and housing affordability, and set out a clear strategy for allocating sufficient land which is suitable for development in their area”

NPPF 2012, Paragraph 17

Expanding on this, the NPPG emphasises the importance of providing for relevant market signals in providing the full, objectively assessed housing needs of the area:

“The housing need number suggested by household projections (the starting point) should be adjusted to reflect appropriate market signals, as well as other market indicators of the balance between the demand for and supply of dwellings. Prices or rents rising faster than the national/local average may well indicate particular market undersupply relative to demand.”

NPPG, Paragraph 19

The Council acknowledges the increasing gap between earnings and average house prices, which is higher than the average for Surrey and significantly higher than the national average.

The House Price Index (HPI) uses the Land Registry’s dataset of completed sales, and is reported on a monthly basis. In the most recent monthly report on 14th June 2016, the HPI revealed an 8.7% annual increase in house prices in Guildford to £418,806, compared with the national average house price of £224,731. Furthermore, the Index of Private Housing Rental Prices (IPHRP), which is produced by the Office for National Statistics on a quarterly basis, shows a 3.4% annual increase in private rents across the South East, compared to 2.6% in England and Wales as at May 2016.

It is our view that the extraordinary price and rent increases in the Borough are a market signal that additional housing is required in order to meet demand. This is at least a partial consequence of previous under delivery in the first 3 years of the plan period, and will likely worsen throughout the plan unless there is a significant boost to the supply of housing. With this in mind, we would recommend a number of additional housing site allocations to account for market signals in accordance with the NPPF and to enable the Council to demonstrate an ongoing five-year housing land supply.

Duty to Cooperate

The NPPF duty to cooperate requires that LPAs demonstrate evidence of having effectively cooperated to plan for issues with cross-boundary impacts, including the delivery of housing development to meet the full objectively assessed needs of the area:

“Local planning authorities will be expected to demonstrate evidence of having effectively cooperated to plan for issues with cross-boundary impacts when their Local Plans are submitted for examination. This could be by way of plans or policies prepared as part of a joint committee, a memorandum of understanding or a jointly prepared strategy which is presented as evidence of an agreed position. Cooperation should be a continuous process of engagement from initial... thinking through to implementation, resulting in a final position where plans are in place to provide the land and infrastructure necessary to support current and projected future levels of development.”
NPPF 2012, Paragraph 181

The NPPF requires Local Plans to seek to deliver “the unmet requirements of neighbouring authorities where it is reasonable to do so and consistent with achieving sustainable development”
NPPF 2012, Paragraph 43

The West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) September 2015 identifies important cross boundary interactions not only within the HMA, but also with neighbouring authorities:

“Although weaker than the core relationships, there are identifiable and important functional interactions with adjoining authorities of East Hampshire, Rushmoor, Surrey Heath, Runnymede and Elmbridge. In the context of the Duty to Cooperate, these authorities in particular should be engaged in strategic housing issues not only in the preparation of the SHMA but also the subsequent development of plan policies.”

SHMA 2015, Paragraph 10.5

There is an unmet need for housing in Guildford’s neighbouring authorities, including Surrey Heath Borough, which has a claimed housing land supply of just 3.67 years, including a backlog of at least 721 dwellings since monitoring year 2011. In addition, London is expected to have an unmet need of up to 200,000 dwellings over its current plan period (2015-2025). Research carried out by Nathaniel Lichfield and Partners for the consultation on the Further Alterations to the London Plan, indicated that Guildford could be expected to provide up to 2,177 dwellings over this period. At present, there is no indication of making any provision for this wider need within the Pre Submission Local Plan.

It is our view that opportunities still exist throughout Guildford Borough to deliver some or more housing in the most sustainable settlements in line with the objectives of national planning policy and in the spirit of the duty to cooperate. As such, it is our view that additional housing allocations are required to assist in meeting some of the identified need within neighbouring authorities, whilst also supporting the vitality of the communities within the towns and villages across the borough.

We consider that given the above uncertainties and the need for housing delivery in the first five years, a higher windfall allowance is required to enable flexibility in supply and facilitate suitable sites coming forward in the early years of the plan period.

Allocated Housing Sites

The Pre Submission Local Plan provides for the delivery of 13,860 dwellings in the plan period 2013-2033, including a number of smaller site allocations to deliver housing in the period 2019/20 to 2022/23. If delivery is provided in line with the plan, then the LAA housing trajectory estimates that there will be a cumulative deficit of around 900 dwellings after the first five years of the plan period.

There is therefore an additional need for housing within the first 5 years of the plan period. This can be best delivered by identifying a number of further housing site allocations in sustainable locations across the Borough and in the areas of lowest constraint to enable the Council to meet both its own housing need as well as assisting with meeting that of neighbouring authorities.

In conclusion, we consider that an increase in housing land supply is required if the plan is to be consistent with national policy and therefore ‘sound’ with respect to the NPPF.

With regard to the expected shortfall of circa 2,000 dwellings by 2017/18, it is our view that at least a further 400 dwellings per annum are required in the first 5 years of the plan period, to enable the Council to meet its OAN prior to larger strategic sites coming forward in accordance with the housing trajectory in the LAA. In addition, we consider that the plan should account for market signals and the duty to cooperate, to ensure a robust and realistic housing land supply. Given the issues discussed within this representation, it is our view that the council should work proactively to identify and include additional site allocations in sustainable locations in the towns and villages and areas of least constraint. This would allow the Council to bring forward housing more quickly in the early years of the plan period in a way that fits the overall strategic vision of the Local Plan.

We trust that these representations will be useful and clear and we would be grateful for confirmation of receipt. In the meantime, please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any queries or require any further information.

Guildford Pre Submission Local Plan – Representations
Re. Land to the rear of Greenhill and Burnside, Chinthurst Lane, Shalford

Thakeham Homes Ltd are submitting representations to the Guildford Pre Submission Local Plan as local stakeholders. Thakeham are a house builder based in Sussex with a track record for delivering high quality, sustainable schemes across Surrey, Sussex and Hampshire. We are progressing a number of potential development sites within this Borough at varying stages of the planning process, therefore our representations specifically relate to the role of the emerging Local Plan in the delivery of the Borough’s housing need over the plan period.

We wish to support the progression of the Local Plan and make comments within our representations on the basis that the proposed housing numbers should be increased in line with the requirements of the National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) to meet the full, objectively assessed housing needs of the Borough.

We also wish to make representations with regard to the need for a clear and robust supply of housing sites in the first five years of the plan period, including through the identification of additional specific, deliverable sites for residential development. In addition, we also make representations to the proposed affordable housing policies and the need for flexibility to adapt to change. As such, these representations concern Policies S2 and H2 of the Pre Submission Plan and their relationship with the evidence base documents.

Land to the rear of Greenhill and Burnside, Chinthurst Lane, Shalford

These representations are submitted in respect of Thakeham Homes’ interests on land to the rear of Greenhill and Burnside, Chinthurst Lane, Shalford (‘the site’). The site is also known by LAA reference 1264, and has been previously promoted to the Local Plan, including to the Draft Local Plan consultation in autumn 2014.

We wish to support the proposed insetting of Shalford within the Green Belt in the Pre Submission Local Plan, however we object to the proposed designation of the site as ‘Open Space’ and the findings contained within the Amenity Assessment, which does not in our view provide sufficient justification for the allocation.

We confirm within these representations that the site is available and deliverable in the short-term, within the first 5 years of the plan period and that it is set within a highly sustainable location. As such, we wish to make representations on the main policies contained within the Pre Submission Local Plan, before addressing how these relate to the site.

Representations relating to Policy S2 ‘Housing Provision’

Since the publication of the NPPF in 2012, the central thrust of the Government’s planning strategy has been to ‘significantly boost’ the supply of housing, including a requirement for Local Planning Authorities (LPA) to meet the full, objectively assessed needs (OAN) for housing within their areas. The NPPF requires Local Plans to seek to deliver “the unmet requirements of neighbouring authorities where it is reasonable to do so and consistent with achieving sustainable development” NPPF 2012, Paragraph 43
The West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) September 2015 identifies important cross boundary interactions not only within the HMA, but also with neighbouring authorities:

Conclusions

In conclusion, we consider that an increase in housing land supply is required if the plan is to be consistent with national policy and therefore ‘sound’ with respect to the NPPF.

As stated above, we recommend the land to the rear of Greenhill and Burnside, Shalford, is removed from policy I4 as open space due to its minimal amenity value. We have also demonstrated within these representations that we consider the site to be achievable, suitable and achievable for residential development.

We trust that these representations will be useful and clear and we would be grateful for confirmation of receipt. In the meantime, please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any queries or require any further information.

We are progressing a number of potential development sites within this Borough at varying stages of the planning process, therefore our representations specifically relate to the role of the emerging Local Plan in the delivery of the Borough’s housing need over the plan period.

We wish to support the progression of the Local Plan and make comments within our representations on the basis that the proposed housing numbers should be increased in line with the requirements of the National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) to meet the full, objectively assessed housing needs of the Borough.

We also wish to make representations with regard to the need for a clear and robust supply of housing sites in the first five years of the plan period, including through the identification of additional specific, deliverable sites for residential development. In addition, we also make representations to the proposed affordable housing policies and the need for flexibility to adapt to change. As such, these representations concern Policies S2 and H2 of the Pre Submission Plan and their relationship with the evidence base documents.
Land to the North of Grange Road, Ash

These representations are submitted in respect of Thakeham Homes’ interests north of Grange Road, Ash (‘the site’). The site is also known by LAA reference 2247, and is included within the proposed strategic allocation ‘A29 Land south and east of Ash and Tongham’. A red line location plan for the site is appended to this representation at Appendix 1.

We confirm within these representations that the site is available and deliverable within the first 5 years of the plan period and that it is set within a highly sustainable location. As such, we wish to make representations on the policies contained within the Pre Submission Local Plan, and support the proposed allocation of the site for residential development.

Representations relating to Policy S2 ‘Housing Provision’

Since the publication of the NPPF in 2012, the central thrust of the Government’s planning strategy has been to ‘significantly boost’ the supply of housing, including a requirement for Local Planning Authorities (LPA) to meet the full, objectively assessed needs (OAN) for housing within their areas. Policy S2 sets out how the Council intends to meet the housing needs of the Borough over the plan period, therefore these representations relate to the adequacy of this policy in meeting these needs, with particular regard to the issues of the deficit in supply, the need to account for market signals, and the duty to cooperate. We suggest that potential solutions to housing supply could include the identification of additional housing site allocations and an increased windfall allowance to allow flexibility to adapt to changing needs.

Supply Deficit

As stated above, it is important that the plan genuinely addresses the full OAN for the Borough if the Council are to demonstrate a 5-year housing land supply in the early years of the emerging plan period. Significantly, the NPPF requires that where there has been a persistent under delivery of housing, a buffer of 20% should be applied to provide a realistic prospect of achieving the planned supply.

We note that housing supply within Guildford Borough has been somewhat low in recent years. The Council’s Land Availability Assessment (LAA) published February 2016 notes that as of the monitoring year 2015/16, there is an existing shortfall of at least 1,351 units, which is expected to increase to 2,019 units by monitoring year 2017/18. Based on the Council’s housing delivery expectations, the emerging Local Plan will not address this shortfall until the year 2026/27.

On the basis of the housing supply identified within the Pre Submission Local Plan, we do not consider that the Council would be able to sustain a 5 year housing land supply into the plan period, therefore it is our view that further sites should be identified to enable the Council to deliver more housing within the first 5 years. This will enable the Council to meet its OAN prior to larger strategic sites coming forward in accordance with the housing trajectory in the LAA.

Improving affordability, having regard to market signals

The NPPF explains at Paragraph 17 that there are certain underlying principles which should be applied when assessing housing need. One of these is the need to take into account market signals, such as land prices and housing affordability:

“[Local Plans] should take account of market signals, such as land prices and housing affordability, and set out a clear strategy for allocating sufficient land which is suitable for development in their area”

Expanding on this, the NPPG emphasises the importance of providing for relevant market signals in providing the full, objectively assessed housing needs of the area:

“The housing need number suggested by household projections (the starting point) should be adjusted to reflect appropriate market signals, as well as other market indicators of the balance between the demand for and supply of dwellings. Prices or rents rising faster than the national/local average may well indicate particular market undersupply relative to demand.”

NPPG, Paragraph 19
The Council acknowledges the increasing gap between earnings and average house prices, which is higher than the average for Surrey and significantly higher than the national average. The House Price Index (HPI) uses the Land Registry’s dataset of completed sales, and is reported on a monthly basis. In the most recent monthly report on 14th June 2016, the HPI revealed an 8.7% annual increase in house prices in Guildford to £418,806, compared with the national average house price of £224,731. Furthermore, the Index of Private Housing Rental Prices (IPHRP), which is produced by the Office for National Statistics on a quarterly basis, shows a 3.4% annual increase in private rents across the South East, compared to 2.6% in England and Wales as at May 2016.

It is our view that the extraordinary price and rent increases in the Borough are a market signal that additional housing is required in order to meet demand. This is at least a partial consequence of previous under delivery in the first 3 years of the plan period, and will likely worsen throughout the plan unless there is a significant boost to the supply of housing. With this in mind, we would recommend a number of additional housing site allocations to account for market signals in accordance with the NPPF and to enable the Council to demonstrate an ongoing five-year housing land supply.

Duty to Cooperate

The NPPF duty to cooperate requires that LPAs demonstrate evidence of having effectively cooperated to plan for issues with cross-boundary impacts, including the delivery of housing development to meet the full objectively assessed needs of the area:

“Local planning authorities will be expected to demonstrate evidence of having effectively cooperated to plan for issues with cross-boundary impacts when their Local Plans are submitted for examination. This could be by way of plans or policies prepared as part of a joint committee, a memorandum of understanding or a jointly prepared strategy which is presented as evidence of an agreed position. Cooperation should be a continuous process of engagement from initial thinking through to implementation, resulting in a final position where plans are in place to provide the land and infrastructure necessary to support current and projected future levels of development.”

The West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) September 2015 identifies important cross boundary interactions not only within the HMA, but also with neighbouring authorities:

“Although weaker than the core relationships, there are identifiable and important functional interactions with adjoining authorities of East Hampshire, Rushmoor, Surrey Heath, Runnymede and Elmbridge. In the context of the Duty to Cooperate, these authorities in particular should be engaged in strategic housing issues not only in the preparation of the SHMA but also the subsequent development of plan policies.”

SHMA 2015, Paragraph 10.5

There is an unmet need for housing in Guildford’s neighbouring authorities, including Surrey Heath Borough, which has a claimed housing land supply of just 3.67 years, including a backlog of at least 721 dwellings since monitoring year 2011.

In addition, London is expected to have an unmet need of up to 200,000 dwellings over its current plan period (2015-2025). Research carried out by Nathaniel Lichfield and Partners for the consultation on the Further Alterations to the London Plan, indicated that Guildford could be expected to provide up to 2,177 dwellings over this period. At present, there is no indication of making any provision for this wider need within the Pre Submission Local Plan.

It is our view that opportunities still exist throughout Guildford Borough to deliver some or more housing in the most sustainable settlements in line with the objectives of national planning policy and in the spirit of the duty to cooperate. As such, it is our view that additional housing allocations are required to assist in meeting some of the identified need within neighbouring authorities, whilst also supporting the vitality of the communities within the towns and villages across the borough.
We consider that given the above uncertainties and the need for housing delivery in the first five years, a higher windfall allowance is required to enable flexibility in supply and facilitate suitable sites coming forward in the early years of the plan period.

Allocated Housing Sites

The Pre Submission Local Plan provides for the delivery of 13,860 dwellings in the plan period 2013-2033, including a number of smaller site allocations to deliver housing in the period 2019/20 to 2022/23. If delivery is provided in line with the plan, then the LAA housing trajectory estimates that there will be a cumulative deficit of around 900 dwellings after the first five years of the plan period.

There is therefore an additional need for housing within the first 5 years of the plan period. This can be best delivered by identifying a number of further housing site scale allocations in sustainable locations across the Borough and in the areas of lowest constraint to enable the Council to meet both its own housing need as well as assisting with meeting that of neighbouring authorities.

growth rates achieved in comparable areas) and could be expected to improve affordability. It would also help to increase the supply of affordable housing. Once the need for student accommodation is factored in, the full OAN would amount to c.725-775 dpa.

For the above reasons, we consider that draft policy S2 is unsound because the OAN figure used (and subsequent housing requirement in the PSLP, which seeks to meet the OAN) is not in fact the full OAN- is too low. In order to make the plan sound, an increase in the OAN/housing requirement is needed (to c.725-775 dwellings per annum) to ensure that OAN and plan housing requirement reflect the PPG and para 14 of the NPPF.

Furthermore, with respect to Policy S2, we have also reviewed the Land Availability Assessment (LAA) Addendum which has been published alongside the PSLP. The LAA Addendum contains the Council's current position on its five-year housing land supply and concludes it can only demonstrate 2.36 years supply. The shortfall is to be addressed through the allocation of additional green belt sites through the adoption of the Local Plan. The LAA Addendum Housing Trajectory identifies that 1,395 units are anticipated from Green Belt sites within the first five years of the plan period, representing 39% of the potential housing provision identified for this time period. Therefore, at present there is an over-reliance on currently unallocated green belt sites within the first five years of the plan. This could be partly addressed by the earlier delivery of urban sites which are currently allocated to later phases of the plan.

In the context of the revised OAN/housing need requirements identified, we calculate that the Council's five year supply is actually in the region of 1.94 to 2.09 years.

In addition the 'deliverability' of a number of the sites identified which do not have planning permission is queried in the context of the NPPF requirement for sites to be "achievable with a reasonable prospect of housing being delivered within five years" (Footnote 11). This is especially relevant within Guildford Borough Council, where there is a very poor track record of approving major residential development schemes[1].

Excluding sites without planning permission the five-year housing land supply is argued to be a low as 1.47 years (based on our OAN of 775).

On the above basis, we consider that there is a 'serious and significant' shortfall in the Council's five year housing land supply. This should be explicitly addressed in Policy S2, which currently does not refer to expected housing supply with the first five years of the plan period. Accordingly, and alongside our concerns regarding the OAN/housing requirements, we consider that Policy S2 is unsound.

[1] Department of Communities and Local Government figures show that 47% of major residential applications were approved by GBC, compared to the average in England of 81%, in the year ending March 2017.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
Let me first comment that the Borough asserts that it is listening to local views. It is clear that this is not the case. It may be hearing the residents views but it is obviously not listening to them, as it appears to have refused all requests for the calculations and assumptions that underpin, for example, the 'Housing Need Figure' to be made public. I am saddened by the apparent lack of transparency and openness in this respect and, reluctantly, I draw the conclusion that the Borough has something to hide.

A respected and independent analysis of the 'Housing Need figure' clearly shows that the Borough has chosen to overestimate that aspect of the plan and a per annum reduction reduction of around 250 new builds would be adequate to meet need. That equates to 7676 homes and not 13,893 over the period. This figure meets the clearly and carefully researched analysis undertaken by a respected national expert and is a reduction of over 6000 - a medium size village - over the period of the plan.

<td>They demonstrate significant deficiencies associated with the 2017 SHMA addendum which fails to identify full, objectively assessed need for market and affordable housing as required by the NPPF resulting in the Local Plan being unsound. Such deficiencies primarily focus upon excluding two years of housing need, being 2013-15 previously included within the 2015 SHMA, alongside over reliance upon 2016 post-Brexit economic forecasts which significantly divert from those used in the 2015 iteration with little interrogation or sensitivity testing of the inputs which is imperative given the uncertainties surrounding the Brexit process. supply, affordability and household formation. This is entirely unnecessary and avoidable given the availability of a range of small and medium scale sites including Potential Development Areas (PDAs).

The 2017 Proposed Submission Local Plan recognises the desperate need to identify additional short to medium scale housing sites which can deliver new homes during the early part of the Plan period. This includes a commitment to reassessing all PDAs which were previously identified within the Green Belt and Countryside Study (GBCS) as not fundamentally contributing to the five NPPF Green Belt purposes. Despite the 2017 SA update acknowledging that there are sustainable options to deliver housing significantly above OAN, no serious assessment has been undertaken for PDAs and no additional PDAs have been allocated to boost housing delivery to meet objectively assessed need.

Taking land west of Shere Road in West Horsley as an example, the SA automatically rules out the PDA as a ‘given’ on the basis it was rejected by the 2016 Land Availability Assessment (LAA). However, the reason for exclusion in the LAA was that it was not considered to accord with the preferred spatial strategy, a spatial strategy which the SA update was tasked with reconsidering given a lack of short to medium term housing supply. It was also considered that the site fell within ‘high sensitivity’ Green Belt, albeit identification as a PDA clearly demonstrates the land as making no meaningful contribution to wider, strategic Green Belt purposes.

Finally, the Council attempt to suggest that the Horsleys cannot sustainably accommodate any additional housing numbers above those proposed for allocation in the 2017 Proposed Submission Local Plan. This is completely unevidenced especially given that the 2016 iteration proposed an additional 138 homes for the Horsleys which have since been removed. If the Council consider that the Horsleys can only sustainably accommodate a finite number of new homes, especially given chronic short term need, this must be fully evidenced alongside consideration of whether any adverse impacts can be mitigated alongside future development.

The Proposed Submission Local Plan is fundamentally unsound by failing the ‘positively prepared’ test which requires objectively assessed development needs to be met, including need arising from neighbouring authorities. Neither can the Plan be considered ‘justified’ as the most appropriate strategy when considered against reasonable alternatives given the availability of small and medium scale PDAs which can assist the Council with meeting a chronic need for short to medium term deliverable housing. The Council must include additional short to medium term housing sites to be found sound, with PDAs shown not to contribute to the five main Green Belt purposes representing an available, deliverable and evidenced source of additional supply.

Document: Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites 2017 / Policy S2

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( No ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

2.0 Establishing Full, Objectively Assessed Housing Need

2.1 Para. 47 of the National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) requires Local Authorities to boost significantly their supply of housing by using their evidence base to ensure that Local Plans meet full, objectively assessed needs for market and affordable housing in a housing market area.

2.2 The housing target within the 2017 Proposed Submission Local Plan has reduced from 13,860 over the period 2013-33 to 12,426 over the period 2015-34. This represents a - 1,434 reduction in housing numbers compared with the 2016 iteration. Para. 2.9 of the 2017 Housing Delivery Topic Paper explains that “this factual update has resulted in a reduced objectively assessed need for Guildford from 693 homes per year (2013-33) to 654 homes per year (2015-2034). Over the Plan period, this has resulted in a reduction of approximately 1,400 homes”.

2.3 The Council consider that the revised housing target of 12,426 over the period 2015-34 accords with para. 47 of the NPPF as representing full, objectively assessed housing need (OAN) as established by the 2017 addendum report to the original 2015 West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA). We consider that there are numerous deficiencies and inconsistencies contained within the 2017 SHMA which demand a reassessment of the OAN baseline.

SHMA Plan Period

2.4 The original 2015 SHMA considered housing delivery over the twenty year period 2013-33. The 2017 SHMA addendum explains at para. 1.2 that the Plan period has been rolled forward to 2034, “... to ensure that it covers a 15 year period from the point of adoption”. We have no objection to the Plan period being increased by one year to 2034. However, in parallel, and without justification, the start date of the Plan period has been brought forward by two years from 2013 (2015 SHMA) to 2015 (2017 SHMA).

2.5 No justification has been provided within the SHMA to explain why the Plan period, and thus the SHMA assessment period, has been brought forward to commence at 2015, covering a total of nineteen rather than twenty years. We consider that this approach is unsound for the following reasons:

(i) The 2017 SHMA addendum has effectively discounted two years of housing data that was previously assessed within the original 2015 SHMA as experiencing housing need of 693 dpa. The 2015 SHMA acknowledged that the OAN for the two year period 2013-15 was 1,386 homes (693 x 2) which was incorporated into the housing trajectory and five year housing land supply calculations for the original 2016 Proposed Submission Local Plan. The 2017 SHMA addendum has removed these two monitoring years with the only justification seemingly based on the unrelated requirement to extend the Plan period by a single year to 2034 (n.b. achieving 15 years post adoption). The effect of this is that two years of housing need experienced over the period 2013-15 have been removed from the emerging Local Plan, with any shortfall experienced effectively remaining unmet in perpetuity due to the Plan period now commencing from 2015;

(ii) Para. 3.3 of the 2017 SHMA addendum states that “the starting point is the base date for which up-to-date data is available on the Borough’s population and employment base”. However, this explanation does not justify why the SHMA base date of 2013 should be moved to 2015 with the loss of two years housing need data previously included in the 2015 SHMA. Planning Practice Guidance (PPG) is clear that “the 2012-2037 Household Projections were published on 27 February 2015, and are the most up-to-date estimate of future household growth” (para. 016, ref ID: 2a-016-20150227). The most up-to-date population and household projections published by DCLG which provide the starting point when assessing housing need therefore clearly covers the period 2013-15;

(iii) The 2017 Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper explains how Guildford Borough has worked with neighbouring HMA Authorities to prepare a joint SHMA. There is however no confirmation within the 2017 SHMA addendum that Waverley and Woking Councils have agreed to amend the SHMA assessment period from 2013-33 to 2015-34 which will fundamentally impact on the preparation of their requisite Local Plans. Guildford Borough should not unilaterally amend the SHMA assessment period without proper justification and agreement with partner Councils within the HMA. Para. 4.53 of the 2017 Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper recognises “whilst not fully consistent with the NPPF in relation to covering the entire housing market area, it [the 2017 SHMA addendum] nevertheless reassessed the HMA from a Guildford position ...”.

2.6 The 2017 SHMA addendum contains no justification to explain why the housing need assessment period has been brought forward by two years to exclude the period 2013-15. Such a change would clearly benefit the Council by reducing the quantum of unmet housing need that has accumulated during the early part of the Plan period. This is a fundamentally unsound approach that exacerbates unmet housing need across the Borough, encouraging further worsening of affordability and suppression of household formation.

Demographic Projections

2.7 The 2017 SHMA addendum updates the 2012 ONS sub-national population projections (SNPP) and 2012 CLG household projections. As recognised by the PPG, “household projections published by the Department for Communities and Local Government should provide the starting point estimate of overall housing need” (para: 015, ref ID: 2a-015-20140306).
2.8 Starting with the ONS published SNPP, Table 3 of the 2017 SHMA demonstrates that population growth is projected to rise to a greater degree applying the 2014-based SNPP compared with the 2012-based SNPP. The up-to-date 2014-based SNPP suggests the population in Guildford will grow from 145,473 persons in 2015 to 167,126 persons in 2034, a rise of 21,652. This represents a population increase of +2,271 when applying the 2017 SHMA addendum 2014-based SNPP compared with the earlier 2015 SHMA 2012-based SNPP.

2.9 Likewise, the SHMA addendum demonstrates that household numbers are also expected to rise to a greater degree applying the 2014 CLG household projections compared with the 2012 iteration. The up-to-date 2014 CLG projections suggest the number of households in Guildford Borough will grow from 56,843 in 2015 to 67,196 in 2034, a rise of 10,353. This represents an overall increase in household numbers of +781 when applying the 2014 CLG household projections compared with the earlier 2012 version.

2.10 The 2017 SHMA addendum demonstrates that the 2014 based SNPP and household projections show a clear increase in population and household growth compared with the 2012 iteration which was the basis of the original 2015 SHMA. Following close interrogation of these changes, the 2017 SHMA addendum advises at para. 3.27 that “… we conclude that the 2014-based SNPP for Guildford Borough are technically sound”.

2.11 Whilst the 2014 based SNPP projects higher population growth than the earlier 2012 based iteration, interrogation of the ONS published 2015 mid-year population estimates (MYEs) suggests that the SNPP may be under-estimating growth. Whereas the 2014-based SNPP projected that the population of Guildford would grow by 2,515 persons over the period 2014-15, which itself was higher than the 2012 based SNPP, the MYEs suggest even higher growth at 3,122 representing a difference of +607 persons.

2.12 A consistent pattern therefore emerges of increasing population and household projection growth moving from the 2012-based SNPP and household projections to the 2014-based iterations and then sense checking against the 2015 MYEs.

2.13 It is recognised that the PPG allows for sensitivity testing of the demographic baseline with “… any local changes would need to be clearly explained and justified on the basis of established sources of robust evidence” (para: 017, ref ID: 2a-017-20140306). The 2017 SHMA addendum has therefore considered four alternative population growth projections as set out in Table 7 being:

(i) 2014 based SNPP;
(ii) 2014 based SNPP plus 2015 MYE;
(iii) 10 year migration period feeding into 2014 based SNPP;
(iv) 10 year migration period feeding into 2014 based SNPP plus UPC.

2.14 Looking at projected population growth, there is a very close correlation between scenarios (i), (ii) and (iii) with a difference of less than 750 persons over the period 2015 to 2034 (39 per year).

2.15 There is a similar pattern when the four SNPP based scenarios are converted into household need with scenarios (i) to (iii) all being very similar, projecting a change in household numbers over the period 2015-34 of between 10,350 and 10,849.

2.16 There is a clear discrepancy within the 2017 SHMA regarding the application of scenario (iv) which applies unattributed population change (UPC). Table 7, population growth, shows scenario (iv) as a clear outlier, being a significant 6,437 persons less than the closest next scenario whereas the difference between scenarios (i) to (iii) is less than 750 persons. A similar level of discrepancy is also evident within Table 9 which considers household growth. The 2017 SHMA addendum agrees that this scenario is unrepresentative, with para. 3.53 advising that “adjusting projections fully for UPC has been criticised by Planning Inspectors, is an approach which has been rejected by ONS and there is a lack of clear evidence that it can be fully attributed to an over-estimation of migration and to migration estimates over the period post 2005”. Para. 3.39 is more explicit:
“... this scenario needs to be treated with a degree of caution, it is based on population trends from 2005 onwards and is modelling what is potentially an extreme position where UPC is attributed in full to migration”.

2.17 The 2017 SHMA addendum concludes that “the 2014 SNPP adjusted for the latest MYEs would however represent an equivalent projection to that from which the demographic conclusions in the 2015 West Surrey SHMA were derived” (para. 3.54) with the recommendation that “at the present time, GL Hearn consider that using the latest official projections (including with adjustments such as 10-year migration trends) will provide the best estimates of future needs” (para. 3.77).

2.18 Whilst the conclusion to the 2017 SHMA addendum recognises that applying demographic scenarios (i) to (iv) would give a housing need range of between 521-584 dpa, averaging 552 dpa, it advises that the demographic evidence does not justify deviating from the official 2014-based SNPP and CLG household projections due to there being “… no basis for adjusting recent demographic projections for UPC” (para. 8.6).

2.19 It is therefore evident that scenario (iv) should be excluded not only due to concerns regarding UPC raised within the report but also because the close correlation of scenarios (i) to (iii). We consider that scenario (ii) should form the basis of the demographic baseline for the Guildford Borough Local Plan given the robustness of the 2014-based SNPP coupled with ‘sense checking’ against actual MYEs. This would give an annual housing need of 577 dpa.

Employment Growth

2.20 The 2017 SHMA addendum has considered updated econometric forecasts published in late 2016 by Oxford Economics, Cambridge Econometrics and Experian. Despite applying the same methodology to calculate change in workplace employment – para. 5.9 of 2015 SHMA and para. 4.6 of 2017 SHMA addendum – there are significant differences in workplace employment between the two SHMA iterations which is the largest single contributor to the reduced housing target at Policy S2 of the 2017 Proposed Submission Local Plan.

2.21 Para. 4.7 of the 2017 SHMA addendum explains that “… AECOM calculate that workplace employment in Guildford between 2015 and 2034 is anticipated to grow by 12,893. This represents a reduction of 4,845 net additional jobs from the previous version of this calculation (17,738) issued in August 2015 …”. Whilst it is recognised that the Plan period has reduced from 20 years to 19 years, this still represents a dramatic reduction from 887 jobs per annum within the 2015 SHMA to 679 jobs per annum in the 2017 SHMA addendum. This represents a reduction in annual workplace job growth of 23%.

2.22 Despite this significant discrepancy between the 2015 and 2017 SHMA, there is little assessment of the cause of the reduction within the SHMA addendum itself and certainly no sensitivity testing looking at past workplace job growth trends. A summary of the principal changes contained within the 2017 SHMA addendum are explained within para. 4.40 of the 2017 Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper which states “the addendum sits alongside and supplements the West Surrey SHMA. It takes account of the latest population and household projections, the latest post-Brexit economic projections and the latest 2015 mid-year population estimate”.

2.23 The PPG advises that “Plan makers should make an assessment of the likely change in job numbers based on past trends and/or economic forecasts as appropriate …” (para 018, ref ID: 2a-018-20140306). Whilst we do not doubt that ‘Brexit’ will impact upon economic development and job creation, currently there is little certainty regarding the form that Brexit will take from an economic perspective including future trade arrangements with the EU and the rest of the world. In particular:

- Any economic forecasts published in late 2016 will have likely been influenced by the premise of a ‘hard Brexit’ which, following the general election and the failure of the Conservatives to secure a parliamentary majority, may be significantly paired back to ensure a majority is achieved on key votes in parliament;

- It is likely that any firm agreement on economic and trade terms will not be known for some time as negotiations prioritise the status of EU / UK nationals, costs associated with leaving the EU and the Northern Ireland and RoI border;

- There remains little clarity on how the post-Brexit trading relationship with the EU will be structured. A wide range of scenarios remain available from a complete break reverting to WTO rules to maintaining tariff and customs free access;
- There also remains little clarity on potential trade deals with non-EU countries and the impact or rebalancing this could have on economic growth and job creation in the UK.

2.24 We are not suggesting that Brexit should not be considered within economic and job creation forecasts but the 2017 SHMA addendum has solely based workplace employment growth over the period 2015-34 on late 2016 post-Brexit projections. This is particularly concerning not only due to inherent uncertainties regarding the terms of Brexit but also having regard to the significant reduction in projected jobs growth compared with the 2015 SHMA. We consider there to be five urgent workstreams required:

(i) The 2017 SHMA addendum must include significant interrogation of the three post-Brexit economic forecasts used to understand the assumptions they are making regarding Brexit. It is only through interrogation that it would be possible to understand the terms of Brexit that the three forecasts are anticipating and to then consider these terms moving forward as detailed Brexit negotiations proceed;

(ii) In parallel, the differences between the economic forecasts contained in the 2015 SHMA and the 2017 SHMA addendum should be made clear to allow an assessment of the projected main impacts of Brexit on the Guildford economy. Clearly the economic impact of Brexit, assuming this was known, will differ depending upon the make-up of the economy and the extent of trade, labour and import/export links with the EU. As an example, para. 3.73 of the 2017 SHMA update notes that “Guildford sees a lower proportion of EU in-migrants than was the case at a regional/national level. This would suggest that the migration impact of Brexit might be less in the Borough than other locations …”;

(ii) As with demographic projections, it is imperative that employment and job creation forecasts are sensitivity tested. As an example, it is unclear how the post-Brexit job growth forecast of 679 per annum compares against job growth figures over past recessionary and non-recessionary periods;

(iv) It is important that there is no double-counting regarding the potential impact of Brexit between demographic projections and economic forecasts. For example, para. 3.23 of the 2017 SHMA addendum notes that the 2014-based SNPP projects net international migration to the UK falling from 329,000 in 2014/15 to 185,000 by 2020/12 which is likely to take into account changing EU migration levels associated with Brexit;

(v) It is imperative that the post-Brexit reduction in jobs is considered alongside the objectives of the M3 LEP as well as economic policies contained within the 2017 Proposed Submission Local Plan.

2.25 We strongly consider that the approach of the 2017 SHMA addendum to projecting future workplace jobs growth is unsound being based upon narrow post-Brexit forecasts with no critical assessment or sensitivity testing considering both the inherent uncertainties of the terms of Brexit and the large discrepancy between the 2015 SHMA and 2017 update. Box 6.7 of the SA recognises the impact that this has had on the overall Local Plan housing target “the addendum finds a need for a very small uplift of just 2 dpa, which is a considerable deviation from the SHMA 2015 (120 dpa). This is primarily because updated employment forecasts (from Nov/Dec 2016) are lower …”.

2.26 When looking at potential uplifts to the demographic baseline to support economic growth and job creation, para. 4.26 of the 2017 SHMA addendum explains that “the 2014-based SNPP scenarios would support between 12,700–12,800 jobs …”. Whilst this closely aligns with the post-Brexit 2016 economic forecasts used within the 2017 SHMA addendum, it is evident that it is significantly below the 17,738 jobs projected within the 2015 SHMA.

2.27 There is a real risk that even if one takes a mid-point between the post-Brexit 2016 projections and the original 2015 SHMA projections, there would be a significant shortfall in housing delivery to support projected jobs growth. This would result in economic growth being stifled by lack of housing supply resulting in exacerbated levels of in-commuting, housing price rises (including rental) and decreasing levels of affordability. We therefore consider that an uplift significantly larger than the paltry 2 dpa proposed above the demographic 2014-based SNPP plus MYE of 577 dpa is required to support economic growth.

The GBC survey totals 10395. This annual number is higher that the number which originally raised concern during the 2014 consultation and so it seems that the figure has been raised despite objections and revised evidence. The sites in or adjacent to Send will delivery almost half of this number. The Garlicks Arch proposal was added very late, without any local engagement and without any time for consultation to take place at any level in the drafting of the plan, which I think is unacceptable and undemocratic, denying meaningful consultations with residents in a timely fashion

Local Plan Policies S2 and P2, in particular, are not sound.

The proposed phasing of housing supply in Policy S2 (Borough Wide Strategy) is not justified and does not seek to meet the objectively assessed need for housing consistently throughout the plan period. It is clear that there would not be a five-year supply of housing on adoption of the plan and there are other doubts about whether housing targets will be met because of restrictions on the release of housing land imposed by Green Belt Policy (P2) and the Spatial Development Strategy.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
Housing Needs And The Spatial Development Strategy

Policy S2 of the Local Plan and the Land Availability Assessment of February 2016 (LAA) show that the overall projected supply of housing land (15,116) exceeds the forecast requirement (13,860) over the whole plan period, but that the Council has phased the housing requirement in a curiously uneven way, to reflect constraints on delivery of the required housing supply in the early years of the plan, rather than housing needs.

Even with this unwarranted adjustment to the phasing of housing requirements, the housing supply trajectory (below) shows forecast land supply (the blue line) to be below the forecast requirement (the red line) from 2013/14 to 2018/19 and that the cumulative deficit (the green line) will not be made up until 2027/28; 15 years into the 20-year plan period:

The housing supply trajectory in the LAA also shows that there will not be a five-year housing land supply when the Local Plan is adopted unless there are changes in policy to improve the delivery of housing sites in the early years of the plan. Five-year housing land supply is described in more detail in Section 4.

Changes in the Spatial Development Strategy of Local Plan Policy S2 will be required to increase housing land supply in the early years of the plan to achieve the aims in paragraph 14 of the NPPF:

‘…local planning authorities should positively seek opportunities to meet the development needs of their area’ and the aim in paragraph 47 of the NPPF:

‘to boost significantly the supply of housing…’

Required changes in the Spatial Development Strategy of Local Plan Policy S2 include the allocation of more small and medium-sized sites in sustainable locations that are associated with the main urban areas and larger villages, where development can progress in the early years of the Local Plan, utilising existing infrastructure such as local schools and other services. Changes in the Spatial Development Strategy will need to be associated with a more detailed and realistic approach to the review of Green Belt boundaries.

The proposed number of new houses in the Borough is unrealistically high, and will have a seriously detrimental effect on the Green Belt surrounding Guildford. If such land is built on, it will be lost forever. In particular, the Gosden Hill Farm site should not be removed from the Green Belt. All development should be restricted to brownfield sites.

Because of Guildford’s situation as a gap town, there isn’t room for a significant increase in retail and office development. There are already a sufficient number of shops and offices. All that is needed is a swift redevelopment of the site between North Street, the Friary and Woodbridge Road.

The figures for housing in the table come, I believe, from a study by the Council’s Consultant. I have been told that the methodology behind this study is commercially confidential [which is, perhaps, worrying?]. I have now seen the study for EGA by Neil McDonald, which shows, with reasoned argument, a substantially lower set of figures. I regard the McDonald study as the more credible of the two and Obj. in the first instance if it is not taken as the basis of the Local Plan table

However I understand that the Government is preparing a standardised method of calculating housing demand, will publish shortly, and intends to make it more-or-less compulsory on publication. It seems unlikely that this will remain unchallenged [ more particularly since recent figures on immigration, etc, show potentially substantial trend changes].

Any Local Plan publication of Housing Targets should therefore be heavily qualified [ eg noted as subject to amendment as more information comes available].
In practical terms, the phasing of the first five years in the Council table seems not radically different from the McDonald study, so the arguments on phasing of site availability are mutual. It is later where there are significant differences.

In passing I do caution about the presentation of final digits in matters such as population predictions. The 4.1.9a sum figure is 12,426 homes. “6” exactly ??? Figures like this really ought to be presented with standard statistical error statements.

The Guildford Vision Group, a group of concerned residents with very relevant commercial and professional experience, was established four years ago to press for reinvigoration of the town centre. Specifically we have called for six objectives:

1. Wider pedestrianisation of the town centre
2. Exciting new public space along a reinvigorated riverside
3. Redirection of vehicle traffic away from the centre
4. An integrated transport hub and interchange around the rail station
5. New town centre housing
6. A new and better East-West link

These are not unusual or unique objectives. They are the aim of a multitude of UK towns and cities, where many have taken positive action to bring them about. Many would envy Guildford its magnificent setting and the river running through the centre of town, yet Guildford has failed significantly over the past decades to take full advantage of its potential, especially its river. Riverside areas are taken up by surface car parks, buildings with their back to the water and suffer a legacy of piecemeal, unattractive light industrial development. Walnut Tree Close and Woodbridge Meadows, in particular, should be given over to well-planned housing and the scattered light industrial provision should be relocated to an expanded Slyfield where infrastructure and communications would be better.

We are thus disappointed by the lack of real ambition and aspiration in the Local Plan in respect of the town centre. There are no substantial coordinated policies or strategies in the Local Plan that will achieve the six objectives above. These objectives have received wide public support, as recognised by:

- Our 2013 document ‘Guildford on the Way’, a Vision for Guildford in 2030 (attached) as articulated by members of the public, Guildford residents and our members
- Comments and feedback from our public meetings over the past four years that have regularly attracted audiences of 200 and above
- Feedback from our frequent Newsletters to our supporters, interested parties and councillors

The council, in response to our lobbying, commissioned a masterplan for the centre. The masterplan was drawn up by Allies & Morrison, nationally-renowned masterplanners. The masterplan was approved by the council in March 2016 but is yet to be adopted. There is little recognition or acknowledgement of the masterplan in either the Local Plan policies, underpinning information or implementation strategies. We understand that the council propose an Area Action Plan (AAP) for the town centre once the Local Plan is adopted. We are concerned that the AAP will be subject to challenge if its aims are not foreshadowed in the Local Plan. We believe omission of any mention of the AAP could render the Local Plan unsound in this respect.

We made a lengthy response to the Reg 18 consultation nearly 2 years ago. Our comments remain very relevant and are re-submitted for the Reg 19 consultation.

The Local Plan leaves a real vacuum in respect of the town centre and leaves it vulnerable to uncoordinated, opportunistic development. It will have no credible, well-articulated policies to forestall such development or any distinctive guide for development that will ensure the long run sustainability of the town centre and its economy.

This site was not given the consultation required.

It was added in an underhand manor and slipped in at the last minute to 'hide it' from local people and there right to comment. The borough councillor's from the Guildford Green Belt Group and Lovelace where treated in a terrible manor due to their rightful objections at the meeting held a week ago and I feel an apology should be given at the least. A full consultation under regulation 18 should be applied as it was only put in last minute, not the cheeky undemocratic regulation 19.

I OBJECT to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will destroy the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which are all already at 100% capacity.

I OBJECT to the complete failure of GBC to identify sufficient brownfield sites within the urban area which should be targeted first for development before the open countryside and the Green Belt and the failure to include the Town Centre Masterplan 2015 within the plan.

7 POLICY S2 PLANNING FOR THE BOROUGH

7.1 I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn.

7.2 The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high

7.3 I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

7.4 Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.”

7.5 Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

7.6 However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt.

7.7 A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum.

7.8 The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

7.9 The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

7.10 NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth. The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that: The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area. There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further. The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast.

7.11 A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA.

7.12 The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because: 1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford. 2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change. 3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market. 4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction.

7.13 Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target.

7.14 The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards.

7.15 It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

7.16 The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA.

7.17 Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed.

7.18 The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan.

7.19 Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt.

1.1 I object to the amended policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 12,426 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2017 prepared by GL Hearn because it has not addressed many of the 32,000 objections made to the 2016 plan.

1.2 The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure of 12,426 is far too high

1.3 I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 12,426 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1.4 Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50%.

1.5 Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”. This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years. It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement.

1.6 However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt.

1.7 A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2017 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 560 homes per annum to 400 homes per annum.

1.8 The 19 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “Review of GL Hearn’s Guildford Addendum to the West Surrey SHMA”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan.

1.9 The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald who we were lucky to find. He is a niche consultant with the right skills and a national reputation. An independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

1.10 The NMSS recent study has found that the latest SHMA update by GL Hearn 2017 over estimates population growth for Guildford.

1.11 The report shows that an indication of the scale of the problem can be obtained directly from the ONS’s own data. Their estimates of births, deaths and population flows into and out of Guildford suggest that the population should have grown by 15,000 between the 2001 and 2011 censuses. The censuses, however, record a population growth of only 7,800. The discrepancy is over 90% of the population change indicated by the censuses.
1.12 The analysis in the NMSS report demonstrates that the errors must be in the population flows in age groups in which there are significant numbers of students. They are almost certainly the result of the under-recording of the numbers of students leaving Guildford each year.

1.13 If the projections are based on under-estimates of the number of students leaving the district each year, they will assume that people will be living in the area who will in fact have left. This means that they will over-estimate the likely growth in Guildford’s population. The ONS’s projections envisage that the population will grow by 21,700 between 2015 and 2034. However, if the estimates of past migration flows are adjusted to make them consistent with the census figures, this could fall to 13,000. As a consequence, the demographically-based estimate of the number of homes needed would be 400 homes a year (2015-34), not 580.

1.14 70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are still in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries.

1.15 Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements).

1.16 Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 580 per annum to 400.

1.17 I object to the fact that GBC have not used the guidance available to reduce the number of houses they propose.

1.18 GBC has not taken into account the possibility of lowering the required number of houses by adhering to the restraints offered in various papers. Government guidelines, even before the publication of the Paper, quoted below say that if a Council cannot supply sufficient houses without impinging on the Green Belt, then they do not have to build so many houses.

1.19 GBC have gone against the NPPF as they are not adhering to the ruling that Local Plans must plan positively to seek opportunities that meet objectively assessed development needs and be flexible enough to adapt to rapid change unless any adverse impact of doing so would significantly outweigh the benefits or specific policies in the NPPF which suggest that development should be restricted.

1.20 House of Commons Briefing Paper ; Planning for Housing no 03741, 14 June 2017. Guidance on taking account of constraints. “Need alone, is not the only factor to be considered when drawing up a Local Plan”. This includes “land designated as Green Belt” and “SSSIs”.

1.21 “The framework makes clear that once established Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances” and “should take into account any constraints such as Green Belt, which indicate that development should be restricted and which may restrain the ability of an authority to meet its need.” (P d055 ref ID.3-045-20141006)

1.22 In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN. of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council.

1.23 This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 200 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 4,000 homes.

1.24 All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 32,000 objections made by residents to the 2016 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
1.1 I object to the Guildford Borough Council (GBC) Regulation 19 draft plan 2017 because it is not sound and the changes do not take account of my previous objections or indeed the 32,000 other valid objections that are shown on the GBC website and made to the previous 2016 version.

1.2 I have focused, as requested, on changes to which I find reason to object but this also includes some deletions which lack acceptable justification.

1.3 I request a confirmation by email from GBC that all of the objections to changes made below are put to the Inspector appointed by the Secretary of State to review the GBC Regulation 19 local plan 2017 and that all my previous objections to the 2016 draft plan will be placed before the inspector.

1.4 I formally request the opportunity to give evidence in person at the Public Inquiry currently planned for 2018 in relation to my objections in 2016 and 2017.

1.5 I request again that once my objections are fully taken into consideration the draft plan is amended accordingly and re-issued before it is submitted to the Inspector.

1.6 I am of the opinion that if it is submitted in its current form it will be in risk of being summarily dismissed and put back to the Council for resubmission.

1.7 Guildford is a constrained borough by the reality of having 89% of its area zoned as permanent Green Belt and an out of date road network that is already at capacity. I am concerned that GBC have adopted a lower but still grossly inflated OAN of 12,426 homes as a housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance.

1.8 70% of the new development proposed in this plan is in the permanent Green Belt which was coincidentally invented in Guildford under a private Act of Parliament in 1938. It is perhaps ironic that the process of Town and Country planning has become a type of Town v. Country debate.

1.9 The population in the borough is split equally between town and country but Guildford town has developed very little over the last 20 years and has not undergone the type of normal urban expansion, redevelopment of previously developed sites and increase in residential densities as nearby towns such as Woking have experienced. It is informative that Woking is currently outperforming Guildford in terms of economic performance.

1.10 It is interesting to note that urban densities in Guildford town are no higher than the villages that surround it. Even though the latter are in the main in the Green Belt which is protected from development and the former is in an area where there is no presumption against development. I am of the opinion we need a rebalancing between town and country and much more development in Guildford town, particularly residential development.

1.11 In the latest plan only 1,300 homes are going to be built in Guildford town which is some 10% of the total development proposed. It is very disappointing that GBC fail to set higher densities for the urban area and have in this latest draft deleted all reference to “density for development” which is normally an integral part of forward planning and development control.

1.12 GBC still fail to acknowledge that the application of constraints to housing need in respect of the Green Belt is a sensible and practical approach to development within the borough and is not only what they have done in the past in previous plans but is also what its neighbouring local planning authorities have done.

1.13 The current scale of the housing number proposed in this plan, which is based on a flawed SHMA, inevitably increases the onus for the plan to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number of 4,000 homes, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1.14 I am concerned that GBC have still failed to grasp the opportunity of following clear government policy to develop in the urban area on previously developed sites. Many of these sites are in their ownership and it would seem a practical and readily achievable alternative which is much more acceptable to local residents.

1.15 In my opinion much of the updated local plan still appears out of date. It is like a voice from the past. Current trends in terms of property development such as the marked decline in town centre shopping centres and the need to create modal shift by developing residential uses close to transport hubs appear to have been overlooked.

1.16 Unsupported assertions that there is real demand for the expansion of retail, industrial or office space lack credibility especially in the absence of significant planned expansion of residential development in the town centre which is universally acknowledged as a key stimulant for urban economic health.

1.17 There would appear to be two worrying examples where GBC are taking the role of “developer/landowner” rather than “independent not for profit public sector planner” in so far that they have a pre-determined agenda for building on the Green Belt rather than acting as careful, professional and responsible planner guardians.

Example 1: Policy A43 Garlicks Arch Burnt Common. The stated, albeit unproven, need by GBC is 400 homes. Normal residential density is 30 homes per ha. Land required would therefore be 13 ha. Land actually proposed to be allocated is 28.9 ha. This is more than double land required in beautiful irreplaceable Green Belt.

Example 2: Burnt Common Policy A 53. The stated, albeit unproven need, is 7,000 sq m B1c, B2 and B8 development. Normal density 50% plot ratio. Land required 1.4 ha. Land allocated 9.26 ha. This is more than six and half times more land than necessary in valuable Green Belt which the planners should be looking after.

1.18 I regret that my conclusion is that this plan is a clear example of bad planning.

I object to all proposals to build on the Green Belt at Send and elsewhere in the borough because all the development that is really needed can be accommodated in Guildford’s urban brownfield areas much closer to existing transport hubs.

Guildford Borough Council have not followed correct I strongly feel the council has totally disregarded resident views. The 2014 proposal for 430 houses went down in April 2016 to 185 and now I see it has gone up again to 485. These huge changes should go to full consultation under Regulation 18, not the shortcut of Regulation 191 This makes a mockery of the whole process.

It is very upsetting for our community that GBC are considering the above, I do hope that consideration will be made to the outstanding beauty of our countryside, our historic links and our wildlife and that our Green Belt protection is upheld.

1. Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough
   Between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles it is proposed that over 6,500 houses are built. This represents over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan. I object to this area being hit so hard by the allocation of development, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough.

I OBJECT TO POLICY S2 (BOROUGH-WIDE STRATEGY):

- Numbers based on growth and demographic data now invalidated by Brexit.
- No justification given for 13,860 housing figure. Figure based on a secret formula used by consultants and never seen by anyone on the Council or by the public. Council has failed to seek its disclosure.
- 13,860 figure confuses the OAN with a housing target. No definite housing target given, leaving too much scope for the Council to make one up. I can’t understand how we’re being consulted when we don’t know how many houses the Council want to build, taking all the contraints into account.
- Figures based on a Housing Market Area that ignores 2 neighbouring districts (Rushmoor and Mole Valley) and is much too small, since most people commute or travel far outside the Area to shop or study. This distorts the figures: no reason why Guildford needs to build nearly twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together, or half of all sites over 100 units.
- High numbers involved would transform character of the borough from mainly rural/Green Belt to urban.

I object to the exaggerated “housing need” figure of 13,860 which is far too high and results in the completely unnecessary development of the Green Belt. The way students, economic need and affordability are calculated inflates the housing need.

4) I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan’s new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

East Horsley village shops and local parking

East Horsley Station Parade village shops provide a vibrant selection of shops. Parking here is very well balanced. It is operating at nearly full capacity much of the time, but usually it is possible to find a parking space. Occasionally you may have to drive around a loop a second time, but even if full someone is usually leaving as you arrive.

533 extra houses in the two Horsley villages will render this in operable. It must be obvious that the addition of only a few extra cars at any one time will tip the parking over the limit and it must be completely obvious to anyone that 533 will introduce more than this at most times of the day.

In addition it is completely naive to think that the 2000 plus new homes at Wisley will all leave the new location via the A3/M25. They will clearly clog up East Horsley and West Horsley (as well as Cobham, Effingham, Ripley, etc, etc)

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as i t has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.
I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

I object to the latest version of the local plan.

Guildford Borough Council intend to build 13860 houses with four developments exceeding 1000 houses. 70 percent of these on Green Belt land.

This proposal is massively out of proportion for Guildford and a much larger plan than any other borough in Surrey.

No constraints apply to this plan (as allowed by the National Planning Policy Framework) to take into account protected wild areas, Green Belt, flood risk or significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford.

The proposed development will increase additional traffic onto the local roads, which are already busy and suffer from much congestion. I object to further development that will increase traffic in and around our villages. With more traffic, air pollution will increase. I object to further development which will result in poorer air quality, which in turn can effect the environment and local residents health. Many of the strategic sites, eg Wisley Airfield and Garlicks Arch, do not have local railways within easy walking distance, nor do they have a good bus service. Leaving residents with little option but to get in their cars, resulting in yet more traffic, congestion and drop in air quality. I object that these sites are not sustainable.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:

Pollution: The large increase in volume of traffic will cause an increase in nitrogen dioxide and particulates in the environment – already a cause for concern in several areas in the Borough.

I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan’s new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

Following the publication of the New Local Plan I would like to make the following comments:

The total number of houses proposed for East and West Horsley is totally disproportionate to the size of the existing villages. Unless new provisions are made before any houses are built the local schools and medical centre will be unable to cope with the vast increase in residents.

The number of houses planned has risen to 693 houses per year over the next 20 years (compared with 652 per year in the 2014 Draft) and is more than double the 322 houses per year that was approved in the 2003 Local Plan

65% of new houses in the Borough are to be built on land that is currently in the Green Belt.
When my family and I moved to the area we did so because of the village life style, and proximity to the green belt and rural environment. The local amenities cannot cope with such a large planned expansion and it would completely alter the place that we chose to make our home. At the heart of the problem is GBC’s desire to pursue a ‘Forced Growth’ policy which results in highly aggressive and unjustified targets being set for housing development in the Borough. These excessive targets – the proposed 25% increase in housing stock in particular – create a tremendous strain on both land and infrastructure in an already over-crowded and over-stretched part of the country.

I object to the 2,000 houses proposed for Wisley (policy A35 pages 124 and 203) and the 2,000 houses for Burpham. (policy 25 pages 124 and 225) Again they will be coming through Send Road (A247) and the roads adjoining will be gridlocked. We are a small village and the reason people move here is for the open aspect, which is also part of the "lungs for London". The pollution will make life very difficult for asthmatics like me who live on the main road.

Another fact I would like to raise is regarding the unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough. The proposed 6500 houses to be built between M25 and Burpham represent more than 40% of the housing in the Local Borough. I object to one area being hit so hard, and the impact it will have on the local residents.

I really hope that the common sense will prevail at the end and the local development plans will be adjusted considering not only the impact on the residents of the area, the local traffic, but also preserving the natural environment.

Please make my comments available to the Inspector.

1. Disproportionate size of proposed development to size of villages
   I STRONGLY OBJECT to the size of the proposed developments (e.g. Wisley Airfield, Garlicks Arch on the Ripley/Send border, Gosden Hill in Clandon). These developments are totally disproportionate to the rural villages and will have a catastrophic impact on the local communities. I moved to Ripley for the very reason it’s a small village, I have no desire to see it turned into a big town.

1. Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough
   According to the statistics, in the 5 miles between the M25 and Burpham, there is a proposal to build over 6,500 houses. This equates to over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough. This is totally unacceptable and I STRONGLY OBJECT to this.

Document: Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites 2017 / Policy S2

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )
I object to the number of homes (12,426) to be delivered by GBC over a 20 year period

- The infrastructure is not in place to support this number of homes.
- It would put unimaginable pressure on road capacity, schools, doctors' surgeries, hospitals and police. This proposal would mean an increase in population of 41% which is total unacceptable as the existing local road systems are already unsafe and not fit for purpose.

- Cycling along the narrow and winding roads or walking on the pavements is already hazardous. I do wonder is any councillor has tried walking or riding along the present roads. To widen the roads in the designated areas would mean knocking down existing homes.

Instead of spreading the load to cause minimum disruption, It would appear that GBC seems to be biased against this area as it has decided to dump -40% of its plan in one spot putting great strain on the existing facilities and residents. We are at the extreme end of the Borough and from our standpoint the councilors have decided on a solution that disrupts the minimum of its voters, overwhelms and annoys its existing residents. By disregarding the numerous objections sent to GBC it is demonstrating the bullying tactics of government representatives. If this is how democracy works it stinks.

Regarding the above plan proposed by Guildford Borough Council (GBC) I have several points that I wish to raise and a number of objections that I wish to be logged.

- Objection 1 (Policy 52). GBC in the 2014 consultation declared that their intention was to build 652 houses/year (between 2013-2033). Now in their most recent plan they are aiming to build 693 houses per annum. Ibis increased number would severely impact on our already congested roads, on GP surgeries, hospitals, schools and shows complete disdain regarding preservation of Green Belt land.
- Objection 2 (Policy P2). Ibis policy involves the creation of new boundaries to inset the villages of Send and Send Marsh/Burnt Common. Thus removing their Green Belt status. Can GBC really act with impunity when their proposal breaks this government's promise to "Protect the Green Belt"? Its removal would result in urban sprawl and gridlock. The Green Belt is also there for the purpose of access to clean air and to provide a safe habitat for wildlife.
- Objection 3 (Policy A43). The proposal, referred to as Garlick's Arch to build 400 homes and 7,000 sq.m space for additional light industry and warehousing. Ibis would lead to a 41 % increase in population in the area. The proposal is that these houses are to be built on the agricultural land based just outside the Send March/Burnt Common village boundary. Again, if this goes ahead it will result in filling our roads with more cars and HGVs. The arterial A3 autoroute and the surrounding roads are already operating at full capacity. Putting more vehicles on the road will result in intolerable levels of noise and unacceptable levels of pollution from nitrogen dioxide and other harmful pollutants.
- Objection 4 (Policy A43a). The addition of two more slip-roads to and from the A3 and the A247 (Oandon Road) again will result in total congestion. Send Road leading to Woking has resident's cars parked on either side of the road leaving a very narrow space for cars and vans to pass one another and in most instances one has to give way to oncoming traffic. This is also the case with Clandon Road which is narrow and winding and already operating at full capacity. These roads are dangerous to pedestrians crossing, cyclists, and for... residents exiting from side roads. I can only assume GBC did not seek the advice of a road traffic consultant or they would not have arrived at such a ludicrous plan.

• Objection S (Policy A25). If the proposed 2,000 housing development goes ahead at Gosden Hill it will result in high visibility urban sprawl obliterating the rural nature of the area and have a massive negative affect on the A3 and local roads. Good regeneration planning requires ingenuity, empathy and the ability to adopt a holistic approach that satisfies the need for new housing and small business development whilst taking into account the needs of the resident population, the existing infrastructure and the need to preserve as much of the Green Belt as possible. These key features are missing from the GBC proposal..

Spatial Strategy and Sustainable Development

We agree with the strategy that directs development to those sites that are within and adjoin Guildford as the principal settlement within the Borough and which is clearly the most sustainable location for development. The proposed allocations of Gosden Hill (A25) and Blackwell Farm (A26) are recognized in principle as sustainable locations for growth, being well related to the main urban population and all of the services, infrastructure and facilities that Guildford provides and subject to consideration of detailed issues relating to each of these proposed areas.

While we offer no view on the details of these allocations, the principle of sustainable urban extensions is clearly established in the rationale for these sites.

This strategy helps support a wide range of services and facilities within the town, including comprehensive healthcare, social services, education, retail and leisure, employment and public transport. In focusing development in the principal town, the maximum benefit is derived, providing access within easy reach of the major part of the Borough’s population.

4.4.1 However, this strategy is not clearly or expressly stated in the rationale within the Local Plan and the strategy is not properly considered further in relation to the other opportunities to achieve similar sustainable urban extensions, such as Onslow Park.

4.4.2 Were this to be identified alongside these two proposed allocations, it would be entirely complimentary and consistent with their identification. Indeed it would add a further element to the sustainable spatial strategy, in supporting the funding of infrastructure necessary to support the wider aims of the Guildford urban area, which less sustainable, disconnected locations would not.

The Spatial Vision of the proposed Local Plan is set out on page 19 and commits as its starting point to meet the identified growth needs of the Borough. This is supported.

However, neither this Spatial Vision, nor the subsequent Core Themes, appear to contain any overarching spatial strategy that recognizes the role of Guildford as the principal town within the Borough and prioritizes this as the most sustainable location for growth. The only real reference is in retail terms.

As such the Spatial Vision and resulting allocations are inconsistent with national planning policy and are neither sound, effective nor properly justified.

Paragraph 6 of the NPPF comments on the role of the planning system:

“The purpose of the planning system is to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development. The policies in paragraphs 18 to 219, taken as a whole, constitute the Government’s view of what sustainable development in England means in practice for the planning system.”

Paragraph 17 of the NPPF sets out 12 core principles of the plan making process. This includes the principle to:

“actively manage patterns of growth to make the fullest possible use of public transport, walking and cycling, and focus significant development in locations which are or can be made sustainable”

We are concerned that this has not been fully considered or reflected in the spatial strategy of the Local Plan. As such, neither is it reflected in the proposed allocations made within the Submission Local Plan. This is a clear omission.

Paragraph 30 of the NPPF further elaborates on this, commenting:

“Encouragement should be given to solutions which support reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and reduce congestion. In preparing Local Plans, local planning authorities should therefore support a pattern of development which, where reasonable to do so, facilitates the use of sustainable modes of transport.”
This is clearly relevant to the spatial strategy of the Local Plan, which should seek to accommodate growth in and around those locations that are most sustainable and reduce the need to travel and optimize the use of pedestrian, cycle and public transport. This essentially requires a settlement hierarchy and as a matter of principle, the identification of growth in accordance with these sustainability aims.

This is further reinforced in paragraph 34 and 35 of the NPPF:

“34. Plans and decisions should ensure developments that generate significant movement are located where the need to travel will be minimised and the use of sustainable transport modes can be maximised. However this needs to take account of policies set out elsewhere in this Framework, particularly in rural areas.

35. Plans should protect and exploit opportunities for the use of sustainable transport modes for the movement of goods or people. Therefore, developments should be located and designed where practical to - accommodate the efficient delivery of goods and supplies;

- give priority to pedestrian and cycle movements, and have access to high quality public transport facilities;
- create safe and secure layouts which minimise conflicts between traffic and cyclists or pedestrians, avoiding street clutter and where appropriate establishing home zones;
- incorporate facilities for charging plug-in and other ultra-low emission vehicles; and
- consider the needs of people with disabilities by all modes of transport.

The Local Plan should encourage development in and adjoining the Urban Area of Guildford first. It may also be relevant to consider the next settlements in the hierarchy at Ash and Tongham and then the higher order villages. This should be according to a hierarchy that places Guildford at the top, as the highest order centre, the most sustainable centre and the preferred location for sustainable growth.

This was reflected in the initial stages of the Countryside and Green Belt Study which commented:

“It was originally considered that land parcels adjoining the urban areas of Guildford, Ash and Tongham may be more sustainable in terms of potential development (refer to Volume I, Section 6).”

Notwithstanding this view, the parameters of this study were though later refined by the Council to reflect their wish to consider villages and new settlement proposals (Wisley) also.

Paragraph 4.1.6 adopts a partial if somewhat unclear step in this direction, prioritizing previously developed land in Guildford town centre, urban areas, inset villages and Green Belt villages. It confuses however, the use of previously developed land (a policy that is also supported) with a sustainable spatial strategy, which is about access to housing, goods and services, reducing the need to travel and tackling the effects of climate change. No justification is given for the approach.

The paragraph and hence the Plan’s strategy appears to be at odds with the policies of the NPPF in having no consistent regard for sustainability and the spatial strategy this requires.

Indeed paragraph 4.1.8 incorrectly suggests these are all sustainable locations. What they are in essence, is simply locations that are within existing settlements but which have no regard for the relative sustainability as defined by Government or to other locations on the edge of Guildford that may be more sustainable.

Paragraph 4.1.8 therefore, fails to deal adequately or at all with sustainability or spatial prioritization in the release of land in the locations identified. It has no regard to the accessibility of the location or the degree to which there are real and genuine choices in the mode of travel and true accessibility to a wide range of goods and services. This would place urban extensions to Guildford and the other main lower order settlements above other remote locations away from established settlements and around villages. This is also at odds with the clear thrust of the NPPF.

It should therefore, be made clear that the most sustainable locations for growth are in and adjoining the urban area of Guildford. Onslow Park should, as such, be identified as a sustainable location for growth and identified as an allocation as part of a sustainable spatial strategy, in accordance with national policy.
Policy S2 Borough Wide Strategy and Housing Trajectory

Policy S2 commits to the provision of new homes and employment space within the Borough over the Plan period. The level of growth identified seeks to meet objectively assessed need (OAN) and hence meet the needs of the community for homes and jobs. This is supported.

The Submission Local Plan makes provision for the delivery of 13,860 new homes over the plan period (2013-2033). This equates to 693 dwellings per annum which matches the identified housing need through the SHMA based on 2012 projections. The draft Local Plan ties the proposed trajectory however, to the delivery of strategic sites, the rate of which is limited by infrastructure provision:

“The delivery of new homes is expected to increase over the plan period, reflective of timescales associated with delivery of strategic sites”.

However, as a result the trajectory identified within the policy (shown below) provides for a deficient level of housing within the initial 5 years of the Local Plan period post adoption an up to 2022/23, compounding the cumulative shortfall to date. The trajectory is well below the level required to meet OAN of 693 homes each year up until that point, based on the SHMA.

This shows that there is proposed to be an increasing level of delivery over time as the plan progresses through the plan period. On this basis, to ensure the minimum housing requirements of 693 dwellings per annum are to be delivered, the Plan seeks to counter a shortfall in the first 6 years of the Plan period with an increased trajectory in the final 5 years of the Plan period.

As the net completions table also shows, the first two years of the plan period 2013/14 and 2014/15 have delivered significantly fewer than 693 dwellings per annum. The previous interim housing figure of 322 dwellings per annum agreed on May 2012 did not take account of up to date assessments of housing need and therefore was not NPPF compliant. Reliance on this figure has meant that the Borough has under-delivered even at this level on housing needs over the past five years:

Within the Plan period in the last 2 known years 2013-15 this has resulted in a shortfall well below the 693 required each year, being little more than around 6 months supply in the last 2 years, with no identified strategy or basis to catch up until the final 5 year period to 2033. This is considered simply too late and it must be recognized that this continues the negative impacts of inadequate access to good quality homes to a degree that is simply not justified.

Important to the consideration of the robustness of the Local Plan is the requirement within the NPPF to plan positively to meet the objectively assessed needs of the area and to achieve sustainable development. There is now a positive approach to growth as stated within paragraphs 17 and 28 of the NPPF.

It is important to recognize that the housing needs identified within the Borough represent the needs of the community, if there is to be sufficient housing to meet the needs of the population, including starter homes, family housing, retirement and including specialist forms of housing and affordable homes. If these needs are not met then the community and parts of the community in particular, are denied access to good quality housing at a price they can afford, which in turn gives rise to unacceptable social and economic impacts for the Borough.

As the housing completions above show, Guildford has not only been under-delivering against the real need but there has also been consistent under-delivery against the interim housing target and no planned increase above the level needed until close to 2033.

The most recently produced Annual Monitoring Report (AMR), published in October 2015 for the period 2014/2015 showed that net completions of dwellings in the borough for this period was 242 and that the majority of homes completed in this period are on sites of under 20 homes. As the AMR advises:

“the number of new homes completed this year (2014/15) is still lower than required to meet our objectively assessed need…contributes to a growing deficit of new homes”.

The recommendation within the AMR following this states that:

“housing provision is currently restricted by the lack of available and deliverable development land in the borough…delivery rate is only likely to increase when larger areas of land are suitable and available for development”.

As such, there is a clear need for an immediate increase in the level of supply being achieved.

This required increase in supply should focus on available sites that are not unduly constrained in terms of their ability to come forward for development and that are located within the most sustainable locations. The main reason given for the failure to increase supply to the required level in the early years is the inability to deal with the infrastructure requirements that have been identified to accompany growth. The plan essentially adopts a supply approach predicated on the prior or contemporaneous delivery of supporting infrastructure.

This further supports the clear and pressing need for the identification of Onslow Park, given its ability to contribute immediately to the supply of homes in the most sustainable location and in accordance with a clear and sustainable spatial strategy.

Policy S2 ‘Borough Wide Strategy’

As detailed in Section 2 of our Statement we do not believe that the correct housing target has been adopted, and have serious concerns that the Local Plan does not provide for the Borough’s objectively assessed need in terms of the correct housing trajectory, meaning the Plan is deficient in supply for the major part of the Plan period. It is clear from the draft SHMA that the minimum housing number that should be adopted is 693dpa, though in reality a higher figure would make a real difference to meeting affordable housing need. It is also of concern that no specific need has been identified as being met for specialist forms of housing, such as retirement housing.

We do not agree with the development allocations in Table 1 – ‘Delivery between 2015 and 2031’. We believe that a new garden village and Sustainable Urban Extension to Guildford at Onslow Park should be included, in line with this submission. This would deliver approximately 1000 new market and affordable homes and would make a significant contribution to housing supply in the first part of the Plan period, recognizing the shortfall noted above.

I live in Ripley and I strongly object to many parts of the new draft local plan for Guildford Borough.

1. The draft plan places a massively disproportionate and unfair development burden on the portions of the Borough closest to London. The plan indicates 689 new homes are required per year, and 13,860 new homes by 2033. Yet the Former Wisley Airfield/Three Farms Meadow site at Ockham is planned to have 2,200 properties. The Garlick’s Arch proposal adds another 400 houses. The Gosden Hill Farm plan for West Clandon adds another 2,200 houses. Together, these projects represent over 33% of the requirement for the entire borough for the next 16 years, and this does not even include the smaller developments. This is entirely disproportionate, particularly to the Lovelace Ward. The Upshott Lane project adds another 400 houses, in the Borough of Woking but only minutes away from the developments above. It does not appear coincidental that the portions of these Boroughs closest to London are scheduled for overdevelopment to the benefit of areas further away. The draft plan explicitly states that GBC intend to build more new homes than is in the Policy, merely to provide ‘flexibility’. This is unacceptable and unnecessary.

Please take into consideration my strong objection on the above grounds to the alteration of the draft plan.

Guildford borough Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites (June 2017)

Thank you for consulting Elmbridge Borough Council on Guildford Borough’s Proposed Submission Local Plan.

As you know, we are keen to work with you and other authorities within our respective areas to ensure the effectiveness of Local Plans including, ensuring that the best and most suitable sites are brought forward for development and that other cross-boundary and strategic planning matters are continuously addressed.

Given the focused nature of this latest consultation, this response is made at an officer level. As requested comments made in response to the previous Regulation 19 Consultation (June 2016) have not been repeated unless, they extend to any amendments now being proposed.

Policy S2 – Planning or the Borough – our spatial development strategy

It is acknowledged that the Proposed Submission Local Plan seeks to meet a revised housing need of at least 12,426 new homes between the amended period of 2015 and 2034. This is on the basis of the evidence contained within the West Surrey SHMA Guildford Addendum Report 2017. The number of new homes to be provided represents a decrease of 1,434 homes from that set out within the previous Proposed Submission Plan for which Guildford Borough Council proposed to meet.

It is understood that the land previously identified to accommodate the higher housing number has been revisited (Land Availability Assessment (LAA) and 2017 addendum). Notwithstanding the comments made in the document, it is considered that as this land was once identified as being available and developable it should be reconsidered and the potential for it to assist in meeting the unmet need across the housing market areas revisited.

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan on the grounds that:

- the proposed development is disproportionate to the capacity of the area affected to accommodate it
- amounts to an excessive development within one area of the Borough and
- is contrary to the Borough’s stated objective of ‘balancing the needs of residents with protecting the borough’s most important countryside, landscape and heritage’.

Process

I object because Guildford Borough Council has not followed the correct process in including the above proposals in the Draft Plan. These are significant changes requiring consultation under Regulation 18, not the Regulation 19 process.

Evidence

I object because:
- Guildford Borough Council’s Transport Assessment was not available to councillors for the vote taken on 24 May on the Draft Plan. Insufficient attention has been given to Infrastructure overload;
- Guildford Borough Council have not demonstrated the need to build on Green Belt land.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I appreciate that you and your colleagues have a terribly difficult job accommodating everybody's needs but I am deeply saddened by the amount of building that has gone on during my lifetime in the Guildford area. As a society we tend to all be in agreement at our outrage in the destruction of the world's rainforests but seem to be ignoring the destruction of our own countryside. Please, please consider reducing the amount of building before our homeland is destroyed.

Sorry to spoil your Monday morning. I'm sure you're a lovely person but feel the need to speak out about something I feel so passionately about.

I object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). And these are my reasons:

1. I object to the number of houses needed. After the EU referendum I do not believe the proposed housing numbers are still valid. I would like to see a revision to these numbers for the Guildford Borough.

1. I object to the irreversible damage building new homes on woodland and farmland will create. A combination of brown field sites (burnt common) and small infill sites (Anderton's Farm) are available but have not been considered by the plan.

Policy S2 states that the Plan is based on national planning policy with recognition of environmental constraints and the availability and viability of land for development. The preference for growth is in the most sustainable locations making the best use of previously developed land (including in the Green Belt if necessary).

The general principle set out within Policy S2 is supported. The use of areas least impacted by environmental constraints is also supported, as is the use of Green Belt land where necessary to deliver sustainable development to meet the required growth needs of the Borough.

However, the Plan does not go far enough in exploiting the sustainable locations of the Borough. The Green Belt Study is a key part of the evidence base which has influence the identification of potential development areas. We consider much of the Green Belt Study to be unjustified and as such the Plan is not effective.

Much of the housing development identified through the Plan is to be delivered through strategic sites. Whilst it is recognised that a significant amount of development within the Plan period will need to come forward through such sites, these are notoriously difficult to deliver in a timely way and are often subject to delays due to reasons of land assembly and the provision of the up front infrastructure required. As such, and in order to maintain and deliver a robust supply of housing land, a significant number of smaller sites which are unconstrained by environmental, ownership or infrastructure, and which can therefore be brought forward quickly and easily in the early years of the Plan should be allocated.

I would like to object to the above plan.

I object to:-

1. The number of homes being proposed
2. The enclosure of protected green belt land within the proposed new village boundaries
3. The Garlick’s Arch proposal to build 400 new houses and 7000sq.mt. of light/general industrial/storage distribution space on the green belt
4. The creation of new north and southbound slip roads to and from the A3 to the A247 Clandon road at Burnt common
5. The wholesale destruction of the green belt in this area (including the planned development of 2000 houses at Gosden Hill Farm, Merrow in clear contravention of the governments stated commitment for green belt protection.
6. There being no provision to provide schools in an area already desperately short of this facility
7. No provision for improved road networks which are notoriously bad in the area.
8. No provision for improved and sufficient medical resources in the area.
9. No consideration for and improvement to the infrastructure including the provision of sufficient water and other supplies
10. The destruction of villages which have existed for hundreds of years
11. Further development in the South East especially in an area already over populated
12. The council proposing these plans without a clear mandate from the electorate.

With regard to your recent plan dated 6th June 2016, I would like to voice my strongest disapproval.

We hold a position just off 2 major thoroughfares (A3 and M25), with a good balance of small local shops to serve the small community, and I and neighbours strongly believe that there are not enough amenities nor infrastructure to cope with the surge in proposed development, as well as the surge in construction traffic considering that will more than likely not be using those 2 major roads; hence we will be trapped in a traffic nightmare for the length of construction!

In view of the latest Brexit Vote, in which our migrant population should be reduced, and a likelihood of a dip in National and Local GDP, I cannot see for a need to build so many new houses, firstly without a massive burden on indigenous Horsley Villagers, from a Financial perspective, and lastly from a necessity point of view.

I urge you and the Guildford Borough Council to reconsider.

I am raising objections to the Local Plan. It's far too much building with the infrastructure we have at the moment. I agree that we could do with some more houses, flats and bungalows for the disabled, but these should be council owned for the average working man. About 200 per village should do it. More cars mean traffic pollution and I suffer badly from air pollution.

I must protest with the loudest voice possible, that the plans to build 14,000 more houses be refused.

Guildford cannot cope, there is insufficient infrastructure, not enough school places (or teachers), enough doctors to fill vacancies in GP surgeries. The roads cannot cope, it took me 50 minutes the other day to go from Merrow to the A3 via Ladymead.

These plans are untenable and MUST be stopped.

I have recently been reminded that included in the local plan is the proposal to build an additional 14000 homes within the borough.

I have several objections to this:-

1/ None whatsoever should ever be built on land designated as Greenbelt. This will ruin the existing beauty of the borough.

2/ The additional housing is not what the existing residents want, it will lead to overcrowding and the existing infrastructure cannot cope. It would be far better to let people live in plentiful existing housing which is available in other parts of Britain.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan on the grounds that:

- infrastructure requirements have not been properly considered and are inadequate to deal with proposed housing levels. Roads, doctors and schools will be unable to cope.
- the proposed development is disproportionate to the capacity of the area affected to accommodate it
- amounts to an excessive development within one area of the Borough and is contrary to the Borough’s stated objective of ‘balancing the needs of residents with protecting the borough’s most important countryside, landscape and heritage’.

In particular, I object to the following proposed sites and developments:

- Policy A43 Garlick’s Arch plus Clockbarn Nurseries and Send Hill; they are not justified by any special circumstances and the fact that Green Belt is meant to be permanent and not continually eroded.
• Policy A35 Wisley; it will destroy large areas of Green Belt and agricultural land and produce congestion on the A3 and surrounding roads.
• Policy A25 Gosden Hill Farm Merrow; infrastructure requirements have not been properly considered and are inadequate to deal with proposed housing levels.
• Policy 43A - the proposed new interchange onto the A3 at Burnt Common.

The combined effect of these substantial proposed developments within close proximity will place an unsustainable burden on the infrastructure of the areas affected. The surrounding roads are already extremely busy and in particular the resulting increase in traffic on the A3 and M25 will be disastrous. The A3 is already at a near standstill on the approach to the M25 during the morning peak time and this will become substantially worse by the construction of upwards of four and a half thousand houses, plus commercial/industrial units on these three sites combined. In addition, this will particularly result in the village of Send being gridlocked all day.

It is understood that the main expansion of new homes should be in vicinity to the Guildford urban area whilst the surrounding villages take their fair share of new homes which may be relatively smaller. However when it comes to th town centre itself, I do not believe there is capacity to expand the number of homes to th extend planned. Guildford town centre already has an overweight of smaller homes and the only way such new expansion could be feasibly done is to provide more single occupancy homes rather than th family homes the borough needs. In addition, with traffic already very congested, it does not appear sound to expand the number of homes so dramatically in th town centre but again, the surrounding areas would better cope with the demand.

|  | The proposal for 430 houses in 2014 was reduced in April 2016 to 185. Now GBC have increased the number of houses once again to 485 plus an industrial site and gipsy encampment. These changes require full consultation under Regulation 18. GBC are now trying to short cut the consultation via Regulation 19. This action completely invalidates any consultation with residents of Send.
Any new homes should be built on brown field sites outside of the village, not on green belt.

G. I also object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey. This volume of housing is disproportionately high at 36% of plan’s new housing in an area which currently has 11%.

I strongly object to the draft Local Plan for the following key reasons. I object to the lack of protection for Green Belt, no exceptional circumstances have been established to warrant removing the land from the Metropolitan Green Belt. I object to disproportionate housing development in our area, over-loading schools, health services and public transport including stations.

I object because of the huge increase in traffic on narrow rural roads, trunk roads & lanes which already suffer severe congestion, to say nothing of the danger this will cause to local cyclists and pedestrians. I object because of the air pollution from thousands of extra cars affecting children & elderly people. I object to the continued inclusion of FWA/TFM where the planning application was unanimously rejected by GBC's Planning Committee. I object to the fact that insufficient consideration has been given to the environmental and ecological value of the site in relation to SPA, SSSI & SNCI. I trust that my objections will be fully considered and that the Former Wisley Airfield (Three Farms Meadows), Allocation A35 is removed from the Local Plan with immediate effect.

The strategy put forward is unsound due to over-reliance on "Land at former Wisley airfield, Ockham." Please refer to letter dated 8th July 2016 for further detail.

Our client is the landowner of “Land at Hornhatch Farm, Chilworth.”

Our client notes that the proposed housing target has been reduced in the latest consultation document and considers that there is a need for delivery of housing sites within the first five years of the plan period. Smaller sites around villages would contribute to this early delivery without compromising the overall spatial strategy proposed.

Paragraph 6.6.15 of the Sustainability Appraisal Update notes that there is a pressure to allocate sites that are able to deliver in the first five years and that smaller sites at villages tend to be relatively easy to deliver. Our client agrees that smaller sites would be relatively easy to deliver, in particular, “Land at Hornhatch Farm.”

Our client notes that paragraph 6.6.16 of the Sustainability Appraisal Update then states:

“In the light of this factor, there is a need to consider the option of allocating additional village sites. The following sites comes into contention…

Site I- Hornhatch Farm, Chilworth (80 homes)… see further text in Box 6.10.”

Our client further notes that Box 6.10 ranks Hornhatch Farm higher than previously, as two other sites in Shalford Ward have been ruled out (one is constrained by access and the other is in the AONB). This ranking ahead of the two other sites in Shalford Ward is considered to be appropriate.

Our client has considered the growth options set out in the Sustainability Appraisal Update and notes that Hornhatch Farm is included in options 2, 5, 6 and 8. Our client considers that option 2, which includes Hornhatch Farm, would be a more appropriate strategy for the Borough which would contribute to meeting housing need in a more appropriate way, whilst taking into account the environmental and other constraints within the Borough.

Allocation of “Land at Hornhatch Farm” would form a sustainable extension to Chilworth. The site was previously assessed in the 2014 “Draft Guildford Borough Local Plan: Strategy and Sites” as suitable for residential development within one to five years. The site is located in Environment Agency Flood Zone 1 (low risk of fluvial flooding) and is within 5 to 7km of the Thames Basin Heaths Special Protection Area (SPA) and therefore is beyond the zone of influence of this SPA. The site is within single ownership, is available now and development would be achievable in first five years of the plan period. It would thus contribute to much needed early delivery of housing.

Our client considers that smaller sites around villages would contribute to early delivery of housing in the plan period without compromising the overall spatial strategy proposed.

Land known as “Land at Hornhatch Farm” has been ranked more favourably in the Sustainability Appraisal of the Guildford Local Plan Update 2017 and our client agrees with this ranking ahead of two other sites within the Shalford Ward.

Growth option 2 in the Sustainability Appraisal Update would represent a more appropriate strategy for the Borough and allocation of the site for residential use would have the benefit of bringing forward a deliverable sustainable extension to Chilworth that would contribute to providing much needed housing in Guildford Borough within the first five years of the plan period.

1. NO EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES

The local plan proposes nearly 9000 new homes to be built on Green Belt land (compared with ~ 50,000 current homes in Guildford, so approx. equal to 18% of the existing homes in the borough) – a huge proportion. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) requires any change of Green Belt boundaries to demonstrate exceptional circumstances. Unmet housing need is NOT an exceptional circumstance in law. No exceptional circumstances have been disclosed. So the Green Belt boundaries should NOT be changed through the plan making process.

1. BROWNFIELD AVAILABLE

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing.

1. DRAINS, WATER SUPPLY, FLOOD RISK, CONGESTION

Our drains, our water supply, our medical facilities and our roads cannot cope with the proposed number of new homes. Building this number of homes will lead to flood risk here and downstream (along the Wey and Thames). The planned development on Green Belt is therefore unsustainable.

In conclusion, I must ask you to revise the housing number, and to amend the Local Plan to utilise brownfield land rather than green field sites.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
- Disproportionate level of development in a single area - why is it necessary to build a new village at Gosden Hill (2000 houses) that will not have the appropriate infrastructure to support it. 1800 at Blackwell Farm, 2000 at Wisley, 500 at Garlick's Arch and more importantly 1000 at Slyfield which could well turn into 1700 is not appropriate. Slyfield is also dubious as a site because of what is buried beneath the land, and the risk of flooding.
- Consultation period - this is very limited and it would appear that the council are rushing things through without proper thought. Making a decision on the plan before the tunnel under Guildford has been properly assessed/agreed seems ludicrous. There will be a creation of so much traffic before a solution has been agreed to deal with the said traffic.

For the above reasons and more, I object to the Guildford Plan. The level of housing being suggested is double what was originally mooted and I feel is not appropriate for Burpham and the surrounding areas.

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

The Institute of Directors has supported the development of Borough’s Local Plan from when the process started in for the original plan period from 2011 to 2030 and now for the period 2013 to 2033.

I understand that after a great deal of hard work and significant consultation by officers and Member, the Council has now published its pre submission draft version of the plan.

Guildford is an important town in Surrey in which the Institute has a significant number of Members.
Particular features of the Plan which the Institute supports include:

- Improvement to the transport infrastructure in the town and in particular to the west of Guildford access from our County Hospital and the Surrey Research Park.
- Planning the provision of 13,680 houses across a range of tariffs and tenures in a number of strategic sites.
- The need to alter the green belt boundary to enable the provision of additional housing and choices of housing.
- It will help to support the educational base in the town.
- It will provide additional land for the growth of employment.
- There is a recognition in the plan of the importance of the employment base in the Borough and that this needs support if its strategic role is to be met fully.
- It meets national planning policy.
- It has been subject to intense scrutiny.
- It has the support of the elected members of the council.
- It is important in terms of putting in place a sound plan that can be used by the community at large, organisations such as the LEP and by business to support further investment in the town.

1. Unbalanced allocation of development in one area of the Borough

Between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles it is proposed that over 6,500 houses are built. This represents over 40% of the housing proposed in the Local Plan. I object to this area being hit so hard by the allocation of development, which is disproportionate to the rest of the Borough.

1. We object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing units being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.
It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages.

The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
The policy has reduced the amount of housing for which the plan provides from 13,860 units to “at least” 12,426 (equivalent to 654 dwellings per year). However, it is noted that this coincides with:

- An addition of a year to the plan period;
- An increase in the previous estimates of population growth, equating to an additional 229 people per year;
- An Annual Housing Target in the policy document which provides for only 9,810 units over the plan period;
- The SHMA (2014) indicated that the housing need could be up to 816 units per year. The March 2017 addendum has a lower figure. No real evidence is provided to justify this; and
- The publication of an addendum to the LAA in June 2017 which stated the housing requirement for the period 2017-2022 to be 4,681. This is using the OAN of 654, and includes a deficit of 631 with a buffer of 20%. It is an effective requirement of 936 dwellings per annum.

Taken as a whole, these points indicate that housing need is likely to be higher than 12,426, possibly considerably so. As such, we support the presentation of the figure as a minimum target. However, given the apparent tension with the identified supply, the Local Authority should be taking a positive approach to residential development, and supporting the principle of development within settlement boundaries, including villages in the Green Belt such as Gomshall.

The Submission Plan contains several significant errors and there appears to be a lack of transparency in terms of the evidence base, the methodology and the subsequent assumptions that have been made. This is particularly so in relation to the ‘amended quantities of the new requirements for homes’ – the housing need figures – which in my view are open to legal challenge. By way of example, Policy S2 states “the figures set out in the Annual Housing Target table sum to a total of 12,426” yet the figures in the table add up to 9,810 – what is the significance of the missing 2,616? This is just one of several glaring examples of why the plan is unsound. The inclusion of a 10% buffer in the housing number over... the plan period which is entirely unnecessary. I object to the fact that in terms of the housing number, the Council has not (as it is required to do) used any constraints such as Green Belt, infrastructure, air quality, AONB and TBHSPA.

The plan represents a steady erosion of the Green Belt and no attempt appears to have been made to address the strategic significance of the Green Belt and its fundamental aim of preventing the sprawl of London. Specifically, I object to the change in the Green Belt boundary to the eastern end of the site as this now encloses an area of high archaeological impact. I also object to the removal of 3.1 hectares from the Green Belt without any justification, to the fact that the increased area, being on the south of the site facing the Surrey Hills AONB will increase the negative impact of the views from the AONB.

In short, the proposed Submission Local Plan is unreliable, unbalanced and therefore unsafe. The Council has failed to remove this site from the Local Plan despite receiving thousands of objections from residents and from statutory consultees. The Council must know that site cannot contribute to the five-year housing projection due to several constraints, perhaps most notably the provision of sewerage capacity.

For the reasons listed above, I consider the plan is unsound and clearly not fit for purpose.

7. The Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there is too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will lead to a loss of village identities.

I object to the fact that air quality concerns have not been taken seriously – air pollution in many parts of the borough, and particularly at the M25/A3 junction, is in excess of EU-permitted levels. Additional traffic will exacerbate this situation, impacting the health of all current and future residents. No account is being taken of the acid deposition on the Thames Basin Heaths SPA and the irreversible impact of the habitat degradation.

I object to the fact that the proposed plan does not meet the needs and desires of local communities, as evidenced through the Ockham Parish Plan. The top two responses as to why local residents enjoy life in Ockham are (1) access to the countryside and clean air and (2) the peace and quiet afforded by wide open spaces. Over 90% wish to see both the historic features of the village maintained and the village’s green spaces, including the FWA/TFM, protected. D3

I object to the continued inclusion of a site (the former Wisley Airfield, - now known as Three Farm Meadows) - where the planning application has already been unanimously rejected by GBC’s Planning Committee.

After 14 months of consideration (and various extensions and amendments), Wisley Property Investments Ltd’s (WPIL) planning application was unanimously rejected by GBC on 8th April 2016 on the recommendation of GBC Planning Officers, who cited the same grave concerns highlighted in this letter.

Serious concerns about this site have also been raised by a broad number of authoritative sources across the UK, including Highways England, Thames Water, NATS and the Environment Agency.

Recent and compelling evidence has shown that Guildford has greatly over-estimated its population growth. Guildford's proposal for more than 12,426 homes (plus a buffer of 1,155 homes) is excessive and will result in needless loss of Green Belt and green character, and increased congestion, that cannot be justified in our already constrained borough.

Allocating too much land for development in the 2017 Plan will result in Guildford being required to provide homes for Woking on our Green Belt, which is irrational and reckless given the severity of congestion in Guildford, a gap town set in the Surrey Hills AONB. We do not need to sacrifice so much Green Belt nor increase town cramming simply to provide for Woking's unmet housing needs. We will be sacrificing our Green Belt to protect Woking's, and I strongly oppose this.

We need our Plan to be based on real figures, not one with inadequate infrastructure and destruction of Guildford's precious green character.

The proposed reduction in the housing requirement is unsound as this reduction is not justified.

It is extremely disappointing that the Council have reduced their housing requirement from the 2016 iteration of the Plan to the 2017 version. Guildford's OAN has previously been identified as 693 dpa upon which the 2016 housing requirement was set, with Guildford seeking to meet its housing needs in full. This was an extremely positive step in an area where housing needs have increased significantly and where pressure for new housing is extreme. The 2017 version has lost some 1400 dwellings from the 2016 iteration, which equates to a reduction of 75 dpa over the plan period. This is a significant reduction and one which is not justified. The most up-to-date population projections produced by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) shows that by 2037, the population of Surrey is expected to increase by over 200,000 people. It can be expected that a large proportion of this increase will be in the West Surrey HMA due to its proximity and access to London and reputation as being part of the commuter belt and a desirable place to live. The OAN as calculated in the new draft Local Plan is therefore inaccurate and should be revised upwards.
The 2017 addendum to the SHMA indicates that due to changing circumstances the Borough's housing need should be reduced from 693 dpa to 654 dpa. The argument for this appears to be based on economic and migration factors. The SHMA addendum uses the 2014 household projections as the most up-to-date figures available at the time of the compiling of the evidence. These projections show a percentage increase of 1.2% from the 2012 projections used previously. The migration argument is based on both internal and international migration. The SHMA identifies that there is likely to be a reduction in EU migration following the vote for the UK to leave the EU. However, as the SHMA states in paragraph 3.73 Guildford 'sees a lower proportion of EU in-migrants than was the case at a regional/ national level'. Therefore, any reduction in EU migration is likely to have little impact on Guildford. Even if EU migration is reduced, any future trading relationships established with other countries is likely to see a requirement to allow movement of people. This therefore means that there is a likely expected increase in international migration and the impacts of this do not appear to have been sufficiently assessed.

Internal migration focuses primarily on out-migration from London. At the most recent assessment, London has a substantive unmet housing need and a number of Local Authorities in London are developing Local Plans which do not appear to make concerted efforts to deal with this unmet need. The SHMA addendum identifies that migration flows from London to Guildford have been steady since 2008/9 and there has been no increase in net flows since the end of the recessionary period which is noted as being 2012. We are concerned that paragraph 3.45 seems to dismiss any potential increase in migration from London. Whilst there still remains some uncertainty regarding migration flows over the next 10 years evidence from the GLA shows that migration patterns will move towards the levels since pre-2008. The recovery in the economy and the availability of credit has seen an increase in home ownership and mortgage applications since 2012. Therefore it can be widely assumed that an increasing number of people are seeking to purchase homes where possible. London's affordability has decreased substantially and this will have an impact on those areas around Greater London which have access into the Capital for work and leisure purposes. Guildford, with a mainline train station and proximity to the A3 and M25 is historically an area where many people re-locate to from the Greater London area. In all likelihood, it is difficult to see how over the next 10 years there will not be an increase in migration from London to areas such as Guildford. That no provision appears to be made for this and paragraph 3.46 argues that there are no signals for a return to increasing levels of migration should be given limited weight as this is based on a single year of evidence.

There is an increasing need for housing in the Borough and this is coupled with an increasing requirement for affordable housing. The 2017 addendum shows that the need for affordable housing has increased to 517 dpa from the 2015 SHMA figure of 478 dpa and this is supported by paragraph 5.32 which states that 'it is clear that house price growth has accelerated in the Borough since mid-2013'. This affordability issue has been substantially affected by the low levels of housing growth in Guildford. In seven of the past eight years, Guildford has significantly underdelivered against its housing requirements. For the past seven years in a row the Council have delivered barely half of its annual housing requirement and this significant underperformance has enhanced levels of unaffordability in the Borough and is a strong justification as to why the Council should not be looking to further reduce its housing requirement. Paragraph 5.49 states that 'the analysis indicates that 629 dpa would be required to support the rebased SNPP ...... to support economic growth, a marginally higher level of housing provision at 631 dpa would be required'.

The 2017 addendum shows an increase in household projections, an increasing need for affordable homes and no consideration of the impacts of likely increased migration from London, suggests that insufficient uplifts have been included to account for these increases. The decreasing affordability is exacerbated by the Council's persistent under-delivery against its housing requirement and therefore there is no justification as to why the requirement should be reduced in this Local Plan.

The Guildford Local Plan is unsound as the identified housing delivery strategy is ineffective Persimmon Homes believe that the proposed housing trajectory and the process of delivery is flawed and will result in significant under-delivery of expected units. The removal of the Housing Trajectory within Policy 52 is concerning and this now places a greater emphasis on the delivery towards the end of the plan period. This approach places a significant risk that the Plan may fail to meet its housing requirement particularly when there is an over-reliance on large sites being delivered for this period. This will leave the Council in a difficult position as there will be little time afforded to make up any shortfalls in delivery. This approach appears to be a way of the Council delaying development until as late in the plan period as possible and there can be no element of positive planning about this. The Council must consider smaller sites which are capable of delivering a sufficient quantum of development to run alongside the larger strategic sites. The Housing White Paper (HWP) has referred to the importance of including smaller sites to ensure a consistent supply is maintained.

The issue of deliverability is exacerbated by the Council's inability to demonstrate a five year housing land supply. The Council are unable to show this for the first 5 years of the plan period when it is in operation. There are severe concerns over the delivery of some of the larger sites upon which the Council are relying. The Plan proposes that smaller sites will deliver in the first five years with the larger strategic sites delivering in the 6-10 and 11-15 year periods. This back loading of the majority of development is concerning particularly when there are deliverability issues with some of the strategic sites such as Wisley Airfield. A planning application was refused for this site and an appeal to be heard later in the year. Neighbouring authorities Mole Valley and Elmbridge objected to this proposal and Highways England have previously raised concerns over the impact that this development will have on the A3 and M25 at junction 10.

Paragraph 47 of the NPPF states that there is a requirement for Local Planning Authorities (LPA) to "identify and update annually a supply of specific deliverable sites sufficient to provide five years worth of housing against their housing requirements". It has been established that GBC cannot demonstrate a robust five year supply of deliverable housing land and at best the Council can show 2.1 years supply. Guildford therefore need to make more land available for development as without this Guildford cannot expect to be able to show a five year supply. Guildford have removed sites from this draft of the Local Plan which are in the Green Belt and considered to be sensitive. Guildford should be looking to allocate smaller sites, which are able to contribute to providing for housing delivery in order to ensure a rolling five year land supply. The NPPF at paragraph 83 states that "Green belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances" however we would advise that the inability to show a five year land supply should be considered to be exceptional circumstances.

In terms of an approach to assessing the five year supply it appears that the Council are favouring the Liverpool method which will see the backlog delivered over the life of the plan period. This does not accord with national policy which suggests that the Sedgefield method should be used which aims to deliver the backlog as quickly as possible and ensures that development is not delayed. In addition to this the Council propose to use 20% buffer which we would agree with given the past delivery problems. We believe that the Local Plan is unsound as the current proposed housing trajectory is ineffective and will not provide the full housing requirement over the plan period. There is too greater a reliance on large sites and the Council should be looking to bring forward smaller sites earlier in the Plan period in order to be able to demonstrate a five year land supply.

POLICY S2 - Borough Wide Strategy

I OBJECT. I have 5 objections to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes:

1. The number is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

2. The number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the "West Surrey" tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, "West Surrey" is much too Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half the people who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside "West Surrey". Puzzlingly, the adjacent districts of Rushmoor and Mole Valley, minutes from Guildford town, are outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere. Unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and is part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council have failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so the housing numbers are unreliable. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county (none in Mole Valley, for instance). This highly lopsided distribution is unexplained.

1. The figure of 13,860 new homes is It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. The Council say we should trust the contractors' model because it is used by a large number of other local authorities. Wide usage, however, does not confer objectivity. Guildford's OAN would fail the basic transparency test even if the methodology used were a universally admired 'gold standard'. But it is not: it belongs to consultants whose website openly proclaim their pro-development agenda, provoking reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. External experts and members of the public have provided detailed critiques of the model. Its most fatal flaw, however, is that it has not been disclosed- not even to the authors of the plan, who have taken it on trust. This is irrational and unsound.

"2 The most widely accepted definition is the 1987 United Nations one from the Brundtland Report: "Development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs."

"3 Including: "empowering local people to shape their surroundings ... Take account of the different roles and character of different areas... protecting the Green Belts around them ... recognizing the intrinsic character and beauty of the countryside and supporting thriving communities within it... Support the transition to a low carbon future ... Contribute to conserving and enhancing the natural environment and reducing pollution ... Encourage the effective use of land by reusing land that has previously been developed (brownfield land)... Conserve heritage assets ... Actively manage patterns of growth to make the fullest use of public transport and cycling and focus significant development on locations which can be made sustainable ."

"4 At the time of writing , about £8billion (40%) has been wiped off the value of the UK's top 4 housebuilders alone .
1. The status of the 13,860 figure is The plan fails to set a Housing Target of new homes to be built, or explain how this relates to the "Objectively Assessed Number" (OAN) for housing need. Elsewhere, the Council have said that the two are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted, but in the same breath say that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. Despite the NPPF, the plan fails to address these constraints. In any case, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected "windfall" sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how can anything else be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a "plan" that fails to propose a Housing Target that takes normal constraints and adjustments credibly into account, and which leaves the Council to set one at any level without further consultation. Even if the OAN were not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

1. It is irrational to embark on a radical transformation of the borough without a clear Housing Most of Guildford borough is theoretically protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the existing number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

Comments on Proposed Submission Local Plan

I have carefully considered the Proposed Submission Local Plan which Guildford Borough Council (“GBC”) has now published for public consultation. My comments are set out in this letter.

I have strong concerns about the Proposed Submission Local Plan and the evidence and assumptions which support it. In particular, I do not agree with the scale of the house building programme which is being proposed by GBC. The target outlined represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough, whilst I note that the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) projects a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

I also note that the Proposed Submission Local Plan includes the statement “We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt”. I support this policy. However, unfortunately GBC appears to be in breach of this same policy through the housing policies it has set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan, whereby some 65% of developments will be made on land that is currently Green Belt.

I am also concerned that the infrastructure proposals are inadequate even to meet the needs of what is there at the moment, let alone the proposed developments in the Local Plan.

I therefore OBJECT to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

Detailed comments on the six different policy areas which form the basis of the Proposed Submission Local Plan are now set out below, followed by my comments on specific site allocation policies.

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy
This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

I have serious concerns about the enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

Some explanation for this mismatch may partly be found in the conclusion of the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised. It estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’ – effectively what the official statisticians at the ONS and the Department of Communities and Local Government (“DCLG”) are predicting Guildford will require based upon their population and household forecasts. To this is added in the SHMA another 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’, a further 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’ and 25 homes due to ‘student growth’, all of which totals up to 693 homes per annum target.

I find this analysis perplexing. Economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG, so what GBC are proposing actually comes on top of the official household growth forecasts for the borough. Moreover, the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 is proposing that all development sites (other than the very smallest) will be required to have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing, so why another 31 homes per annum is needed as affordable housing on top of this 40% ratio is quite incomprehensible.

Furthermore, DCLG research has concluded that there is on average a 97% correlation between population growth and household formation. Therefore, if GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock were actually realised, the outcome will be that Guildford Borough would see its population rise by around 25% over this period. This means that the resultant population growth for Guildford Borough would be at a level 67% higher than the official forecasts.

One of my particular concerns in reviewing the Proposed Submission Local Plan is that the impression is conveyed upon the reader that GBC’s housing targets are effectively needed to fulfil NPPF requirements or because of central government policy – in other words that GBC has no real choice but to put forward these projections, unpalatable though they might be. However, the reality is very different. GBC has voluntarily chosen to pursue a policy of aggressive civic and economic expansion – one might perhaps term it a policy of ‘Forced Growth’ – which underpins all of the housing policies in the Local Plan. In short, the difference between the official statisticians’ forecasts and GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock is entirely down to a political choice made by GBC.

Of course, there is nothing fundamentally wrong in GBC adopting a Forced Growth policy for the Borough – not as long as that policy is made clearly and explicitly and is fully supported by a majority of its electorate. However, I doubt whether this is actually the case. It is certainly not a vision that is shared by me, which unequivocally rejects GBC’s Forced Growth policy.

I accordingly OBJECT to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

Comments on Proposed Submission Local Plan

I have carefully considered the Proposed Submission Local Plan which Guildford Borough Council (“GBC”) has now published for public consultation. My comments are set out in this letter.

I have strong concerns about the Proposed Submission Local Plan and the evidence and assumptions which support it. In particular, I do not agree with the scale of the house building programme which is being proposed by GBC. The target outlined represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough, whilst I note that the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) projects a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

I also note that the Proposed Submission Local Plan includes the statement “We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt”. I support this policy. However, unfortunately GBC appears to be in breach of this same policy through the housing policies it has set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan, whereby some 65% of developments will be made on land that is currently Green Belt.

I am also concerned that the infrastructure proposals are inadequate even to meet the needs of what is there at the moment, let alone the proposed developments in the Local Plan.

I therefore OBJECT to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

Detailed comments on the six different policy areas which form the basis of the Proposed Submission Local Plan are now set out below, followed by my comments on specific site allocation policies.

Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy

This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

I have serious concerns about the enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics (“ONS”) are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

Some explanation for this mismatch may partly be found in the conclusion of the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment, (“SHMA”), which looks at how the annual housing target of 693 homes is comprised. It estimates that 517 homes per annum arise from ‘the demographic starting point’ – effectively what the official statisticians at the ONS and the Department of Communities and Local Government (“DCLG”) are predicting Guildford will require based upon their population and household forecasts. To this is added in the SHMA another 120 homes per annum in order to ‘support economic growth’, a further 31 homes per annum to ‘improve affordability’ and 25 homes due to ‘student growth’, all of which totals up to 693 homes per annum target.

I find this analysis perplexing. Economic growth is already factored into the statistics produced by ONS and DCLG, so what GBC are proposing actually comes on top of the official household growth forecasts for the borough. Moreover, the GBC Affordable Housing Policy H2 is proposing that all development sites (other than the very smallest) will be required to have 40% of their homes offered as affordable housing, so why another 31 homes per annum is needed as affordable housing on top of this 40% ratio is quite incomprehensible.

Furthermore, DCLG research has concluded that there is on average a 97% correlation between population growth and household formation. Therefore, if GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock were actually realised, the outcome will be that Guildford Borough would see its population rise by around 25% over this period. This means that the resultant population growth for Guildford Borough would be at a level 67% higher than the official forecasts.

One of my particular concerns in reviewing the Proposed Submission Local Plan is that the impression is conveyed upon the reader that GBC’s housing targets are effectively needed to fulfil NPPF requirements or because of central government policy – in other words that GBC has no real choice but to put forward these projections, unpalatable though they might be. However, the reality is very different. GBC has voluntarily chosen to pursue a policy of aggressive civic and economic expansion – one might perhaps term it a policy of ‘Forced Growth’ – which underpins all of the housing policies in the Local Plan. In short, the difference between the official statisticians’ forecasts and GBC’s target of a 25% increase in housing stock is entirely down to a political choice made by GBC.

Of course, there is nothing fundamentally wrong in GBC adopting a Forced Growth policy for the Borough – not as long as that policy is made clearly and explicitly and is fully supported by a majority of its electorate. However, I doubt whether this is actually the case. It is certainly not a vision that is shared by me, which unequivocally rejects GBC’s Forced Growth policy.

I accordingly OBJECT to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

4) I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan’s new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

7. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Glandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

(February 2016) confirms that in the past the majority of housing supply in the borough has been delivered on small windfall sites.

Paragraph 47 of the NPPF confirms that local planning authorities should identify and update annually a supply of specific deliverable sites sufficient to provide five years worth of housing against their housing requirements with an additional buffer of 5%.

We support the Council's inclusion of small sites within the proposed delivery strategy and consider that the land at Weybrook, Gomshall could provide a small-scale residential development to contribute to the Council's housing supply within the next 5 years. Although, the Local Plan proposes several large housing allocations it is considered that small windfall sites will continue to have a role in the borough's housing supply, particularly in the early part of the plan period as the large strategic sites will have longer lead-in times before housing can be delivered.

Objections to Guildford Borough Council Proposed Local Plan (June 2016) and to the continued inclusion in the plan of the Former Wisley Airfield (FWA), now known as Three Farms Meadows (TFM) –

Allocation A35 - for the phased development of a new settlement of up to 2100 dwellings

I object to the draft Local Plan for the following key reasons:

1) I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of new housing be built within the Green Belt. There is ample brownfield land in the urban areas which needs to be regenerated, without the need to encroach on protected Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are being ignored.

5) I object to the threat the Local Plan poses to the historic rural village of Ockham and the blight on properties there. The plan calls for a village of 159 residences (with narrow lanes, no streetlights, very few pavements and many listed houses) to be subsumed into a 2,000+ dwelling development, with urban-style buildings up to five storeys high and a population density higher than most London boroughs.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

1. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

2. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

3. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Background

1.1 These representations have been prepared in response to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites June 2016. This report takes into account earlier representations, as relevant, made to the Council in response to consultation on the emerging Local Plan and its supporting evidence base.

Progressing the plan

1.2 Guildford appears to have embraced national Government Advice, made clear within the Housing and Planning Act, to ensure that Local Plans are put into place as quickly as possible in order to facilitate much needed strategically planned growth, which is supported.

Meeting Objectively Assessed Housing Need

1.3 The spatial vision set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites identifies that the plan makes provision for the delivery of 13,860 additional homes by 2033. This represents the Council meeting its Objectively Assessed Need (OAN) per annum of 693 homes across the plan period 2013 – 2033.

1.4 In order to accommodate the full objectively assessed needs within the Borough, it is acknowledged by Guildford Borough Council that this is dependent on Green Belt releases. The proposed Green Belt releases have been informed by the Green Belt and Countryside Study (GBCS), which has been subject to further work since the last round of consultation on the Local Plan in July 2014.

1.5 Guildford’s commitment to achieving their full objectively assessed housing need is welcomed and supported.

Housing Trajectory

1.6 The Housing Trajectory demonstrates that there is a cumulative housing deficit up until 2027/2028 given the reliance on the delivery of complex/difficult strategic sites. This deficit reaches a peak in 2017/2018 (i.e. the year before the planned adoption of the plan) at an housing under provision of 2,019 dwellings based on the potential housing provision figures between 2013-2018.

1.7 In order to ensure the soundness of the plan there is a need to fill a gap in the early years of the plan period with a greater number of smaller sites where there is certainty that they can and will be delivered in the first five years of the plan period. This will ensure diversity of supply and ensure the plan accords with the requirements of paragraph 47 of the NPPF.

1.8 It has been demonstrated that our client’s site could deliver around 70 dwellings of both market and affordable housing within the first five years of the plan period which will contribute to meeting the extensive needs which exist within this area as well as within the Borough as a whole at the start of the plan period to ensure the soundness of the plan.
1.9 Land at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road, Send Marsh is a largely unconstrained site in a sustainable location which is available immediately for development.

Detailed policy matters

1.41 Several concerns regarding individual policies are highlighted, including the size of sites where affordable housing is sought, lack of account taken of started homes and onerous requirements regarding design policies.

1.42 The application of the approach in our Green Belt Assessment and evidence presented in our previously developed land report demonstrates that inter alia on the basis the site would provide for around 70 dwellings that the site in Send Marsh should therefore be allocated for residential development. This approach would ensure the soundness of the plan and in particular policies S2: Borough Wide Strategy, P2: Green Belt and D4: Development in urban areas and inset villages.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Progressing the Plan

5.1 Guildford appears to have embraced national Government Advice, made clear within the Housing and Planning Act, to ensure that Local Plans are put into place as quickly as possible in order to facilitate much needed strategically planned growth. In this regard, Guildford’s commitment to progressing their Local Plan in line with Government Advice and the Housing and Planning Act is supported.

5.2 This commitment to progressing their Local Plan is demonstrated by the fact that Guildford has now progressed to a Regulation 19 consultation, which is also welcomed.

Approach to Objectively Assessed Need
5.3 Since the consultation of the Draft Guildford Borough Local Plan: Strategy and Sites in July 2014, as above, the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) was published in September 2015. The SHMA was produced jointly with Waverley and Woking as with Guildford, the three boroughs are considered to constitute an Housing Market Area.

5.4 The SHMA sets out that the objectively assessed housing need (OAN) for Guildford is 693 dwellings per annum.

5.5 Our clients have carried out an independent assessment of the objectively assessed need (see Appendix Six) which supports a case for a higher OAN. An OAN of 693 should therefore be treated as a minimum.

5.6 Guildford Borough Council has been clear that, ‘appropriate sustainable sites can be allocated within the plan to meet the OAN for both housing and employment’ (Executive Summary of the Full Council report dated 24 May 2016).

5.7 The plan period is now proposed as 2013 – 2033 and taking the OAN of 693 as set out in the SHMA, this equates to the provision of 13,860 dwellings in the plan period. Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy confirms this position in the policy, setting out that, ‘During the plan period (2013 – 2033), we will make provision for 13,860 new homes…’

5.8 Of note is the fact that the Draft Guildford Borough Local Plan: Strategy and Sites published in July 2014 had a plan period of 2011 – 2031 and made provision for 13,040 new homes, which equated to an annual requirement of 652 new homes a year.

5.9 The final SHMA published in September 2015 states that it incorporates the 2012 CLG Household projections and other factors such as student growth.

5.10 Guildford’s commitment to achieving their full objectively assessed housing need is welcomed and supported.

Spatial Development Strategy

5.11 Paragraph 4.1.6 of the supporting text to Policy S2: Planning for the borough – our spatial development strategy sets out that:

‘Our preference is to focus growth in the most sustainable locations, making the best use of previously developed land (including in the Green Belt if appropriate). These locations are:

- Guildford town centre
- Urban areas
- Inset villages
- Identified Green Belt villages

5.12 Paragraph 4.1.8 goes onto set out that, ‘Whilst these sustainable locations are our preferred locations for new development, they are unable to accommodate all of the new development we need. We will therefore release allocated land for development in other areas. These include:

- Countryside beyond the Green Belt
- Urban extensions to Guildford and Ash and Tongham
- New settlement at the former Wisley airfield
- Development around villages (including some expansion).

5.13 It is assumed that villages such as Send Marsh and any associated boundary adjustments to the Green Belt in this area will then be considered under the ‘Inset villages’ part of Policy S2 and this approach is supported.

5.14 Furthermore the proposed settlement hierarchy for the Borough’s settlements is also supported as set out in the ‘Guildford Borough Settlement hierarchy’ which forms part of the evidence base for the Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites June 2016.

5.15 As set out in section 4.0 of the document entitled, ‘Guildford Borough Settlement Hierarchy’, (which refers to the ‘updated settlement hierarchy’), the sustainability ranking of the settlements designates Send Marsh/Burntcommon as a large village. Large villages are defined in the settlement hierarchy as being “unsuitable for substantial growth but capable of accommodating a proportionate extension.”

5.16 The justification for deviation from the sustainability scoring is supported, as is the rationalisation that the population size and proximity of the village to the services in East Horsley and Send result in Send Marsh/Burntcommon sitting more ‘comfortably’ with the other large villages within this category.

5.17 It is considered that the classification of Send Marsh is suitable and accurately reflects the characteristics and role/function of both the village and its interrelationship with the surrounding area.

5.18 The conclusions state that “it would be appropriate to direct new development towards…Send Marsh/ Burntcommon” and other locations within the Borough which are considered to be “the most sustainable in terms of their level of community services and facilities, access to higher order centres and employment opportunities, and ability to support new development.”

5.19 This approach and the conclusions in relation to Send Marsh within the ‘Guildford Borough Settlement hierarchy’ are supported.

Strategy to Meet Objectively Assessed Need

5.20 The spatial vision set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan: Strategy and Sites identifies that the plan makes provision for the delivery of 13,860 additional homes by 2033. This represents the Council meeting its Objectively Assessed Need (OAN) per annum of 693 homes across the plan period 2013 – 2033.

5.21 In order to accommodate the full objectively assessed needs within the Borough, it is acknowledged by Guildford Borough Council that this is dependent on Green Belt releases. The proposed Green Belt releases have been informed by the Green Belt and Countryside Study (GBCS), which has been subject to further work since the last round of consultation on the Local Plan in July 2014.

5.22 This broad approach, which follows the spatial strategy as outlined above to enable the OAN to be met, is supported.

Housing trajectory

5.23 Notwithstanding the above support to the overall approach, there is concern over the deliverability of the housing. The Housing Trajectory identifies the potential housing provision over the plan period (2013 – 2033). This potential provision is broken down into the following five year periods: 1) Pre-adoption (2013 – 2018), 2) the first five years (2018 – 2023), 3) 6 – 10 years (2023 – 2028) and 4) 11-15 years (2028 – 2033).

5.24 What is clear from the Housing Trajectory is that there is a cumulative housing deficit up until 2027/2028 given the reliance on the delivery of complex/difficult strategic sites. This deficit reaches a peak in 2017/2018 (i.e. the year before the planned adoption of the plan) at an housing under provision of 2,019 dwellings based on the potential housing provision figures between 2013-2018.

5.25 This is a significant deficit and with a housing target of 693 dwellings per annum, equates to a deficit of almost 3 years housing provision at the point of adoption of the plan. Such a heavy reliance on strategic sites coming forward at the end of the plan period therefore makes the plan vulnerable.

5.26 The Plan should demonstrate a 5 year housing land supply at the point of adoption. Guildford Council’s proposed position will be that they will not be able to do so and consequently the plan is unlikely to be found sound on this basis without modification.

5.27 In order to ensure the soundness of the plan there is a need to fill a gap in the early years of the plan period with sites where there is certainty that they can and will be delivered. This will ensure diversity of supply and ensure the plan accords with the requirements of paragraph 47 of the NPPF.
5.28 It has been demonstrated that our client’s site could deliver around 70 dwellings of both market and affordable housing within the first five years of the plan period which will contribute to meeting the extensive needs which exist within this area as well as within the Borough as a whole at the start of the plan period.

5.29 Furthermore, paragraph 47 highlights that, ‘Where there has been a record of persistent under delivery of housing, local planning authorities should increase the buffer to 20% (moved forward from later in the plan period) to provide a realistic prospect of achieving the planned supply and to ensure choice and competition in the market for land’.

5.30 Therefore, given Guildford Council’s persistent and significant under delivery of housing, in order to accord with the NPPF, not only should the plan demonstrate a 5 year housing land supply at the point of adoption, but it should also demonstrate a buffer of 20% in addition to this.

5.31 This further emphasises the critical need for the Plan to demonstrate that there is a supply of sites with certainty that can and will be delivered at the start of the plan period, such as our client’s site at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road, Send Marsh.

Reliance on strategic sites

5.32 The reliance of the Local Plan on strategic sites to deliver the required housing during the plan period makes the plan vulnerable particularly given that just six sites are being relied upon to deliver 66% of the overall OAN requirement.

5.33 Each of the six strategic sites are all allocated to deliver in excess of 1,000 new dwellings and will therefore inevitably have considerable lead in times prior to their delivery. This is demonstrated in the LAA housing trajectory with five of these sites not expected to deliver any housing before 2021/2022.

5.34 The Sustainability Appraisal highlights this issue and notes that the Council’s preferred approach results in “an increased reliance on larger sites and hence there would be a likelihood of undersupply within the early part of the plan period.”

5.35 In addition the SA acknowledges that the “high reliance on large (‘strategic’) sites results in a risk that one or more sites will deliver slower than anticipated (or, indeed, not deliver at all in the plan period)”.

5.36 This is compounded by the fact that a number of the larger sites allocated within the Local Plan are also reliant on the delivery of significant infrastructure which in turn may also result in additional delays or a lack of housing delivery.

5.37 This is highlighted in the Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper which states in paragraph 4.45 that ‘…the delivery of former Wisley airfield, Gosden Hill and Blackwell Farm is dependent upon the delivery and timing of key infrastructure requirements on the A3. This is reflected in the expected phasing of the sites, with the majority of provision anticipated post 2027.’

5.38 The current housing trajectory therefore places heavy reliance on the delivery of large strategic sites late within the plan period. This strategy increases the risk that the necessary housing delivery rates will not be met during the plan period leaving the Council unable to demonstrate a five year housing land supply.

5.39 As seen in other Local Authorities, including Wokingham Borough Council, where a similar approach has been taken inevitably lead in times for strategic sites and substantial infrastructure projects are greater than anticipated and delivery is often subject to unforeseen delays.

5.40 The proposed strategy results in three of the strategic sites (Wisley Airfield, Gosden Hill and Blackwell Farm) all having annual housing delivery rates of between 230 – 290 new homes per annum, between 2028 – 2033, which as set out above are all sites which are dependent upon the delivery of critical infrastructure.

5.41 It is also worth noting that the annual housing delivery levels for both Wisley Airfield and Gosden Hill are both greater than the entire annual delivery rates of housing within the Borough in 2013/2014 and 2014/2015 respectively.
5.42 In order for the Local Plan to be found sound at examination this issue must be clarified in order to ensure that the housing delivery proposed across the Borough within the plan period is clearly demonstrated through the supply of sites with certainty that they can and will be delivered, such as our client’s site at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road, Send Marsh.

Query over conflicting information

5.43 As set out in the Duty to Cooperate Topic Paper which forms part of the evidence base for the emerging Local Plan “…the total provision of new homes across the plan period (including completions since 2013 and outstanding capacity) within the Proposed Submission Local Plan is 15,844. This provides 1,984 homes as a buffer.”

5.44 It is however noted that Table 1 which accompanies Policy S2: Borough Wide Strategy and sets out the planned delivery of housing between 2018 – 2033 only demonstrates 13,652 homes being delivered between 2018 and 2033.

5.45 This is contrary to the supporting text in paragraph 4.1.12 which states that the table “shows a number of new homes that is greater than the figure in the policy” and does not accord with the housing trajectory set out in the LAA.

5.46 The Council has not justified this approach and without such justification it has not been demonstrated that the plan is consistent with national policy and therefore it has not been demonstrated that the plan is sound.

5.47 We therefore reserve the right to submit further information in regards to the housing strategy of the Borough on the basis that the Council has been unable to provide any clarification in respect of these issues during the six week consultation period.

Soundness of the plan

5.48 In order to ensure that the Local Plan is found sound at Examination we would therefore strongly recommend that the Council revises its housing trajectory to incorporate a greater number of smaller sites which can deliver in the earlier stages of the plan period thereby ensuring that the housing trajectory is robust and achievable.

5.49 This would accord with paragraph 035 of the National Planning Practice Guidance (NPPG) which states that “Local planning authorities should aim to deal with any undersupply within the first 5 years of the plan period”.

5.50 As set out in this report Land at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road, Send Marsh is a largely unconstrained site in a sustainable location which is available immediately for development.

5.51 We have demonstrated through our Green Belt Assessment and this report that the existing Green Belt designation associated with this land should be removed and as such there are no overriding constraints to prevent early delivery of the site at Polesden Lane.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Attached documents:
1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

A part of any local plan should be to use up all brownfield sites first, whether immediately available or at a later date, before any other land for housing is considered. There are areas in the Guildford area where there are unoccupied pieces of land, derelict offices and industrial areas. Areas which need re-generation must be identified and used for housing needs before any other land is considered. Developers must be made to use brownfield land and not just proceed with what they see as a 'cheaper' option, i.e. the development of green fields.

1. The recent proposal for new housing at the Effingham School site was recently rejected by GBC. Surely if this site was rejected then the conditions for building more homes in the Horsleys & Ockham are even less justifiable.
2. Onslow Estate Housing - Why has this proposed area not been listed for new housing? I understand from the local press that GBC do not wish to take up the offer for this large site to have new houses. This site has good access to the A246 and is close to Merrow shops and public transport including the park & ride which provides excellent access to the centre of Guildford.
3. In order to achieve a better balance in the housing stock GBC should implement a strict policy to ensure that the demolition of small houses including bungalows and the resulting construction of replacement houses of a much larger size be immediately stopped. Whilst current policy appears to favour the developer, the removal of smaller housing stock reduces the number of properties to which people can downsize to and obviously if there are no such smaller houses available in the area that people wish to continue to live in they will just remain in their larger homes and not free up existing houses for growing families.
4. It would appear that many of the comments and views raised by local people in the previous consultation appear to have been largely ignored, certainly as far as the Horsleys, Ockham & Ripley villages are concerned.
5. The objective of adding some 14,000 new homes, which I understand represents a net increase of some 25% to the housing stock of Guildford Borough over the next 20 years, appears grossly overstated given the nationally projected population increase of 15% over the same period. I have to question whether employment in the area; infrastructure including roads and public transport; facilities such as hospital, medical and schooling; will increase by a similar amount. If not then it surely is illogical to start to plan for so many additional houses.

Borough Wide Strategy: I object to the statement where it states "the figures set out in the Annual Housing Target table sum to a total of 12,426" yet the numbers in the table only add up to 9,810. What is the significance of the missing 2,616? I also object to the inclusion of a 10% contingency in the housing number over the plan period. This is unnecessary and misleading in putting forward housing requirements.

I object to the fact that GBC have not followed the correct process for Send and Ripley developments. Any significant changes to the 2014 proposals, such as the proposal development of Garlick's Arch, should have required another full consultation, which did not happen. This invalidates the whole process.

I oppose the development of the Blackwell Farm site, there cannot be a good solution to the problem of additional pressure on traffic using this part of the road network.

The housing proposals in Guildford Town Centre must only be approved if there is a limit to height of building, no more than 4 stories, that there is no interference with the unique views that give Guildford Town its character. High quality materials should be specified that blend with the natural environment. There should be no increase in the number of houses allocated for the Town Centre, whatever is decided for other sites. Green spaces in the Town need to be preserved.

It should be accepted that provision of the level of housing required will mean some incursion of the Green Belt.

Brownfield sites centrally should be developed to produce more accommodation for students on campus and homes for the elderly thus freeing up family homes in the surrounding areas that could come back onto the market to ease the housing shortage.

I strongly believe this expansion plan is wholly inappropriate to the structure, size and layout of Guildford.

I object to the numbers set out in this policy. There appear to be serious flaws in the methodology used in the SHMA and the conclusions derived from it are consequently unacceptable. Particular issues of concern are that inconsistent jobs and employment data have been used for the economic assessment of housing need; there is no assessment of the likely impact of Brexit; and the economically derived housing number is taken as the OAN without consideration of the potential for sustainable commuting or the implications of the Green Belt land area within the borough. There is also significant circularity in the arguments. For instance, a significant proportion of the projected economic growth arises from the construction work to build dwellings for the workers needed in economic growth. So you only need the workers if and while you build the houses. This is not sustainable economic growth and cannot justify building the houses. Similarly, schools are said to be needed to serve the new homes. The answer to this circularity is not to build the houses.

I also object to the approach by which huge developments are proposed for just a few sites in extremely sensitive areas. A more organic approach with more but smaller developments spread across the borough to meet only the real needs of our communities would be much fairer and more sustainable. There is a perversity in proposing to destroy the character of our villages and thus reducing their attraction. If the Economic Strategy is not realistically achievable without destroying the character of our borough and its villages, then that strategy should be reviewed. Economic growth at all costs is not a desirable objective.

Given my recognition of the need for some development and for all of us to share the burden, I am not commenting in detail on all the sites in my neighbourhood, only on A26 and A46 (see below). However, I would make the general comment that there must be no “thin end of the wedge”, no continuing encroachment once a small site has been approved, and there should be consistency in application of the policies.

I also object to the lack of any policy reference to retrospective applications. I suggest that specific words should be included in the policies, probably this one, to make it clear that developing first and asking later will not be tolerated. Indeed, there should be a presumption that retrospective permission will not be granted and that enforcement action will be taken except where there is a really exceptional and acceptable explanation for the failure to seek approval first.

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

06 I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Local Plan Policies
1.19 As a result of the new and updated evidence base set out above there have been a number of alterations made to the emerging policies set out within the Local Plan.

1.20 A full summary of all of the amendments are set out in the ‘Summary of key changes to the Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites (2017)’ document prepared by the Council.

1.21 However, generally these can be categorised as follows:
- Additional wording to reflect the NPPF, NPPG, or recent legislation;
- Additional or revised wording to provide clarification or further explanation of a policy’s intent;
- Additional or revised wording to reflect the consultation responses of statutory consultees (e.g. Environment Agency, Historic England, Natural England);
- Amendment to reflect an alteration proposed to a site allocation, Green Belt boundary or settlement boundary;
- Amendment to reflect or make reference to new or updated evidence;
- Deletion of text considered superfluous or unnecessary;
Representations in response to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan | Land at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road
- Correction of typographical errors.

1.22 Of the amendments made to the Local Plan the most significant are the alteration to the proposed plan period which is now 2015.

1.23 The 2017 version of the Local Plan now seeks to deliver only 12,426 additional homes rather than 13,860 homes as proposed in the 2016 version of the Local Plan (a reduction of 1,434 homes).

1.24 This is reflected in draft Policy S2 which has now also been revised to illustrate a revised annual housing target. A summary of the proposed amendments to the annual housing target are set out in the table below.

1.25 It should be noted that as a result of the proposed plan period between the 2016 and 2017 versions of the Local Plan being revised there is no annual housing target for 2033/34 in the 2016 version or 2018/19 in the 2017 version.

1.26 This is because the plan period ended in 2033 in the 2016 version and the 2017 version of the plan is not anticipated to be adopted until 2019. As such, Guildford Borough Council is taking the approach that, the annual housing target does not commence until 2019/2020 following the proposed adoption of the plan.

1.27 The differences between the total amount of housing proposed to be delivered between the 2016 and 2017 versions of the plans are explained below.

1.28 It can be seen that in the first five years following the adoption of the Local Plan (2019 – 2024) 750 fewer homes are proposed to be delivered as part of the 2017 version of the Local Plan.

1.29 The annual housing target in emerging Policy S2 does not total the number of dwellings proposed to be delivered overall by the spatial vision in either the 2016 or 2017 version of the Local Plan.

1.30 This is owing to the fact that the annual housing target does not relate to the entire Plan period. In the 2017 version of the Local Plan for example the overall housing target is 12,426 however the annual housing target numbers only equal
9,810. This is as a result of the Plan period for the 2017 version of the Local Plan being 2015 – 2034 but the annual housing target only commencing in 2019/2020.

1.31 The 2,616 difference between the overall housing target of 12,426 and the total of the annual housing target (9,810) therefore relates to the pre-adoption period of 2015 – 2019. This is demonstrated in the Housing Trajectory set out in the 2017 LAA Addendum. A summary of this is provided in the table below.

[Table]

1.32 The new OAN figure of 654 as proposed in the SHMA Addendum and 2017 version of the Local Plan is therefore utilised across these four years as the annual target. This however results in a projected backlog of 974 houses prior to the adoption of the emerging Local Plan owing to poor housing delivery rates.

Site Allocations

1.33 The 2017 version of the emerging Local Plan makes a number of significant amendments to the site allocations previously set out in the 2016 version of the Local Plan. These amendments include the removal of six site allocations and the insertion of two new site allocations.

1.34 Specific details of the amendments made to each site allocation can be found in the ‘Summary of key changes to the Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites (2017)’ published by the Council.

1.35 However, several of the amendments relate to the capacity or proposed uses associated with site allocations identified in the 2016 version of the emerging Local Plan.

1.36 This includes an additional 550 homes being proposed at site allocation A29 (Land to the south and east of Ash and Tongham) and the removal of the industrial element from site allocation A43 (which has been re-located to new site allocation A58).

Policies Maps

1.37 As part of the Regulation 19 public consultation in 2016 approximately 40 policies maps were published to spatially illustrate the proposed planning policies and site allocations set out in the emerging Local Plan.

1.38 In light of the amendments made to the evidence base, strategic policies and site allocations in the 2017 version of the emerging Local Plan which have been set out above more than one third of the policies maps in Appendix H have been subject to amendment.

1.39 The extent of amendments proposed to each map varies considerably however, the alterations can be generally categorised as follows:

- Correction of an identified error in the previous policies maps;
- Removal or amendment to a site allocation or new designation of a site;
- Green Belt boundary amendments; or
- Amendments to a settlement boundary.

1.40 Specific details of the amendments made to each policy map can be found in the ‘Summary of key changes to the Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites (2017)’ published by the Council.

1.41 With regards to the Green Belt boundary amendment at Land at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road the alteration proposed would in effect revert to the existing Green Belt boundary.

1.42 As such the revisions to the Green Belt boundary originally proposed under the Regulation 19 consultation held in 2016 are no longer intended to be incorporated.

1.43 Under the current proposals as set out in the policies maps which accompany the targeted Regulation 19 consultation Land at Polesden Lane and Send Marsh Road would therefore not be removed from the Green Belt.
4.4 As set out in Section 2 of this report one of the most significant influences on the 2017 version of the emerging Local Plan has been the addition of the ‘West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA): Guildford Addendum Report 2017’ to the evidence base.

4.5 As a result of this Addendum Report the Objectively Assessed Need (OAN) for Guildford has been revised from 693 homes per year to 654 homes per year.

4.6 However, the Addendum Report demonstrates that there is a clear and increasing need for housing within the Borough. Indeed the demographic and affordability findings of the Addendum Report do not support the proposed reduction in OAN incorporated into the 2017 version of the emerging Local Plan.

4.7 We do not therefore support the lower OAN figure utilised in the 2017 Proposed Submission version of the Local Plan. This amendment to the Local Plan is therefore considered to be unjustified.

Policy S2 - Planning for the Borough - Our Spatial Development Strategy

The spatial strategy rests heavily on a small number of strategic sites to deliver the longer term housing supply over 6-10 and 11-15 years. However, if there is a delay in delivering these strategic sites, or they prove not to be viable, then the supply of housing will be significantly interrupted. Smaller sites should be identified near to the large strategic sites to improve delivery and avoid under-supply.

1. Brownfield Sites are Available

There is brownfield land available in the town centre which is being earmarked for commercial development rather than for housing. This is enough to meet our real needs for affordable local homes. There are enough vacant commercial sites to cope with genuine business need, and we have enough retail capacity already, so urban brownfield/derelict land should be used for housing

I object to the local plan (Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites 2017) in its current amended form, my submission should be taken into account as the proposing housing target has changed to 12,426 and my submission is a comment on this altered figure and the confidence the public have on this newly proposed figure. The proposed housing target is based on assumptions that have not been made public and includes flaws that have not been corrected in the modified SHMA.

The 12,426 proposed housing target figure (with an annual rate of 654 new homes per year) is a significant uplift compared to the current 2003 local plan that is in effect now (which has an annual housing target figure of 322 new homes per year). As the proposed housing target figure is over double the 2003 current target figure, it is imperative the local plan justifies this uplift in significant and accurate detail, to give the local population confidence in the proposed plan.

However the proposed local plan and recent amendments fall short of this by a significant margin. Guildford Borough Council outsourced the formulation of the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) to GL Hearn. GL Hearn produced a SHMA that detailed key findings and figures, however the exact manner of how these figures were formulated and calculated were not disclosed. When relevant FOI requests were made to Guildford Borough Council on how these figures were calculated, the council responded that these calculations could not be disclosed due to commercial sensitivities. As a member of the public I have had to take on face value that the figures produced in the SHMA are accurate and are robust. This is not transparent governance and this is not fair to the public, we are being asked to consult on a local plan that we can not scrutinise in detail. The proposed housing target figure is a key bedrock to the rest of the local plan as it effects how much land in the borough needs to be set aside for development and not to be able to scrutinise this figure in detail means I have no confidence in this figure and the local plan as a whole.

As the exact nature on how the figures reported in the SHMAs are calculated and protected behind 'commercial sensitivity' clauses they are not able to be scrutinised by FOI requests. I recently asked Guildford borough council if they had fact checked or scrutinised the recent 2017 SHMA documents themselves. At first they misinterpreted my request and after a formal review of my FOI requested GBC responded (the first response is attached as a word document and the internal review response is added to the end of this submission as an appended email);

Extract from response;

"Planning Services have reviewed your comments of 26th June and respond as follows:

- Edge Analytics (demographic company) were commissioned to review both the Guildford SHMA and an earlier version of the West Surrey SHMA. This provided the Council with reassurance regarding the robustness of the methodology employed by GL Hearn in preparing subsequent iterations of the SHMA.
- The Council commissioned Edge Analytics to review the Guildford SHMA and Waverley Borough Council commissioned them to review an earlier version of the West Surrey SHMA. Both these reports were analysed by officers to validate the robustness of the findings and understand any concerns raised or recommendations for additional work.
- The Council does not possess a copy of the demographic model used to prepare the SHMA nor does the Council have an alternative model through which to run a comparative analysis of figures. The Council utilised a specialist company (Edge Analytics) to critically review the work. Both these reports by Edge Analytics were made available to you in the response on 26th June 2017."

Although not clear at first read through, the above (in parallel with the attached initial response from the council) is an admission by the council that GBC have not fact checked or scrutinised the figures in the recent local plan submission, provided to them by GL Hearn. Edge Analytics scrutinised the 2014 SHMA, not the 2015, 2016, 2017 SHMAs (or recent amendments)! After Edge analytics had reviewed the 2014 SHMA significant errors were still found within the 2014 SHMA data and it was publically believed to be not fit for purpose. How the council believes a flawed SHMA produced by GL Hearn can be robust in its methodology after a failed review process by Edge Analytics is beyond belief. If the 2014 SHMA was so wrong how on earth can the public have any confidence that GL Hearn can produce a reliable 2017 SHMA especially as it has not been reviewed by anyone within the council or contracted by the council!

This response from the council proves the Council has not conducted any recent reviews on the provided figures in the most recent proposed local plan with amended figures. Seeing as the calculations behind these figures are protected by 'commercial sensitivities' the public has to have confidence that the figures have been scrutinised to a reliable level, which in this case it has not. As the amended proposed housing target figure is such an important figure to the rest of the local plan this makes the whole proposed Local Plan unsound and as such the whole amended plan should be rejected.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages which compromises the overall character of the area.

Having read through much of the detail relating to this plan, I would like to object strongly to it. I fully support the Guildford Residents Association response. This plan is not ready for an inspector.

In particular, I am very concerned about the approach Guildford has taken compared to plans elsewhere in that it chooses not to constrain its overall housing growth. Why would we make this choice when others do choose to contain their growth plans?

Guildford Borough Council –Draft Local Plan

We represent the views of 54 individual residents in The Ridings, East Horsley, KT24 5BN. a private road off Forest Road, who are unanimous in their objection to the proposed submission of the Local Plan, on the following grounds.

Borough-Wide Strategy, Policy S2

We do not have the expertise to analyse the figures in this part of the Plan, but we have read and understood the comments made by East Horsley Parish Council, and we strongly support its comments. In view of the doubts it casts on the veracity and reliability of your figures, the burden of proof in justifying the very significant building proposals is now plainly on the Borough Council.
We specifically reject the Borough’s Forced Growth Policy.

The Parish Council also objects to the overall strategy for new housing development, which:

(a) is based on an OAN with no allowance for the policy and landscape constraints of the District;

(b) appears to exceed the OAN for the District;

(c) would cause significant harm; not only from the development of countryside for housing but also by reason of its effect on minor rural highway network; and

(d) disproportionately directs new housing to villages and land in the Green Belt and rural areas.

This Report sets out the objections to that Strategy.

While Guildford Town Centre and urban area takes 2,742 units. This is less than 14% of the total projected housing requirement and much of the remaining 11,000 homes are to be accommodated in urban and village extensions (mainly open countryside around existing settlements) and in rural areas including what are called “inset villages” - effectively a redrawing of Green Belt boundaries to exclude former Green Belt villages and open land surrounding them from the protection of Green Belt designation. Of the 11,000 non-Town Centre requirement over 50% are being planned for the 3 North East Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandons/Horsleys. This is disproportionate and unacceptable for such a small and sparsely populated area.

It is noted that there is a significant shift in the balance of urban to rural housing site allocation at the expense of the Green Belt, when comparing the housing allocations in 2016 in comparison to the 2014 draft Plan. In the 2014 Plan Guildford town centre and urban area was allocated 3439 homes. Total housing potential listed was 14057 but there was a provision of only 13,040 in 2014 policy 2, which means that nearly 25% was allocated originally for town/urban in 2014. However the parameters of site allocations seem to have altered which now masks the true extent of the shift from urban to rural. For example, A24 Slyfield (1000 homes), A25 Gosden Hill Farm (2000 homes) and A26 Blackwell Farm (1800 homes) are now designated as “Guildford urban area” whereas in 2014 these 3 sites were allocated as “land around Guildford urban area”. The 2016 PSLP town centre and urban area (excluding Slyfield, Gosden Hill and Blackwell Farm sites) on a like for like basis give a housing provision of 2108 homes with a total housing figure of 13860 which means only 15% of new homes are allocated in the original definition of the town centre or urban area, against the 25% allocation in 2014.

RPC takes issue with the approach taken to meeting housing need within the Borough as a whole and objects to adopting the whole of the OAN as the housing requirement in a Borough which is almost 90% Green Belt and which contains significant areas of AONB.

20. RPC note that Core Strategies in other constrained areas have been found to be “sound” despite a housing requirement significantly below AON. (see for example Brighton and Hove City Plan 2016).

The approach taken by the Council does not appear to have understood or followed the decision of the Court of Appeal and judgement of Lord Justice Keene in City of St Albans v Hunston Properties plc [2013]EWCA Civ 1610 at

“There is no doubt, that in proceeding their local plans, local planning authorities are required to ensure that the “full objectively assessed needs” for housing are to be met, “as far as is consistent with the policies set out in this Framework”. Those policies include the protection of Green Belt land. Indeed, a whole section of the Framework, Section 9, is devoted to that topic, a section which begins by saying “The Government attaches great importance to Green Belts”; Paragraph 79. The Framework seems to envisage some review in detail of Green Belt boundaries through the new Local Plan process, but states that “the general extent of Green Belts across the country is already established.” It seems clear, and is not in dispute in this appeal, that such a Local Plan could properly fall short of meeting the “full objectively assessed needs” for housing in its area because of the conflict which would otherwise arise with policies on the Green Belt or indeed on other designations hostile to development, such as those on Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty or National Parks.”

Despite this clear guidance from the Court of Appeal, the Council appears to have adopted the full OAN as the basis for the Plan. This in turn, and taken together with the emphasis on providing new housing in the Green Belt has led to removal of protection of the Green Belt from places previously within the Green Belt, by insetting of land in and around settlements to exclude them from the Green Belt and by the allocation of land within the Green Belt in order to allocate it for housing.

While RPC has not carried out its own OAN assessment it is noted that Table 1 of the PSLP indicates delivery well excess of the requirement identified in Policy S2 for the period 2018-2033. Paragraph 4.1.12 of the Plan confirms that the number of new homes shown in Table 1 is greater than the figure in the policy and purports to justify this as building flexibility into the plan and to demonstrate that the strategy is capable of delivering the target. The extent of oversupply in the Plan (130% of OAN) is not a figure derived from national policy and appears to be arbitrarily chosen. National policy in the NPPF states the requirement “to ensure that their Local Plan meets the full, objectively assessed needs for market and affordable housing in the housing market area, as far as is consistent with the policies set out in this Framework”. NPPF 82 states: “Once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances…” There is no “exceptional” need for flexibility in Guildford Borough and certainly no case is made out to support such a significant over-supply.

In all the circumstances, RPC do not accept that either the housing requirement of 693 dwellings per annum or the proposed Table 1 delivery is reasonably justified. The plan has not been drawn up in conformity with the NPPF. The balance between housing need and the exceptional circumstances required to justify Green Belt boundary alterations is not made out.

The policies of the Plan are therefore not “sound” in this important respect and both the requirement in Policy S2 and the Planned Delivery between 2018 and 2033 should be modified by significant reductions in the number of dwellings proposed in each case.

Accordingly, RPC objects to the scale and distribution of housing proposed in Table 1 of the Plan “Proposed Delivery between 2018 and 2033”. The proposed delivery plan does not constitute sustainable development, would result in loss of rural character, harm to heritage assets, urbanisation, increased traffic and intensification of use and social isolation and harm to community cohesion.
RPC considers that the proposed Planned Delivery is so misconceived and so fundamental to the Plan that it is hard to see how it could be modified without large tracts of the Plan being re-written. Without substantial modification and rewriting, the Plan is not sound within the meaning of section 20 and paragraph 181 of the NPPF. RPC recommends that the Plan should be withdrawn or at least substantially modified by reducing significantly and re-distributing new housing currently proposed for the rural area in Table 1 Planned Delivery and by making consequent main modifications to the Plan.

RPC consider that the spatial strategy does not represent sustainable development, is not sound within the meaning of section 20 and paragraph 182 of NPPF and fails to address the key issues for Guildford in a sound and sustainable way.

119. The Plan will not deliver sustainable development in accordance with the policies of the Framework. Rather it will lead to serious degradation of the rural environment, erosion and piecemeal development of vital Green Belt land, cause harm to heritage assets, the intensification of use and urbanisation and access to new development principally by motor car, leading to congestion or upgrading of rural roads at the expense of rural character.

120. The effect on existing and future residential communities will be diminution in social cohesion, reduced quality of life and substantial harm to the amenity.

121. The overall housing land requirement in Policy S2 and the Proposed Delivery of housing in Table 1 of the Plan, as well as individual allocations in the Plan considered above, are not founded on a robust and credible evidence base.

122. The planned 30% oversupply of housing sites will make monitoring impossible and will lead to a de facto housing requirement which significantly exceeds the OAN.

123. RPC objects to the above proposals in the PSLP in principle and on the basis of the above comments and recommendations and asks that the Plan should be modified accordingly or withdrawn.

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

   a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

   b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

   c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work...
elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

second period and 3,945 in the final period. Whilst there is no requirement to distribute delivery evenly throughout the plan period it cannot be considered to be ‘good planning’ to provide fewer units than needed in the early phase of the plan and risk falling short of the increased delivery requirement at the end of the period, particularly when the most recent figures * (October 2014 to October 2015) show a net addition of just 404 units to Guildford Borough’s Council Tax Base, reflecting a continued shortfall against the annual figure of 693 homes, as last year’s SHMA indicated. The stated target of just 500 units in 2018/19 indicates an unwillingness to take timely steps to address the historic and continuing shortfall, thereby exacerbating the housing problems in the borough. At the rate proposed, the SHMA figure for Guildford Borough will not be met until the fifth year of the Plan.

* These figures are sourced from a DCLG dataset published in December 2015 to support the provisional 2016-17 allocations for the New Homes Bonus.

In introducing the site allocations, the Plan confirms that the objective is to bring forward housing sites in the earlier stages of the plan period, to help boost housing supply. It is acknowledged also that those sites that are constrained and are identified to come forward in later years should be encouraged to come forward sooner.

Miller is once again challenging the spatial strategy and its over reliance on larger strategic housing allocations (those over 1000 dwellings) on the basis that they are dependent upon the provision of infrastructure, especially highway improvements, which are yet to be specified, costed or accurately programmed for delivery. Although there is now some additional detail (such as what improvements will be necessary along the A3) the Council has still not indicated whether such changes will provide the necessary highway capacity and how they will be funded.

We reiterate our view that the Guildford Borough would be far better served by a more flexible approach that enabled a greater number of modestly sized sites, properly distributed across the borough - on a scale that was put forward in earlier iterations of the Local Plan. Whilst some of the strategic sites have their attributes, they can only realistically be partially developed during the Plan period (subject to wider infrastructure provision), so alternatives do need to be developed. Even though the Normandy / Flexford site (which had a number of deliverability issues) has now been removed, there remain concerns about the likely AONB restrictions in relation to the Blackwell Farm site.

It is considered that the Plan should identify a number of more modestly sized sites (such as H8-C) across the borough as a whole, as an alternative and / or in addition to relying almost exclusively on the larger allocations.

We therefore reaffirm our view in support of H8-C, which is ideally placed to deliver housing in the early stages of the Plan period. If GBC is unwilling - as it appears - to make a positive decision in respect of this allocation, we therefore look to the Inspector (when he is reviewing GBC’s questionable approach to OAN and Woking’s unmet need) to consider including this site to help address the shortfall. H8-C would:

1. Provide for a level of development that respects the character of - and be subservient to - the existing village.
2. Not necessitate access through the village which is already constrained by the narrow road layout, on street parking, the left in left out access junction on the A322 and the school traffic that causes congestion during the AM and PM peak periods.
3. Provide access to the school from the south which would remove school traffic from the village, particularly as the school continues to expand its pupil numbers over the coming years (as it does again this coming September).
4. Provide safe pedestrian and cycle routes and highway improvements to the A322 including a new pedestrian crossing to enhance access to the school, in line with the objectives of the recently approved School Travel Plan.

5. Ensure a scale of development which can be accommodated with improvements to the foul sewers, an upgrade of the electrical power and the new access. These improvements are of a level that would not constrain the ability to deliver a policy compliant level of affordable housing.

6. Ensure that any minor loss of common land would be compensated for and the development can provide on-site public amenity space which links via existing and proposed footpaths to the immediately adjacent common.

7. Ensure that the purposes for designating the Green Belt would be largely unharmed as the site is well screened by existing mature tree and hedgerow boundaries that will preserve the openness of the wider Green Belt. For the reasons set out above the other purposes of the Green Belt would be maintained.

For the above reasons Miller maintains that Site H8-C (which comprises of land at Hook Farm / Hunts Farm) should be allocated for development which would ensure housing coming forward during the early part of the Plan period and reduce the risks associated with relying on the larger housing allocations which are infrastructure dependent which could affect their viability and delivery.

- I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of new housing be built within the Green Belt. There is ample brownfield land in the urban areas which needs to be regenerated, without the need to encroach on protected Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are being ignored.

- I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan’s new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

- Guildford Borough Council, unlike the other Surrey Councils, insists that there is a requirement for double the number of houses in this area compared with theirs. That estimate was provided by a firm which refuses to disclose how it came to that conclusion on the grounds of "commercial sensitivity". Thus, the Council has no way of verifying how accurate this estimate is, or what assumptions were used in coming to this figure. It is imperative that this arbitrary figure be challenged, and another firm used who will be transparent in the assumptions it makes, so that a proper estimate can be used.

In summary, and in view of the points I have made above, I would be grateful if you would log my strong object ions to the proposal to build 1100 houses between Glaziers Lane and Westwood Lane in the village of Normandy.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

I object to policy S2 the Borough Wide Strategy and the commitment to build 13,860 homes based on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) 2015 prepared by GL Hearn. The OAN “objectively assessed need” figure in the SHMA of 693 homes a year is far too high! I am very surprised and concerned that GBC have adopted the OAN of 13,860 homes as the housing target without any application of constraints as required under the National Planning Policy Framework and the National Planning Policy Guidance. The scale of the housing number proposed, inevitably increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound.
A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole. Other local planning authorities appear to take a more balanced view in their approach to planning. The Woking Core Strategy 2012 applies a constraint of 50% from the 594 new homes identified in their own SHMA. “It should be noted that local evidence (Strategic Housing Market Assessment - SHMA) highlights a need for an additional 499 new affordable homes every year in the Borough and a total of 594 new homes every year when taking into account demand. Given the level of environmental constraints present in the Borough, it is considered that the provision of an average of 292 dwellings per annum represents a reasonable level of housing growth for Woking and is deliverable.” Historically GBC have correctly applied constraints on housing numbers to protect the Green Belt. The Surrey Structure Plan 1994 advocated a general slowing down in the rates of development “because of the environmental constraints which exist in the County, including Green Belt”.

This slowing down was reflected in the requirement that Guildford Borough should accommodate a net increase of 3,800 dwellings between 1991 and 2006. This was a lower rate of development than in previous years.

It is interesting to note that the Structure Plan at that time expected sufficient land to arise within the urban areas to accommodate this requirement. However it would appear that today GBC have effectively ignored the real potential of the urban area to provide for housing. At the same time GBC have adopted a radically different approach to the policy of the Council over the last 20/30 years and are now ignoring government policy in relation to the Green Belt. A detailed and comprehensive professional review of the SHMA dated June 2016 by NMSS an independent expert firm dealing with housing and demographics procured by Guildford Residents Association (GRA) has concluded that the OAN figure should be revised down from 693 homes per annum to 510 homes per annum. The 41 page report by NMSS which can be found on the GRA website entitled “A Review of the West Surrey SHMA as it relates to the Objectively Assessed Housing Needs of Guildford”. It was a real community effort. It was paid for by over separate 20 Guildford Residents Associations and Local Parish Councils none of whom were convinced that the SHMA report procured and presented by GBC was accurate or transparent or accessible in a meaningful way. So they clubbed together and collected contributions from many hundreds of Guildford residents to try to find out the truth of the housing need figure presented in the Local Plan. The NMSS report includes detailed analysis and financial modelling and was prepared by Neil McDonald. He is an independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics. He works with local authorities and others on the estimation of housing need and related issues. He was a civil servant and policy adviser to Ministers for over 30 years, the last 10 advising on housing and planning issues within the Department of Communities and Local Government. His 7 years as a Director at DCLG included a posting as Director, Planning Policy and a period as Chief Executive of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit. NMSS found that the SHMA used in the Local Plan incorrectly adds extra homes to its basic demographic projection to allow for improving affordability of housing, increased student numbers and economic growth.

The report found that none of these additions were justified based on the evidence presented within the SHMA. The report concluded amongst other matters that:

The affordability of housing in Guildford is no worse than in other Surrey districts and boosting supply beyond the demographic OAN would not result in a noticeable improvement in affordability but simply in more people moving to the area.

There are reasons for believing that the SHMA’s estimate of the number of homes needed for students may be too high and that an adequate provision for students is already included in the demographic OAN. The report advises that the Council should commission a separate student housing need figure for Guildford given the distorting effect of students on our overall OAN. It envisages that, once this exercise is undertaken, improved accuracy means the overall OAN would be likely to reduce still further.

The SHMA seeks to estimate the number of homes needed to support employment growth using employment rate assumptions that are inconsistent with the employment forecasts. This produces misleading results. An analysis of the Cambridge Econometrics and Oxford Economics forecasts using employment or economic activity rate assumptions consistent with the forecasts suggests that in neither case is there a need to provide more housing than suggested by the demographic analysis. Indeed, in both cases a smaller population growth (and hence fewer homes) could support the jobs growth that is forecast. A further independent report was procured in 2016 by the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England CPRE from Richard Bate of Green Balance, an independent consultancy with expertise in demographic and housing matters to carry out a review of the GL Hearn SHMA.
The report by Green Balance runs to 37 pages and its findings are that the OAN for homes in Guildford should be reduced from 693 per annum to 481 because:

1. the vacancy rate figures should be taken from local government annual records rather than from the 2011 Census. This would reduce vacancy rates to 2.9% in Guildford.

2. there should be no increase for affordability above basic demographic change.

3. there should be no increase for Student housing and it was considered unrealistic that the University should be allowed to exert such substantial pressure on the domestic housing market.

4. the use of employment-led forecasts should be abandoned using purely household projections instead which are more reliable as a form of prediction. Two completely independent expert reports are surprisingly consistent in their findings. In broad terms a figure of approximately 500 homes per annum would appear to be a correct estimate of OAN for Guildford. However, this is before constraints are applied to arrive at an acceptable housing target. The SHMA is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards. It is unacceptable that demographic and economic model assumptions have been withheld by GBC and cannot be checked making the process unaccountable.

The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. Both the National Planning Policy Framework and National Planning Policy Guidance provide a clear policy direction that the overall housing target should be reduced by a variety of constraints to take account of protected wildlife areas (e.g. Thames Basin Heath SPA), landscape areas (Surrey Hills AONB), Green Belt, flood risk and significant infrastructure constraints, all of which apply to Guildford. This local plan and the SHMA number have completely ignored these factors. I have corrected this omission below. Infrastructure policies should be planned at the same time as Local Plans but in this case they have effectively been left out and are not sufficiently developed. The Framework also makes clear that, once established, Green Belt boundaries should only be altered in exceptional circumstances, through the preparation or review of the Local Plan. Unmet housing need (including for traveller sites) is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development on a site within the Green Belt.

THE NEED TO APPLY CONSTRAINTS

Ministerial guidance in relation to building on the Green Belt is clear:

1. “the single issue of unmet need - is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt and other harm to constitute the “very special circumstances” justifying inappropriate development in the Green Belt” - Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 7th February 2014.

2. “we were always very clear that we would maintain key protections for the countryside, and, in particular, for the Green Belt. The Framework makes it clear that a Green Belt boundary may be altered only in exceptional circumstances and reiterates the importance and permanence of the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Michael Pitt, Planning Inspectorate 3rd March 2014.

3. “Planning Guidance, updated in March 2014, also states that unmet housing need is unlikely to outweigh the harm to the Green Belt to constitute the very special circumstances justifying inappropriate development within the Green Belt” – Nick Boles to Sir Paul Beresford MP 18th June 2014 70% of the sites put forward in the Local Plan are in the Green Belt which flies in the face of current government planning policy. The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), National Planning Policy Guidance and case law make it clear that Green Belt is an absolute constraint on housing supply. Exceptional circumstances need to be shown to adjust boundaries. Other constraints under the NPPF include assessments of sustainability, strategic flood risk assessment, physical constraints on land use and infrastructure constraints (this can include road congestion, schools, drains, power supply and medical requirements). Constraints should be applied to the Objectively Assessed Housing Need (OAN). However this itself is overstated and should be reduced from 693 per annum to 500. In view of the comments above it would appear logical to apply CONSTRAINTS in line with government policy to a corrected OAN, of approximately 50% to account for the fact that 89% of the borough is in the permanent Green Belt and development is not supported by adequate major infrastructure. This reduction is in line with the constraints percentage of 50% applied by Woking Borough Council. This would result in a more acceptable and practically achievable HOUSING TARGET of 250 homes per annum which over a 20-year period would be 5,000 homes. All of these homes could be built in the existing urban brownfield areas of the borough and would in part satisfy the 20,000 objections made by residents to the 2014 draft plan and also relieve the additional problems of inadequate infrastructure. It would also mean that there is currently 8.5 years supply of housing (2131/250) which is made up of existing permissions granted (1,518) and completions made (613) during 2013/2015. (Monitoring Report by GBC 2015) The Brexit vote may have strengthened government policy further. Theresa May, the new prime minister, announced on 11 July that she is personally committed to protecting the Green Belt once she takes office. Whilst I have many significant objections to the GBC Local Plan I applaud the policy statement by GBC in their Monitoring Report, “We will continue to monitor the use of previously developed land, and continue to identify as many opportunities as possible for redevelopment of previously developed land.” I believe it will be to the benefit of all residents if GBC can apply themselves vigorously to thisendeavour in order to protect the Green Belt.

POLICY S2 – Borough Wide Strategy

We object to Policy S2 on a number of grounds:

1. The housing number of 13,860 new homes is excessive. The number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

2. The number is in any event based on an arbitrary and inappropriate Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. Rushmoor is excluded in spite of it being easily reached from Guildford town centre. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton, Haslemere, Reigate and Redhill and Basingstoke but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

3. These concerns have been raised repeatedly since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinize it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” as a Housing market Area reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

4. The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. We have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

5. The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

6. The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN were not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

7. It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

8. The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

9. This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. We believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

10. The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

11. The Plan is out of balance in proposing 36% of all new housing in the three wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon and Horsley. These are currently rural areas whose identities will be greatly and detrimentally changed by these proposals

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
I have just become aware of the proposals for extensive housing in and around Guildford. Whilst I appreciate that there is a shortage of low cost and social housing in this area, I feel that the number of houses proposed to be built is excessive. Such development would not only put too much strain on services but would also eat into the Green Belt land which would impact on quality of life of existing and new residents alike.

I understand that some high density ie high rise housing is proposed. The two existing residential blocks along the Portsmouth Road have been a blot on Guildford's landscape since they were built. There has been endless evidence to show such schemes have failed not only from a town planning viewpoint but more particularly from the position of those living there.

I urge the council to deal with these proposals by exercising balance so that some new housing can be provided without destroying the beauty and unique identity of Guildford. In this way those who come to live here can enjoy the benefit that those of us who have lived here for some time have enjoyed for so long.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and why were Councillors not allowed to scrutinise it? The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan's new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

DISPROPORTIONATE DEVELOPMENT - The Council are proposing thousands of houses in Send, Ripley and Wisley, areas that already suffer horrendous traffic issues as main feeder routes to the A3 and M25. The whole road network is under extreme pressure during rush hours and in the event of traffic accidents or roadworks gridlock is often the result.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable

5). I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2).

The proposal by Guildford Borough Council for 13,860 new houses without any constrants to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The proposals are for too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley, Ripley & Send). I understand 36°/o of all the Plans new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11°/o of the existing housing.

Ultimately all this new housing will merge Wisley, Ripley, Send, Clandon all together and they will cease to be villages and become one large urbanisation!

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)
a. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

b. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

c. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour, commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy.

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the 'West Surrey' tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, 'West Surrey' is much too small. Half of Guildford borough's residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside 'West Surrey'. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make 'West Surrey' reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's 'need'. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford's OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered 'sound'.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is 'deliverable' and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council's cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission.

Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important. The plan cannot be considered 'deliverable'. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected 'windfall' sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a 'plan' that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London's commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. Ibelieve the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Glandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick's Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Glandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Glandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Glandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Glandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages. This will also increase the amount of traffic heading to the M25, as these new developments will certainly attract commuters, and the there are already long tail backs on the A3 every morning onto the M25 disrupting local travellers and this will only get worse. The Council seem to have completely ignored these problems by promoting so many sites in such a short stretch of the A3.

I object to the exaggerated ambition for growth. This will ruin Guildford.

Related to the above, development should not be given a favourable assumption. Traffic frequently grinds to a halt as it is. Where are all these people and cars supposed to go? I object to the strategy.

The numbers in which the whole thing is based and the calculations based on them seem to be hidden away. I object to this. The supposed need for housing for a growth in population is too high. What about Brexit? House prices become inflated. I object that young families, people born in Guildford and people earning normal salaries are priced out. These people need homes before catering to more executive housing. I object to building on the green belt and in the countryside areas. There seems to be plenty of brownfield but it is in little "pockets" and so not as profitable for developers.

Where has quality of life been factored in? The frustration of all the time spent sitting in traffic-jams deters people from going out. That is a fact. I am an asthma sufferer and the traffic fumes in stationary traffic are really bad.

Where you have so many people having to live crowded in with parents and people who can only afford to rent one room, this is a bad quality of life. We seem to be going backwards. It is too much growth for the wrong reasons and intended to be put in the wrong places. I object to this.

Visitors will not want to come here if they can not move on the roads and it becomes like Croydon. People do not seem to want to use the shops we already have. We do not need more shops. I object to more space being planned for offices, shops, warehouses.

P.S. My car journeys are mainly to and from work, also in Guildford. It is too far to cycle and there is no bus.

Objections to Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan

We object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016).

These are our main reasons for objection:

1) WE OBJECT TO the local plan, as the development proposed is not sustainable. It will damage local communities by over development. The development should be in urban areas where there is sustainable transport infrastructure.

• Guildford is planning to build nearly 14000 houses (25%) many more than Woking, Waverley or surrounding boroughs. We feel that the number proposed is far too high. We feel that for Guildford expansion of 25% over the coming years is unrealistic, and we wonder what is driving this expansion.

• We note that 64% of the land to be used for this expansion is to come from the Green Belt and from agricultural land.

The proposed diminution of agricultural land raises similar issues. As I understand it, our country only produces 54% of its food, the rest being imported. There is nothing so important to a population than the security of its food supply, so that this is a political issue of the first importance.

We should make a political decision as to the sources of our food, and what part of it should be locally produced. That should be decided first, before there is any diminution in available agricultural land. It should not be decided upon as part of a building plan, driven by bureaucrats.

3) The areas designated in the plan for building purposes are areas of outstanding natural beauty, including ancient woodlands and heritage sites. Our country has already been more than sufficiently vandalised during the industrial revolution and afterwards. A halt must be called sometime, or else the entire country will be smothered in buildings. On those grounds alone we oppose this plan.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

3) Air quality would obviously be adversely affected by the massive increase in traffic which would follow the implementation of this plan. Air pollution is already over the legal limits at the A3 end of Compton.

4) Brownfield sites should clearly be used in priority to Green Belt land. In this context it is surprising that 30% of brownfield sites are devoted in the plan to retail as retail is now being diminished by the Internet. The council should think again.

I object to POLICY S2 –Borough Wide Strategy

- No justification given for 13,860 housing need figure. Figure based on a secret formula used by consultants and never seen by anyone on the Council or by the public. Council has failed to seek its disclosure.
- 13,860 figure confuses the OAN with a housing target. No definite housing target given, leaving too much scope for the Council to make one up. I can’t understand how we’re being consulted when we don’t know how many houses the Council want to build, taking all the constraints into account.
- Figures based on a Housing Market Area that ignores 2 neighbouring districts (Rushmoor and Mole Valley) and is much too small, since most people commute or travel far outside the Area to shop or study. This distorts the figures: no reason why Guildford needs to build nearly twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together, or half of all sites over 100 units.
- High numbers involved would transform the character of the borough from mainly rural/Green Belt to urban, creating a corridor of development out of London as per Woking or Croydon.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey Cow1ty Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

I write to object to the Current GBC local plan and the dramatic detrimental affect this will have on the rural community.

The Guildford planning Department have failed continually to listen to the local community to such a degree that we residents have to question their motives and integrity. As a Guildford resident for a long time I have seen all the changes some good some bad but the supposed number of house's being planned is too high, while I agree there is a case for more housing but not the numbers suggested. Traffic is at a standstill most days, hospital is not coping with the numbers now so more residents will not help. This is the second attempt to expand Guildford and not taken in to account residents point of view, all the objections still stand from the previous plan.

I have carefully considered the Proposed Submission Local Plan which Guildford Borough Council ("GBC") has now published for public consultation. My comments are set out in this letter.

I have strong concerns about the Proposed Submission Local Plan and the evidence and assumptions which support it. In particular, I do not agree with the scale of the house building programme which is being proposed by GBC. The target outlined represents a 25% increase in the housing stock of the borough, whilst we note that the Office of National Statistics ("ONS") projects a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

I also note that the Proposed Submission Local Plan includes the statement "We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt". I fully and support this policy. However, unfortunately GBC appears to be in breach of this same policy through the housing policies it has set out in the Proposed Submission Local Plan, whereby some 65% of developments will be made on land that is currently Green Belt.

I am also concerned that the infrastructure proposals are inadequate even to meet the needs of what is there at the moment, let alone the proposed developments in the Local Plan.

I therefore OBJECT to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

Detailed comments on the six different policy areas which form the basis of the Proposed Submission Local Plan are now set out below, followed by my comments on specific site allocation policies.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

This policy sets out the objective of adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, equating to an annual build of 693 new homes per annum.

I have serious concerns about the enormous scale of this building programme, which represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough, a remarkable rate of increase for a borough in the English Home Counties. It is even more remarkable when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics ("ONS") are projecting a population increase of some 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

I accordingly OBJECT to the borough housing targets set out in Policy S2.

I do not share the same vision for the future of Guildford Borough as GBC, although I recognise that an enormous volume of work has gone into the preparation of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, which is now out for public consultation.

However, after more than 20,000 responses were submitted in 2014 in connection with the previous draft Local Plan, most of them opposed to its proposals, GBC has made relatively few changes from the earlier version and none of any materiality.

At the heart of the problem is GBC’s desire to pursue a ‘Forced Growth’ policy which results in highly aggressive and unjustified targets being set for housing development in the Borough. These excessive targets - the proposed 25% increase in housing stock in particular - create a tremendous strain on both land and infrastructure in an already over-crowded and over-stretched part of the country.

These targets will also have a material adverse impact on the Metropolitan Green Belt across this area, despite all the political promises made to the contrary. The irony of Policy P2 which states that "We will continue to protect the Metropolitan Green Belt" does not fool anybody.

Accordingly I OBJECT to the Proposed Submission Local Plan.

7. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.
5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I write to object to Guildford Borough’s Draft Local Plan as detailed below. Please show my comments to the Planning Inspector who will decide about the Local Plan. Please also acknowledge receipt of this letter.

1. General Evidence and Policies

   • Housing Requirement: I OBJECT to the figure of 654 houses required each year between 2015 and 2034 as being too high. Guildford Borough Council will not publish details regarding how this figure was derived. It therefore remains impossible to support the sudden increase in housing numbers from previous annual figures of 322.

   • Inset Green Belt land: I OBJECT to the proposed inset of Send Business Park from the Green Belt (Green Belt Policy 2 at Paragraph 4.3.15) because

      This is acknowledged by river users as being part of one of the very few quiet stretches along the Wey Navigation. It must be protected from further development.

      The site contains an Area of High Archaeological Potential (AHAP – reference 2003 Guildford Local Plan) which requires significant protection to be continued.

      There are no special or exceptional circumstances identified which justify removal of the Green Belt status.

      Developments in the area will harm the open aspect of the area and views associated with the Wey.

      Access to the site is along very narrow roads which can neither safely support existing traffic nor the additional traffic to be expected both during site development and subsequent use.

   • Process: I OBJECT to the failure of Guildford Borough Council to allocate housing development proposals evenly among its constituent parts, instead focusing disproportionate development within Send Parish.

   • Process: I OBJECT to the failure of Guildford Borough Council to recognise and act on the large number of objections relating to proposals for Send and made during the 2016 consultation activity.

2. General Policies relating to Send Parish. Sites (A42, A43, A58)

   • Traffic levels and associated environmental issues: I OBJECT to the proposed significant developments in Send because these will increase both traffic movement levels throughout the Parish and the level of traffic related pollutants over wide areas in and surrounding the Parish.

   • Housing Numbers: I OBJECT to the scale of development within Send because the increased number of houses proposed (500 + 2 traveller pitches + 8 Traveller/Showman Pitches/Plots) will grow the number of houses in Send by 25%. This is incompatible with maintaining Send’s current rural nature and cannot be supported by existing infrastructure, including education and medical facilities.

The Local Plan marks a defining point for Guildford and its future. The University's involvement with this plan is three fold:

• As civic partner, the University benefits from and contributes to the health and prosperity of the town

• As a major employer the University and its staff are materially affected by the existing housing and infrastructure deficits

• As a land owner the University is planning to develop Blackwell Farm to support housing, infrastructure and employment

The University has submitted a formal and comprehensive response to the consultation through its planning advisors Terence O'Rourke. This letter seeks to reinforce the most material points of that submission. These are - the University is supportive of the Local Plan process and is generally supportive of the draft. A summary of the main comments is attached as an appendix to this letter.
The future development of the town and the University are closely linked and it is clear that their synergetic relationship can create even greater vitality and prosperity for the region. The University is committed to building on this relationship as the economy of the UK moves further towards the opportunities of science and innovation. For such an innovation-based future the Borough will require access to young talent, a sense of vibrancy that is attractive to young people, housing capacity, employment land for the technology, engineering and science sectors, and the infrastructure to help to support these aspects of economic development.

As Vice-Chancellor of the University of Surrey I should like to reiterate the importance of the Local Plan to the future of the Borough and the University and would urge the Council to adopt this plan after careful redrafting of Policy H1.

The relationship between the University of Surrey and Guildford Borough Council goes back to the early 1960s when the Borough supported its own development by attracting the University of Surrey to relocate to the town.

Today the University and the companies on its Research Park bring £1.7bn of gross added value to the UK each year and directly or indirectly support 17,312 UK jobs, 10,644 of them in Guildford. The University is ranked 4th in the country in the Guardian 2016 and 2017 League Tables and was awarded the University of the Year Status by The Times/The Sunday Times in 2016. The wholly-owned Surrey Sports Park attracts international teams and high-profile events and is appreciated by local residents who pay well in excess of 3/4 million visits to the park each year.

The University, the Research Park companies, the Royal Surrey County Hospital and Guildford Business Park are located in an area of roughly a square mile to the west of Guildford Town Centre. This square mile covers less than 1% of Guildford Borough but generates around 45% of the Gross Value Added of the Borough. The experience of the many staff working in the square mile and the University students is affected by housing and infrastructure deficits and the University's plans and this response reflect that context.

The underpinning need for the Local Plan is clear:

- Population growth in this area is rapid and this will continue
- The UK is already in housing crisis, with the younger and future generations particularly badly affected
- The housing crisis is particularly serious in the South East and in this Borough
- The economy must be allowed to grow to deal with the country's debt burden and population growth
- To enable economic and housing growth, infrastructure deficits must be tackled
- Guildford is an integral part of the dynamic fast growth area of London and the South It cannot distance itself from that growth and cannot avoid dealing with the consequences of it.

The University is, of course, acutely aware both of the social costs of growth, and of the infrastructural deficits that our town has to contend with. Investments by the University in student accommodation over the past ten years are approaching £130m (including £85m in new accommodation); a further sum of around £75m is due to be spent delivering 1,150 new units over the next three years and further accommodation will be built to support new demand as funds permit.

The University is also all too familiar with local infrastructural deficits and has itself had to contend with well-documented traffic and parking issues and restrictions. The University's own investment in transport infrastructure and on public transport subsidies has cost many millions over the past ten years, not least for the new Egerton Road Junction. It has always been known that this junction was just part of a more comprehensive solution which would need to include access to the West through a road across Blackwell Farm to the A31. That new road infrastructure would benefit the University, the Research Park, the Hospital and Guildford town itself, and the development of Blackwell Farm provides an excellent opportunity to deliver and fund those essential improvements.

In the Key Evidence document "Guildford Borough Economic Strategy 2013-2031” makes no case for locating large numbers of homes in West and East Horsley or neighbouring villages, therefore, why are changes been considered?

13,800 new homes over the Plan Period 2013 to 2033 is too high and unsustainable in Guildford's villages.

The current village size of East and West Horsley is not adequate to support an increase in homes. The development of 385 homes on the 4 proposed sites are at much higher densities than currently exist in the village settlement and w ill be totally out of character with the existing mix of different housing styles, historic buildings and layout of the village and, therefore, we feel this is inappropriate development within the Green Belt. The West Horsley Parish Council and Surrey Community Action Housing Survey: May 2014, identified a limited need for some 20 affordable homes for local people who want to remain in the village, ie for young people and for elderly people who wish to downsize to a smaller home.

POLICY S2 –Borough Wide Strategy

I OBJECT. I have 5 objections to the proposal to build 13,860 new homes:

1. The number is based on pre-Brexit projections for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

2. The number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half the people who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent districts of Rushmoor and Mole Valley, minutes from Guildford town, are outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere. Unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and is part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

3. These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council have failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so the housing numbers derived from it are unreliable. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county (none in Mole Valley, for instance). This highly lopsided distribution is unexplained.

4. The figure of 13,860 new homes is unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. The Council say we should trust the contractors’ model because it is used by a large number of other local authorities. Wide usage, however, does not confer objectivity. Guildford’s OAN would fail the basic transparency test even if the methodology used were a universally admired ‘gold standard’. But it is not: it belongs to consultants whose website openly proclaim their pro-development agenda, provoking reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. External experts and members of the public have provided detailed critiques of the model. Its most fatal flaw, however, is that it has not been disclosed – not even to the authors of the plan, who have taken it on trust. This is irrational and unsound.

5. The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The plan fails to set a Housing Target of new homes to be built, or explain how this relates to the “Objectively Assessed Number” (OAN) for housing need. Elsewhere, the Council have said that the two are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted, but in the same breath say that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. Despite the NPPF, the plan fails to address these constraints. In any case, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860.
So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a Housing Target that takes normal constraints and adjustments credibly into account, and which leaves the Council to set one at any level without further consultation. Even if the OAN were not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is irrational to embark on a radical transformation of the borough without a clear Housing Target. Most of Guildford borough is theoretically protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the existing number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

1. I OBJECT to the disproportionate amount of development in one area of the borough (Policy S2). The strategic sites of A43 Garlick's Arch, site A25 Gosden Hill and site A35 Wisley Airfield are all within a 5 mile distance and represent over 35% of all housing allocated in the borough, essentially creating coalescence of all local villages. The individual identities of each village will be lost. We are NOT urban villages but are rural villages with thriving engaged local communities, each with their own individual character and historical identity. I also believe that Ripley has already grown significantly over the past 5 years, with an approximate 8% increase in housing. However, all these have been small developments of generally less than 10 units and as such, have been able to successfully merge and be absorbed into the existing community. This will not be the case with the huge numbers of homes proposed on the 3 strategic sites mentioned.

1. I OBJECT to the disproportionate amount of development in one area of the borough (Policy S2). The strategic sites of A43 Garlick's Arch, site A25 Gosden Hill and site A35 Wisley Airfield are all within a 5 mile distance and represent over 35% of all housing allocated in the borough, essentially creating coalescence of all local villages. The individual identities of each village will be lost. We are NOT urban villages but are rural villages with thriving engaged local communities, each with their own individual character and historical identity. I also believe that Ripley has already grown significantly over the past 5 years, with an approximate 8% increase in housing. However, all these have been small developments of generally less than 10 units and as such, have been able to successfully merge and be absorbed into the existing community. This will not be the case with the huge numbers of homes proposed on the 3 strategic sites mentioned.

1. I OBJECT to the way in which this consultation process has been processed by GBC. Many residents remain unaware that such significant proposals are afoot, which will have a 15 year affect on people's lives. If you are not a regular reader of the Surrey Advertiser, you would probably not know anything about the Local Plan. Indeed, the majority of information provided to residents of the borough has been provided by either parish councils or concerned local residents groups such as Wisley Action Group, Save Send Action Group, Ripley Action Group, CPRE and other bodies. This is not acceptable in a democratic society, particularly in view of the fact that the Conservative borough councillors had an election promise to protect the Greenbelt which they fundamentally appear to be totally disregarding. In essence, residents are trusting GBC to uphold their election promises, without being given the information regarding the revised Local Plan. I do not accept that local plan documents held in a small handful of local libraries constitutes appropriate consultation. I have attended many local meetings in Clandon, Send, Merrow and Ripley (all of which have been organised by local bodies, NOT GBC) held to discuss the proposals in the 2016 Local Plan. I can honestly say that there is whole hearted disapproval from every aspect of each community.

I request confirmation that this protest has been received, registered and read by the planning inspector. I would also like a reply to my two questions. I have sent my objections to Sir Paul Beresford MP.

I object to the fact that GBC has made considerable changes to their April 2016 proposals without full consultation.

Questions:
1) As there is a freedom of information act I request that the minutes of the planning meeting is published in the Surrey Advertiser. I also request that the planning officers and councillors publish the way they have voted. The electorate have a right to know which of their councillors do not care about the lives of the people in their borough.

Will this be done? If not why not?

2) When the village of Shalford was disrupted by the improvements to the A3 compensation was paid to the residents. How much has been put aside for the compensation to the residents of Send Marsh and Burnt Common who will have their quality of life reduced by the increase in noise and pollution?

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners ‘ views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the bourough. Indeed, over 23% of the plan's new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 0.3% of the population of GBC).

SCALE OF DEVELOPMENT

The Local Plan housing numbers are too high. Combining East and West Horsley together with the new town at the former Wisley Airfield and those at Ripley would completely urbanise the area between the A3 and the A246. In addition, the Local Plan seems to have made no allowance for the infrastructure required to support this massive development.

At present our drains and water supply are challenged at various times during the year, further development would cause failures within both systems. The volume of traffic using the local roads has increased substantially in the past decade, further urbanisation and its consequent increase in vehicle movements on the local roads, A3 and M25 intersections would create further congestion and a substantial increase in air pollution levels to an already highly polluted area.

The nearest station, Horsley, which most commuters would drive to as there is little other public transport, would be unable to cope with the increase in commuters at peak times. Even now it is now difficult on occasions to find parking at either Horsley or Effingham stations.
The existing local medical facilities will be unable to cope with the proposed increase in population. The Royal Surrey Hospital would not have the capacity to cope with the increase in patient numbers created by the proposed Local Plan development.

AVAILABLE DEVELOPMENT SITES

The Local Plan does not take into account the existing sites still undeveloped within Surrey. There are Brownfield sites available, which have not been developed and would provide enough land to meet the need for affordable local housing. Many commercial sites are unused and should be developed before any planned use of Green Belt land.

I ask Guildford Borough Council to reject the existing plan and review use of Brownfield sites and existing permissions for development rather than the development of precious Green Field sites, which have been nationally recognised as protecting the quality of both our urban and natural environment.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

1. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

2. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

3. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any commonsense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

I OBJECT to one specific aspect of the consultation process which is fatally flawed. The Summer 2016 edition of "About Guildford" (published by the Council) on page 5 states that "... the Plan rejects any schemes that would have a detrimental impact on the green belt." This is demonstrably untrue and I believe it is deliberate untruth which compromises the consultation process. Even the council's position in the draft Plan is that exceptional circumstances exist so as to justify taking areas out of the Green Belt - which by definition has a detrimental impact on the Green Belt. This unqualified statement cannot be justified and is simply untrue. By giving this unqualified assurance to residents that there is no detriment to the Green Belt residents may have been reassured and dissuaded from responding to the consultation.

I would ask that this untruth be corrected and the consultation period restarted after the correction has been given the same distribution as the original statement. (We assume the document was delivered to most houses in the Borough.) I have no doubt that that people will argue before the inspector that the consultation process was flawed and ineffective because of this.

O But the big and unanswered question is who is expected to benefit from this plan? Surely not the suffering ratepayers already living in the village. Nor hardly the unsuspecting newcomers who will have to pay scandalous inflated prices for whatever dwellings eventually emerge (a development in West Horsley’s Weston Lee of “affordable” tiny semidetached bungalows originally for the elderly currently change hands at little short of half a million) I suspect that the only people rubbing their hands with glee will be greedy developers, joyful estate agents and of course the Council planners if they are able to report to Government Ministers that “we have met our new build housing targets – and Oh by the way in the process- despite tremendous opposition- we have been able to completely destroy yet another historic heritage village.”

For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I write to object to the new Local Plan that was published for consultation by Guildford Borough Council on 6 June 2016.

The Plan proposes a large number of houses for six development sites in East and West Horsley. I find no justification for this scale of development, which far exceeds local need.

2. The development of up to 385 homes on the 4 proposed sites in West Horsley (Policy A37, A38, A40, & A41) are at much higher densities than exist in the village settlement and would be totally out of character with the existing mix of different housing styles and layout of the village. The proposed increase of up to 385 homes represents an increase of 35% of the current number of homes which is excessive in the light of the infrastructure capability – see point 4 below.

1. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

a. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

b. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common-sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small.

c. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.
These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. West Horsley is being considered as two separate plots and therefore the allocation of housing is increased due to this. I feel baffled as to why West Horsley is split into North and South since it has only one small section of shops near Bell and Colville. The village should be considered as one entity. When viewed as such, it is clear that the proposed density of housing is an extraordinarily high percentage, once again far outstripping identified need, none of which warrants building on green belt land, or reclassifying green belt land because there are no exceptional circumstances.

2) The roads in our area are VERY poor. The conduct of the authorities in maintaining them is also poor. They are largely narrow lanes but with the increased traffic it can only make the situation worse for health and safety reasons.

The roads around East Horsley from 7am onwards are VERY busy. It can take up to 20 minutes on occasions just to cross the Effingham crossroads on the A246. Any additional housing of the scale you are proposing could lead to gridlock and again safety and pollution concerns in a wider area leading to the increased need for additional policing. Has this been included in your planning?

5) Local transport is very poor meaning ever increasing car journeys on ever more dangerous roads. There is virtually no existing infrastructure to accommodate these developments or very low levels of local employment which leads to increased traffic and environmental damage. The junction currently close to the Ockham Bites café onto the A3 is HIGHLY DANGEROUS. The traffic flow here is very fast and dense making it extremely difficult to join the road.

1. I OBJECT to Policy S2: since surely Brexit invalidates the demographic data. Also there is no definite housing target given, which leaves the policy too open to future reinterpretation. The overarching impact of the plan being put in place would be to create an urban corridor connecting to the London suburbs, which would be devastating to the feel of local communities. Surely the policies cannot be seen in isolation since the effect of one on another is so significant.

I write in respect of the above and in defence of the Green Belt, a policy which has served us well over the past 50 or so years. Preserving the green lung around our metropolitan areas and the character and equilibrium of the villages in which we live.

Whilst I appreciate the need for more housing, I would direct you towards the many brown field site which exist where development opportunities are available without encroaching into large areas within the confines of our villages which are currently green and unspoilt creating the ambience in which we choose to make our homes.
In particular I would like to draw your attentions to the designated areas within the parishes of east and west Horsley, development of which would overwhelm the two places we all so enjoy and which would bring an unbelievable burden upon the services and residences existing at the present time.

In the event of development being permitted I foresee two outcomes, the pressure from existing services and infrastructure will bring with it the lead for further urbanisation and that land sold for redevelopment will be for the profit of the buyers who will erect five bedroom three bathroom houses rather than the smaller dwelling for which there is an undeniable need.

I feel that the array of notice boards which are being erected in the Horsley’s Dondens and Ripley more than endorse the view that changes to the status quo are unwelcome.

I urge you to resist the pressures from central Government and preserve the integrity of the Green Belt for the benefit of future generations.

I object to the most recent draft Local Plan most strongly. I accept that people must have houses to live in and work opportunities, but the first version of the Plan which I saw included development of housing and infrastructure implications which were disproportionate to the size of our village. After two years of discussion and consultation, I welcomed the revised Plan which followed because it had significantly reduced these pressures, and seemed a much fairer distribution of the necessary development.

I was dismayed when I read that, at the 'eleventh hour', a further draft had been published which not only undoes the good that had been achieved with the earlier revision, but imposes an even greater burden on this area. My first objection is to the way in which this revision was slipped in so late in the day. Frankly, this smacks of sharp practice and raises questions about the integrity of the Council.

Objection to the Guildford 2016 Local Plan

East Clandon Parish Council objects to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as a whole and in particular we object to the specific issues (listed below). We believe that this deeply flawed Local Plan will have a direct and detrimental effect on the amenity currently enjoyed by residents of East Clandon and to the even greater detriment to our neighbouring villages of West Clandon, Ripley, West and East Horsley. It erodes the openness of the Green Belt and endangers the beauty and views in and out of the Surrey Hills AONB.
Our specific points are:

1. We object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 13,800 new homes (690 new dwellings being built every year for 20 years) and we object on two grounds; these housing numbers have been imposed on us with no real consultation being undertaken with the residents of East Clandon and the borough as a whole. Secondly, the housing numbers are based on a high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no consultation with us and this combined with estimated demand from London residents will turn Guildford into a dormitory town for London.

Further, we object to the fact that no real economic or housing demand factors have been provided by the borough planners to substantiate the very high housing target of 13,800 new dwellings over the next 20 years. This is in direct contravention of the NPPF’s requirement for the planning authority to provide meaningful consultation.

<td>• The proposed extent of the development to the east of Guildford, including Gosden Hill Farm, Burnt Common, Wisley and East/West Horsley will create an additional 5,000 homes within the area of a few square miles. An increase in population of 10,000–15,000 people would likely result. This calls into serious doubt the basis of the housing plan. Guildford Borough population increased by 7,500 (5.8%) between 2001 and 2011. To propose houses which can accommodate up to 15,000 people suggests an expected increase just from these few developments, and without taking into account other Borough developments, of over 10%. This increase cannot be sustainable or desirable in the context of an existing population for the whole of Guildford Borough of 137,000 (at the time of the last census).</td>

<td>Overall, we regard the extent of proposed development to the east of Guildford, and specifically in and around the Horsleys, to be out of all proportion to the existing housing stock. I object to the number of additional homes being set at 13,860 (or 693 homes per year). (Policy S2) I consider this to be too high for the growth we actually need in the Guildford area. It is unacceptable for the Council not to disclose how the SHMA is arrived at and given the fundamental importance of this figure to many aspects of the Plan, it is totally inappropriate to hide behind the comment that this is proprietary information.

GBC plan for building a certain number of dwellings within the borough is now obsolete. The way the proposed number were calculates, I understand, are not overt so we can all understand the logic for the decisions. The need to build in such numbers was calculated in the situation we were in before 23rd June 2016. The situation has changed and we are now leaving the EU so the need to fulfil their requirements is now null and void. We will have a new Prime minister in position from Wednesday 13th July 2016.

I am writing to strongly object to Guildford Council's planning proposals to build up to 14,000 new homes under the revised draft local plan. Form the literature I have received I note with serious concern that the proposal is for large 'strategic sites' at Garlick's Arch (Burnt Common), Wisley and Gosden Hill.

It seems that you are aiming to remove our local villages from the green belt and this will allow unlimited future development and the destruction on our rural villages.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Re: Comments on Proposed Submission Local Plan

I OBJECT to the propose submission local plan on the following issues

- The increase in house stock by 25% is not supported by the estimates of increased population (+15%)
- Many of the proposed developments are on existing Green Belt land
- The proposed infrastructure is insufficient to support the proposed developments

POLICY S2: Borough Wide Strategy.

By adding 13,860 new homes to Guildford Borough Council (GBC) over the 2013-2033 period of the Proposed Submission Local Plan, this represents a net increase of 25% in the housing stock of Guildford Borough and is not justified when the official statisticians at the Office of National Statistics (ONS) are projecting a population increase of about 15% for Guildford Borough over this same period.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.
The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The purpose of the planning system is to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development, as stated by National Planning Policy. The development of 13,860 homes during the Plan period is not sustainable. It will have a permanently detrimental impact over existing local communities by over development, particularly for the villages between Guildford and the M25, including Ripley, Send and Glandon. The infrastructure/services in these villages will be unable to cope with the level of development proposed and do not meet the needs of the local communities.

The sites of Wisley Airfield, Garlick's Arch, Send Hill and Tannery Lane are in unsustainable locations. They do not benefit from railway stations that are within easy walking distance and bus services across rural villages are forever reducing. Residents will have few options but to be reliant on motor vehicles.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?

Greater consideration should be given to increasing the density of development in urban areas, such as "brownfield" sites in Guildford, where more practical sustainable transport options are available.

I object very strongly to Guildford Borough Council’s Draft Local Plan June 2016.

I believe it is inherently unsound and unsustainable due to lack of detail on basic infrastructure.

Transport: There is no detail on road networks. The current traffic flow problems in Guildford and surrounding areas are frequent and well documented. Until these are addressed in a sustainable manner it would be completely unsuitable to contemplate any large developments in the area. In particular a solution to the congestion on the A3 needs to be addressed ideally by building a tunnel which potentially could be bored in under a year (at 37 mtrs a day). A lesser alternative would be using 2 x 4 way intersections at Potters Lane, North of Guildford and at the Stoke Road/Ladymead junction. No new roads have been specifically identified in the Plan. It would be completely irresponsible and a waste of money to contemplate building even one house without having access, power & drainage to it assured. Some of the land identified for housing may be key to the development of essential infrastructure so the basics need planning first. Land may be required for a major road intersection etc. The possibility of an unsound decision in building an off slip at Garlick Arch may mean that in the future a 4 way interchange at Potters Lane is unfeasible. This off slip would also make no benefit in relieving the congestion through Burpham. I believe road network decisions, including the A3 will be decided by Highways England in 2020. Without decisions on this vital arterial road, further development within its proximity is unsound and unsustainable.

London Road through Burpham is planned to be a sustainable movement corridor but is likely to be congested by thousands more vehicles trying to negotiate to the South of town. I wonder if this road has ever been visited by the authors of the Draft Plan during a rush hour or when the A3 has one of its frequent hold ups. From the start of the south bound A3 slip road the traffic can often be queueing from around 4pm. Traffic moves at barely walking pace in both directions to and from Guildford town centre. The roundabout along London Road where it intersects with New Inn Lane and Burpham Lane is a particular bottleneck even at weekends. When there is a problem on the A3, Guildford and its surrounding villages often come to a virtual standstill.

I would conclude by saying that were the recommendations to be implemented, if only in a partial sense, it would mark the end of village life as such in a cultural sense and environmental quality. Another words our quality of life would suffer and no government of whatever colour has the mandate to unilaterally impose that on sections of the population. I suggest further consideration of brown field sites or of the Wisley Aerodrome area - this is a large area of underused land that could be better utilised.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Loca l Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

POLICY S2 –Borough Wide Strategy

GROUNDs FOR OBJECTION. 13860 homes are proposed. This number has not been scrutinised by councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden. It is not reasonable to produce unsubstantiated numbers in order to justify major structural change in a widely protected area (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB, approx. 75% protected by SPA).

It is inappropriate to allocate this housing number, either over the plan period OR across projected sites, when the number itself is unsubstantiated. External consultants and members of the public have provided detailed criticisms of the model.
IF the housing number were substantially lower, and only met housing need, there would be no need to build on Green Belt or open countryside.

The number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permission, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds 13860. Guildford residents would not accept building homes on open countryside to meet Woking’s designated “need” but this seems to be implied.

What changes (2016)/further amendments (2017) do you suggest should be made to the document?
I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri- borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data.

There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it.

The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN isn’t flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.
The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

5). I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2).

The proposal by Guildford Borough Council for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The proposals are for too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley, Ripley & Send). I understand 36% of all the Plans new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

Ultimately all this new housing will merge Wisley, Ripley, Send, Glandon all together and they will cease to be villages and become one large urbanisation!

I wish to object to the Guildford Plan Planning Policy (Local Plan Consultation) The huge number of homes proposed takes insufficient account of major transport and infrastructure problems.

How did GBC calculated these figures which conflict with those published by Guildford residence Association? Transparency is essential. Conflicting evidence gathered prior to Brexit (which should also be factored in) shows the figure for new home should be 510 per year from 2013 to 2033.

There are two areas in particular that I would like to focus on:

The is no justification for the large number of homes proposed and the numbers are in conflict with those published by Guildford Residents Association. Guildford Borough Council needs to be open and explain its calculations used to produce figures.

They also take insufficient account of major transport and infrastructure problems.

Two particular areas of concern for me are:

I object because GBC have exaggerated the need for the 13,860 house currently in the local plan. A population increase of 20,000 in the plan period would require just 8,000 homes based on 2.5 soles per habitat.

The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt.
in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

 I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

There is too much development in Wisley (A35) Ripley/Send (A43) and Clandon (A25). The plan is unbalanced with over 5,000 houses proposed between M25 and Burpham, which will merge all the villages and their identities. This is unfair and unreasonable.

7. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

I object to GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure. This differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey, all of whom are utilising the constraints available to significantly reduce their housing per annum figure. Guildford Borough consists of 89% of Greenbelt land and as such, is entitled to apply significant reduction to its housing allocation. The annual figure of 693 homes is unsustainable without significant and detrimental affect on the current residents of the borough.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area within a 4 mile radius and creating a ribbon effect of 5000 homes in new developments along a short stretch of the A3 from J10 M25 to Burpham. I object to the urbanisation and coalescence of this area of the borough.

I also object to the enormous cost of both the 2014 Local Plan and the additional expenditure required to draft this 2016 revised version. Certainly the 2016 revised version is no better than the original and in some cases, is significantly worse for many residents. In addition, many residents have spent significant sums of money in establishing various action groups within their local communities, mainly to alert their fellow neighbours and residents about the enormous changes that will go ahead unchecked if we do not collectively oppose the local plan. How can this possibly be a democratic process when GBC have fundamentally failed in their duty to fully consult the residents of the borough?

I object to the GBC aspirations to grow Guildford into a substantially more urban sprawl environment with no regard for the beautiful landscape and historical environment so cherished by people far and wide.

I wish these objections to be fully taken into consideration and that the Plan is amended accordingly as it is not representative of how the majority of residents in the Borough wish to see their community develop over the next 15 years.

I also object to the fact that 70% of the proposed 13,860 houses are targeted at the Green Belt strung along the A3 which will have a massive impact on the open amenity of the borough and produce gridlock on the A3 and surrounding roads including the A247 which as I have already mentioned is already well above full capacity. The A3 is already massively gridlocked both northbound onto the M25 and southbound as is passes Guildford!

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.
I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners’ views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 homes being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or London's commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of elsewhere. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinised by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN are not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.
This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brownfield sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighbouring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 homes being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. I OBJECT to one specific aspect of the consultation process which is fatally flawed. The Summer 2016 edition of "About Guildford" (published by the Council) on page 5 states that "... the Plan rejects any schemes that would have a detrimental impact on the green belt." This is demonstrably untrue and I believe it is deliberate untruth which compromises the consultation process. Even the council's position in the draft Plan is that exceptional circumstances exist so as to justify taking areas out of the Green Belt - which by definition has a detrimental impact on the Green Belt. This unqualified statement cannot be justified and is simply untrue. By giving this unqualified assurance to residents that there is no detriment to the Green Belt residents may have been reassured and dissuaded from responding to the consultation.

I would ask that this untruth be corrected and the consultation period restarted after the correction has been given the same distribution as the original statement. (We assume the document was delivered to most houses in the Borough.) I have no doubt that that people will argue before the inspector that the consultation process was flawed and ineffective because of this.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners’ views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there's too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Glandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan's new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

Finally, I object to the overall GBC strategy (Policy S2) of building 13,860 homes without any constraints. This differs from all other Borough Councils in Surrey. There is also a clear imbalance in where is being developed. 36% of the development is in the Wisley/Send/Ripley/Clandon area which currently has 11% of the housing. Cynically, I wonder where the people who have decided this live – I’m sure they don’t live in any of the areas most impacted.

Please ensure my objections are taken into consideration and as such the proposals are amended accordingly. Please confirm receipt of this email.

I object very strongly to Guildford Borough Council’s Draft Local Plan June 2016 which I consider to be unsound and untenable in its present form.

Constraints should be implemented on development to protect the rural nature of the existing villages as individual villages in their own right and the country lane infrastructure that supports those villages. If not then these proposals will result in a suburban sprawl on the north side of Guildford and the identity of the area and the green belt and rural character will be lost as urbanisation encroaches on this land.

1. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market. These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN Ire not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

I object. In the most vehement terms imaginable to the completely unacceptable Draft Local Guildford Plan.

The number of new houses proposed is totally unrealistic for the small country lanes concerned to be able to absorb let alone the appalling amount of additional traffic noise that would be generated.

Why has the number of houses to be built per year been so excessively raised? There is, apparently no reason for this increase so one is forced to conclude that the wishes of the developer for large profit has been put ahead of any thought of social need.

The distribution of houses in the Borough is cockeyed. The North-East has taken an unsustainable number where the lanes are narrow and the volume of traffic at present using through routes causes awful gridlock during rush hours.

The Way the Plan has been drawn up is flawed. Guildford Borough Council's planning consultants have not taken account of Surrey County Council's highway planners views or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure \textit{which} is, anyway, outside their financial capability.

Additionally, no regard has been given to village Neighborhood plans which should have been taken into consideration.

I further object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has given no attention to the number of schools required or any thought about the medical or hospital facilities needed.

The Proposed Submission Local Plan (July 2016) (Regulation 19 consultation) sets out that the council will make provision for 13,860 additional new homes (Policy S2) over the plan period (2013-2033). This equates to an annual figure of 693 dwellings per annum. This is made up of 517 homes, with an uplift of 25 homes for student growth, 120 homes for economic growth and 31 homes to address market signals and affordability (total 693).

This figure of 693 dwellings per annum is taken from the West Surrey Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) - Guildford Summary Report (October 2015) prepared by GL Heam (Section 4 - Objectively Assessed Need).

The 2015 SHMA applies household foundation rates from the 2012-based household projections to the 2012-based ONS Sub-National Population Projections to provide the starting point for considering housing need. This approach is fundamentally unsound because further projections have since been published.

Since the publication of the mid-2012 population projections in 2013, mid-year population projections have been published for mid-2015, mid-2014 and mid-2013. As a minimum, the mid-2014 projections should have been used as the basis for the 2015 SHMA which was prepared in 2015 and published in October 2015, well after the mid-2014 projections were published.

Between both 2013-2014, and 2014-2015, the population of the UK increased by approximately 0.8% overall, year on year. In both time periods, the population growth In the year to mid-2014 and mid-2015 was greatest In southern and eastern England. It can therefore be expected that this will have a significant effect on the household projection rates which would be applied in the SHMA relating to Guildford and the surrounding Housing Market Area.

Overall, the Plan does appear to have been positively prepared. However the OAN will need to revisited before the Plan Is submitted for Examination. The Plan should also build in a contingency for an early review should any of the strategic allocations under deliver or should the neighbouring Local Authorities' Local Plans be delayed or if they are unable to meet their OAN.

We anticipate that, if this analysis were undertaken, the objectively assessed housing need for the Borough Is likely to increase.

My first comment is that the draft Local Plan is not accessible to the majority of residents. As far as I am aware there is no printed book and the files on your website are far too big and numerous to be digested by most members of the general public. Summaries of the Plan should have been produced. If such a document exists please would you send me a copy or advise where I can obtain one.

Having done the best to review the revised draft Plan I think that the scale of development is too great. Too much countryside, which helps to define Guildford as a great place to live, will be sacrificed to housing. It is Green Belt for a reason!

Worse still is the fact that the housing will be bought by people working in London and elsewhere, will not address local needs and will mean that the A3 and trains into London will be ever more congested by people travelling from Guildford to their places of work.

Constraints must be placed on the number of houses built and the land taken up. Proper consideration must be given as to how all the additional people and cars are to move around the Town and Borough. The Town is totally congested and its streets dangerous. Accidents are all too frequent on the Stag Hill section of the A3 while there have been fatal accidents in Bridge Street, North Street and a very serious and unpleasant accident in Lower North Street by the Friary involving 2 small children and their grandparents.

The draft Local Plan must be amended to take account of these concerns.

I object to the 2016 draft Local Plan on a number of grounds, some of which are as follows:-

1. There is no evidence backing the alleged need for new housing on this scale
   1. Where is the provision of new schools and Doctors Surgeries to support this?
   2. I object that proper notice has not been given in respect of some new sites.
   3. I object to the limited consultation period
   4. I object to any erosion of the Green Belt
   5. I object to site A43 Garlicks Arch, which will increase the already chaotic traffic conditions on the Portsmouth Road
   6. I object to site A43a at Clandon, which will only increase traffic conditions
   7. I object to the over development at site A45
   8. I object to the unlawful site A57
   9. I object to the disproportionate amount of development proposed for the Ripley area
   10. I strongly object to any erosion of the Green Belt
12. Road traffic and parking in Ripley is already chaotic, making these proposals unsustainable.

- The plan calls for Ockham, a hamlet of 159 residences to be subsumed into development, on presently open land, with 2,000 dwellings and other urban-style buildings up to five storeys high and a population density higher than most London boroughs.
- Hatchford, south of the M25, has some 60 residences off narrow Ockham Lane that would be greatly affected by the proximity of development.

- Object to the potential harmful impact on transport, local roads and road safety by the suggested development. The result of an additional 2,000 homes would be an estimated 4,000 additional cars together with other vehicles, including HGVs, to service the development.
- The increased traffic would cause congestion and danger on the narrow rural roads in Ockham, Hatchford, Downside and Cobham. Cobham is the closest shopping centre to the proposed development. The village could... not cope with the additional traffic and car parking involved in serving some 5,000 additional occupiers at the site and would experience a significant increase in stationary/idling traffic at peak times and at junctions.

- Due to the absence of cycling paths and the lack of footpaths (and the space to provide them) the assertion that the development would result in a meaningful shift to cycling and walking is unbelievable. The increased traffic would add danger to cyclists and pedestrians (including those increasingly using local roads for recreational purposes).
- There would be an increase in the already severe congestion on the Strategic Road Network of the A3 and M25 and the junction of those as well as local roads. The current planning application by RHS Wisley would already have significantly added to visitor traffic. Any proposed secondary schooling would add additional congestion.
- The lack of suitable public transport. The local rail stations of Effingham and Horsley could not cope with the proposed increase in passenger traffic and car parking is already at capacity. In the refused planning application there had been a suggestion that Cobham & Stoke D’Abernon Station could be used. That or use of stations further north at Weybridge or Walton would increase congestion and pollution on local roads in Elmbridge.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.
I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey Cow1ty Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently out side their financial capability.

of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a plan that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.
This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

There is a need for regeneration in some areas and some expansion in social housing especially in urban areas. But this is ignored and instead the plan concentrates on building homes on green field sites, which does not meet the needs for housing within the town, which has a disproportionate effect on road traffic.

Therefore I object most strongly as the overall plan is flawed and will lead to the devastation of our villages and our way of life forever.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

I object to the methodology of drawing up the plan. Guildford Borough employs consultants who allegedly have planning expertise but have done so without taking account of Surrey County Council highway planners' views, or the costs involved in improving the infrastructure, currently outside their financial capability.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I object to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as it has had no regard to schools required, additional medical or hospital facilities which would make a plan sustainable.

Fifthly I object to the specific plan relating to my village, West Horsley. It seems utterly incredible that GBC could propose such a plan for a village which is probably the most rural village after East Clandon. Not only is the proposed increase of 385 houses over four sites unbelievable but it is also an increase of 35% which is more than any other location. Whilst I understand that any Neighbourhood Plan has to fit into the Borough Local Plan, a recent survey of the whole village showed that residents felt that only 40 houses were needed [or could be coped with sustainably- no shop, no Post Office, difficult parking in East Horsley, railway station parking at capacity and limited Bus Service] in the same period. Even allowing for the GBC needs, this shows just how distorted the numbers are in Local Plan.

2. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. Whilst at present there three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only 5 miles. It will in effect create a sprawl, with the merging of 'identities' of the surrounding villages, with no delineation between one village and the next.

The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. This development will have a permanent and detrimental impact on each of these communities, should this Plan be approved.

I object most strongly to the proposed development at Garlick Arch, Wisley Airfield, Gosden Hill and Clandon Golf course. These large developments will have a profound effect on the Cladons and surrounding villages and countryside. The traffic situation locally is impossible already and will become much greater if any of this proposed development goes ahead. The Cladons and other small villages will just merger and become a suburb of Guildford.

I am writing to object to the proposal made in the current Proposed Local Plan to build hundreds of new houses in the green belt village of West Horsley.

Agreed, there is a need to create more small, affordable homes in the borough, however proposing an increase of some 50% in the number of properties in this small rural village seems, if I may say so, to border on madness! Surely a far better solution (or rather multiple smaller-scale solutions) could be sought on brown field sites or in the conversion of abandoned commercial properties.

I am alarmed by what I have read about the plan for the prospective development of Guildford. The scale is surprising and the failure of GBC to apply any constraints to housing numbers (like other councils) is hard to understand. The prospective worsening of traffic problems in the town (where the new Waitrose has already made the traffic in York Road slower and more congested) is particularly worrying.

It is hard to understand why our council has opted for change on a scale which appears to be directly to the disadvantage of existing residents. This whole plan needs to be looked at again. We need a sensitive and measured approach to Guildford’s future development, not over-ambitious gigantism.

I would suggest the Local Plan is not sustainable

The Local Plan is driven by greed. the Borough Council wanting to develop more businesses to obtain more money.

Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make "West Surrey" reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guildford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour's "need". Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey's 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford's OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered "sound".

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is "deliverable" and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council's cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered "deliverable". In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected "windfall" sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a "plan" that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live... elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London's commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick's Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick's Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

Guildford has been a desirable place to live and residents are entitled to want to keep it that way. Organic growth is natural and expected, but an increase of about a third in the population in a short time will almost certainly have a strong negative impact on the character of Guildford. Please think again.

I object that we are given an exaggerated “housing need” figure of 13,860 and that 70% is targeted at the Green Belt – the housing need figure has been wrongly calculated and wrongly apportioned to our area and, also, the housing need for students wrongly assessed – we must not use our Green Belt, but use our urban land better, finding better ways to provide affordable housing and for additional student accommodation we should concentrated on existing areas of the University of Surrey’s campuses where there is much unused land and large areas of surface parking.

I object to the housing numbers that are proposed in our locality (including the 2,000 houses at Wisley Airfield, 2,000 houses at Gosden Hill and 1,850 houses at Blackwell Farm) - they are not only far too large for an area that does not have sufficient infrastructure but they will totally destroy the Green belt and large areas of agricultural land. These enormous areas of development will completely change the nature of the environment over a huge area.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey. The Plan is unbalanced across the borough; there’s too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]). 36% of all the Plan’s new housing is proposed in this area, which has only 11% of the existing housing.

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will obviously lead to a merging urbanisation of identities the villages.

I OBJECT in the strongest possible terms to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016). This Plan is unsustainable, unworkable and, in many provisions, unnecessary. There is a lack of transparency in the underlying assessment of needs which is completely unacceptable. The effects on traffic would be woeful and a suitable solution is not apparent in the plan.

I set out below my objection to specific policies and matters within the Plan.

Objection to the Guildford 2016 Local Plan

East Clandon Parish Council objects to the 2016 Draft Local Plan as a whole and in particular we object to the specific issues (listed below). We believe that this deeply flawed Local Plan will have a direct and detrimental effect on the amenity currently enjoyed by residents of East Clandon and to the even greater detriment to our neighbouring villages of West Clandon, Ripley, West and East Horsley. It erodes the openness of the Green Belt and endangers the beauty and views in and out of the Surrey Hills AONB.

Our specific points are:

1. We object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 13,800 new homes (690 new dwellings being built every year for 20 years) and we object on two grounds; these housing numbers have been imposed on us with no real consultation being undertaken with the residents of East Clandon and the borough as a whole. Secondly, the housing numbers are based on a high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no consultation with us and this combined with estimated demand from London residents will turn Guildford into a dormitory town for London.

Further, we object to the fact that no real economic or housing demand factors have been provided by the borough planners to substantiate the very high housing target of 13,800 new dwellings over the next 20 years. This is in direct contravention of the NPPF’s requirement for the planning authority to provide meaningful consultation.

Document: Proposed Submission Local Plan: strategy and sites 2017 / Policy S2

Do you consider this section of the document; complies with the Duty to Cooperate? ( ), is Sound? ( ), is Legally Compliant? ( )

We object to Policy S2 for the proposed provision of the very high overall housing numbers of 12,426 new homes, which is only a small reduction on the previous figure of 13,860. These numbers are still based on an overly high-growth economic development plan which in itself has had no direct consultation with us. They remain too high as shown by an objective assessment made by the report made for the Guildford Residents Association (GRA) by Neil MacDonald (independent adviser and commentator on housing demographics).

Also in Policy S2 housing numbers, we object to the fact that downward economic pressures (including Brexit) have not been adequately accounted for. Additionally in Policy E1, E2 there is too much emphasis on providing retail and commercial in Guildford town centre, when the pattern of business is changing and more town centre housing is needed rather than retail. This would ease the pressure on housing on the Green Belt.

Furthermore, we object to Policy S2 because we believe the 12,426 homes includes estimated demand from London, and also now possibly from Woking’s perceived unmet need, and we feel Guildford will become a dormitory town for London and the surrounding areas, rather than meeting the needs of residents of Guildford Borough.

We object to the fact that in Policy S2, despite the afore mentioned slight apparent reduction in overall housing numbers and industrial space, the reduction is mostly in Normandy/Flexford and the load on the East of the borough is still disproportionate and has even increased.

Policy S2 – Borough Wide Strategy

I object to this policy.

1. The OAN (adopted as the housing number) lies at the heart of the Plan. This number is now unsupportable (if it ever was) following the referendum.

2. The OAN can only be considered “deliverable” because the Council has failed to consider the protection afforded to the Green Belt in the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments.

3. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important. The Plan itself appears to recognize that infrastructure and other constraints may affect deliverability. It is unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed.

1. Guildford is part of London’s commuter belt and the demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited. The increase in the supply of housing in Guildford will simply result in a shift of population into the area. The Plan will not significantly reduce prices or increase affordability except at the margins.

1. The Council has not taken account of constraints to development from the Green Belt and infrastructure. This approach differs from the other boroughs in S. The Plan is based on the assumption that “growth is good” and therefore “sustainable”. More consumption, more congestion, more Green Belt being taken is not a sustainable strategy.

1. The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon, Ripley and Send in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm will put severe strain on the road infrastructure in and around West Clandon which will be unable to cope. The proposed A3 slip roads at Burnt Common will make matters much worse. The edge of urban Guildford will be moved much closer to West Clandon. It will be built on Green Belt land which was to safeguard the countryside from encroachment and check the sprawl of large built up areas.

1. The Plan is out of balance in proposing 65% of housing on the Green Belt and 36% in the three wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon and Horsley. These are rural areas whose identities will be greatly and detrimentally changed by these proposals.

I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

It is clear that this is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in a merging of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

Having reviewed the local plan I fear that it is poorly conceived and based upon weak/flawed data.
I do support the response from the Guildford Residents Association.
I oppose the expansion of Guildford by 35%.
Insufficient consideration has been taken of brownfield sites.

In view of flawed evidence, Guildford's proposal for more than 12,426 homes is excessive and will result in needless loss of Green Belt and character. It will also result in increased congestion that cannot be justified in our heavily constrained borough.

Population estimates and growth estimates are over-inflated

Congestion is severe and requires step-change remedial action before any further housing is approved

Re: Responses to Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan (June 2016)

My main objections to the Local Plan are on the grounds of the large increase in traffic that is bound to ensue through the village of West Clandon, and to object also because of the consequent destruction of Green Belt lands. The detailed comments below on the paragraphs within the Local Plan have been prepared by others, but nevertheless accurately and succinctly reflect my own views, and are therefore largely unaltered.

Traffic in West Clandon is significant in off-peak times, and becomes congested for most of the peak- traffic times, with frequent tail-backs from the Clandon Road/Portsmouth Road roundabout (A246/B2215) to the West Clandon/Guildford Road cross-roads (A246/A247). As the present Clandon Road (A247) cannot cope with peak traffic demands, and any significant improvement in traffic handling on that road would require many houses in the village to be removed and house frontages drastically reduced, so any proposed significant increase in traffic would appear to be the result of inadequate or negligent planning. You will be aware that as recently as 12.07.16 there was yet another traffic accident in the village, this time involving two cars. As a pedestrian walking on the narrow pavements (which are sited on only one side of the road, there being insufficient space for pavements on both sides) I frequently see vehicle debris lying at the road side, presumably as a result of vehicles side-swiping one another on the narrow road. I also not unusually have to have my car mount the pavement in order to pass on-coming wide vehicles (or for them to have to do so).

You should also be aware that traffic congestion in Guildford usually results in congestion on the A3 and A246 leading into Guildford, which then causes severe congestion on the A247 through West Clandon, presumably as traffic on the other two routes tries to find alternative routes. The proposed housing developments in the Gosden Hill and Garlick Arch areas would only result in grid-lock through the village.

2. POLICY S2

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2).

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey. The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite substantially.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMA) and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s
The Plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN are not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the Borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB) and about 75% protected by Special Protection Area (SPA)). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London’s commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number, the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been skewed towards growth without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites, and through increasing the housing density of existing built-up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a

The Plan does not offer any constraints to protect the character on Guildford, which is already very congested. Other boroughs within the area are applying constraints to overall housing growth - Guildford is not. The Plan does not acknowledge the 'identities' of villages threatened by the proposals which includes Burpham.

I Object;

To the new Burnt Common interchange to A3 for 2000 Wisley houses, 2000 houses at Gosden Hill and 1850 houses at Blackwell Farm. Is there really the need to build so many house in one small area, could these houses not be divided up and built a few in many other areas to avoid congestion through Send. We often have traffic issues and many mothers walk to school at present with many small children which would make this trip quite dangerous for them, so much traffic for so many houses. This is a small Village, what impact will this make on local services i.e. Doctors Surgery, Guildford and St Peters Hospitals (which are already stretched beyond belief), Police Force, Council Services (who have already cut down collection times) Street maintainance (already our roads are in a poor state of repair)

Please reconsider your proposal for 450+ new homes in West Horsley and take a more measured approach in line with feedback expressed by the existing residents. The people of West Horsley are not being unreasonable. We understand that some increase in housing stock is needed, as current residents wish to stay in the village and new people wish to join our community. However, to increase the population of West Horsley by the numbers of people and cars you propose would destroy the character and effective functioning of the village for both existing and future residents.

I sincerely hope that you reconsider your proposal and that we can arrive at numbers which the West Horsley residents can embrace as a positive outcome for an organically evolving village.

I am writing to object to the proposed plan affecting the Send and Send Marsh Areas:

I object to the local plan A44 as this would have an adverse impact on street parking.

Plans A42, A43 and A44: The village of Send and Send March have limited access, and no public transport which can be relied on for travel to employment. Therefore the creation of new homes within these areas will dramatically affect the already congested road network. It is noted that under the plan A43A there are new slip roads for the A3, and this is supported, however this will not by anyway relive the existing problem. The fact is during the rush hour periods and frequently on the weekends the A3 is congested from around the BP services to the M25. All new homes will still be served by the existing North bound slip at Ripley as it will take commuters closer to the M25. In fact it may encourage more of the existing A3 north bound traffic to travel through the over used village roads.

Objections to Guildford Borough Council Proposed Local Plan (June 2016) I object to the draft Local Plan for the following key reasons:

- I object to a plan which proposes that over 70% of new housing be built within the Green Belt land. Election manifesto promises to the electorate are being broken.
- I object to the housing number of 693 houses per year from the West Surrey Strategic Market Housing Assessment (SHMA) as far too high. This assessment and calculation process has been far from transparent and indeed is more than double the figure used in previous plans. It also fails to take into account the new situation due to Brexit, a fact which makes the draft Local Plan now appear hopelessly out of date.
- I object to the disproportionate allocation of housing in this particular part of the borough. Indeed, over 23% of the Plan's new housing is proposed in the immediate localities of Ockham, Ripley, Send and the Horsleys (of which 65% is allocated to FWA/TFM, an area that at present has only 3% of the population of GBC).

I am a resident of Send Village and would like to express my concerns regarding the proposed development contained in the above plan.

I feel strongly that the development of villages is best achieved via the Neighbourhood Plan process which allows residents to determine an organic growth for any additional housing according to the needs of the village.

I therefore object to Guildford Borough Council determining the rise in the annual number of houses to be built each year: it would appear that the projected number of houses to be built has been overestimated by 30% which must surely be put down to financial gain rather than social need. This is a totally unrealistic number of houses for narrow country lanes to absorb.

<td>In the meantime Guildford Town centre has great capacity for residential development in the hideous and dirty car parks around the cinema for example. I went there when the cinema in Esher was being refurbished and had the worst cinematic evening out in my life. To have a drink before the film we crossed a three lane road to the nearest hostelry on an earsplitting roundabout, and the pub floor literally squelched with spilt alcohol and stank. I was embarrassed to have brought foreign guests to the “City” of Guildford which seemed as poor and shabby as a Third World country. North Street is like Belfast in the 1970’s. I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

1. The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

2. The Housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

3. The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA. It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and why were Councillors not allowed to scrutinise it? The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5,036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result in coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

1. I object to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

GBC’s proposal for 13,860 new houses without any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The Plan is unbalanced across the borough with too much development in the north east of the borough (Wisley [A35], Ripley/Send [A43] and Clandon [A25]).

5,036 houses are proposed between the M25 and Burpham (about 5 miles) which will result in urbanisation and an inevitable merging of the current the villages.

I object to a totally unrealistic number of houses for the country lanes to absorb.

I object to raising the annual number of houses built per year. With no rational reason given, one must assume these are developers' numbers for financial gain and not for social need.

I object to the disproportionate distribution of houses across Guildford Borough, by far, the North East has taken an unsustainable number, in an area where country lanes are narrow and volume of traffic now using through routes makes roads gridlocked at rush hour.

The methodology is also flawed as this plan has been formulated without regard to village Neighbourhood plans. Surely, logic would suggest planning is best formed by a bottom up approach, not top down.

I am writing this letter as I am very worried about the proposed Guildford plan. I have lived in Guildford for nearly 40 years and in that time have noticed how the traffic situation has become a nightmare. The consequences of the expansion of Guildford by a worker would be catastrophic. I therefore really oppose the expansion. It is unacceptable that Guildford is choosing not to constrain its overall housing growth. It will generate so much extra traffic congestion.

Transport evidence is not yet fit for use. The plan is not ready for an inspector.

I totally support Guildford residents association. Please reconsider as once these mistakes are made Guildford will never be the same.

I live in Heath View East Horsley and although for reasons best known to the boundary dept I am technically in the parish of Effingham, I am very much a Horsley person having lived and participated in the village for the past 65 years.

The planned development sites will ruin the village. The wider infrastructure of roads, drains, schools and medical facilities will be completely inadequate. These issues are only addressed by a few short sentences in the a 250+ page report giving the strong impression the council does not care about the impact and consequences on the lives of the people already in the village.

Planning for our borough – our spatial development strategy I object to the proposed SHMA figures. I support the submission by Guildford Residents’ Associations which challenges the figure of 693 houses per annum. The reports commissioned by GRA and others prove that the methodology used has been deliberately withheld from public scrutiny and seems to be flawed and that such a high level of housing is not justified, particularly in the light of the recent economic and political situation.

I object to the disproportionate amount of development in one area of the It is noteworthy that the proposed number of additional homes for the total of Guildford Town Centre, Guildford Urban Area and Land Around Guildford Urban Area amounts to 35% of the overall total in the 2016 Draft local Plan (with a decrease of 1356 or over 16% from the 2014 Plan, whilst the total for the area within just 3 miles of Send Marsh amounts to almost 40% of the total (and the total number in Villages increases by over 500 or 24%).

I object to site A43 Garlick's Arch, to the building of 400 houses and 7000 sq m of industrial space. The site floods and is of ancient woodlands. The industrial space is unnecessary. If any is needed, it should be at Slyfield. There is a lack of evidence for the alleged housing need numbers, and local services are inadequate to cope with increased population.

I object to the last-minute inclusion of new sites.

There is also a risk of additional flooding at the entry to the site by Garlick's Arch where there are a number of existing businesses, between Kiln Lane and Burntcommon Lane junctions. This is because there is a build up of tree debris at the point where the stream enters 3 pipes under Portsmouth Road which, if left unchecked, could form a dam similar to that at the junction of Portsmouth Road and Send Marsh Road which resulted in flooding of numerous houses in Maple Road and Send Marsh Road some years ago.

(Policy S2) It is noteworthy that the proposed number of additional homes for the total of Guildford Town Centre, Guildford Urban Area and Land Around Guildford Urban Area in the 2016 Draft Local Plan has fallen by 1356 or over 16% from the 2014 Plan, whilst the total additional homes for the small area within just 3 miles of Send Marsh exceeds 5000 and amounts to almost 40% of the total Plan. I object to POLICY S2 –Borough Wide Strategy

- No justification given for 13,860 housing need figure. Figure based on a secret formula used by consultants and never seen by anyone on the Council or by the public. Council has failed to seek its disclosure.
- 13,860 figure confuses the OAN with a housing target. No definite housing target given, leaving too much scope for the Council to make one up. I can’t understand how we’re being consulted when we don’t know how many houses the Council want to build, taking all the constraints into account.
- Figures based on a Housing Market Area that ignores 2 neighbouring districts (Rushmoor and Mole Valley) and is much too small, since most people commute or travel far outside the Area to shop or study. This distorts the figures: no reason why Guildford needs to build nearly twice as many large housing estates as the rest of Surrey put together, or half of all sites over 100 units.
- High numbers involved would transform the character of the borough from mainly rural/Green Belt to urban, creating a corridor of development out of London as per Woking or Croydon.

I object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Proposed Submission Local Plan June 2016. The plan is not fit for purpose and unsustainable.

Please find my objection listed below to specific policies and matters within the Plan

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. The allocation of sites in the Plan will result in 36% of all new housing being located in the three Wards of Lovelace, Send and Clandon & Horsley. Whilst at present these three Wards represent only about 11% of the existing housing in the borough, they are very much rural Wards. Some 5036 houses are being allocated between the M25 and Burpham, a distance of only about 5 miles. It will result coalescence and a merging of identities of the surrounding villages. The Plan is completely unbalanced and does not reflect the current spread of housing across the borough.

The proposed development of Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (A43) and Gosden Hill (A25) will have a disproportionate impact on the surrounding local villages. They will have a permanently detrimental impact on each of these communities.

My wife and I came to the Horsleys in the early 80s. We have stayed because everything gives a good and enjoyable way of life. More houses and in the numbers proposed could be cruel and only sanctioned by someone not living here.

I hope you find these few words helpful when deliberating our future.

I object very strongly to the Guildford Borough Council,s Draft Local Plan June 2016 for the following reasons:-

There are no constraints to protect the character of the rural aspects of Guildford or its villages.

The vast planned development of homes is a disproportionate level of expansion making it unsustainable without the necessary infrastructure.

There is much use of the word sustainable in the local plan. A dictionary definition is “which conserves an ecological balance by avoiding depletion of natural resources or that can be sustained” Once green belt land is built upon, how it can be sustained? The truth is it can’t – once the green belt is gone that is it – it will never be replaced. The recent referendum vote for Brexit from the EU must cast doubt on many of the assumptions made for population and employment forecasts. The consultation appears to be based on figures which have been kept secret from the public, so how can there be any transparency in the whole process?

In addition to all of the above the volume of new housing proposed for the Horsleys and surrounding villages including the proposal for Wisley airfield does not only seem inappropriate, unjustified and necessary but also seems to be well above the national estimates for population growth. to be unnecessary. Why is this?

With regard to the sites numbered:

- A25 – Gosden Hill
- A43 and A43a - Land at Burnt Common – known as Garlick's Arch
- A35 – Former Wisley Airfield in the revised draft local plan.

I would like to object to the inclusion of these sites in the draft local plan for the following reasons:

1. The number of houses needed in the Borough was changed between the first and second issues of the draft plan indicating that there is considerable uncertainty in this figure and the basis and method of calculation. In view of the recent EU referendum vote and its impact on future immigration, the number of houses required is likely to reduce further.

   With smaller house numbers the need for any loss of the Greenbelt should be reassessed as 'special circumstances' necessary for reclassification have not been established.
2. Sites 43 & 43a were introduced at the last minute and there has been insufficient time for consultation before its inclusion in the draft plan.

3. Wisley/Ripley/Send/Burnt Common/Send Marsh is a semi-rural area and development on this large scale will lead to urbanisation and permanently change the nature of the area. In particular this could provide the starting link in connecting Guildford to the M25.

4. These developments place a disproportionate burden on the north east of the Borough.

5. Traffic will increase significantly and the access and exit roads to and from the A3 are too narrow to cope with the resultant increase in traffic - particularly at peak hours.

6. Other infrastructure.
   Is there adequate power, drainage and sewage provision for industrial development and is there sufficient school, medical and similar provisions for domestic expansion?

7. Light and sound pollution.
   The area enjoys fairly dark skies for its proximity to London. Any additional development will add to the light pollution unless provisions are made to ensure strict control of any additional lighting. Please consult Guildford Astronomical Society. It already suffers from noise pollution from the A3. Traffic noise pollution seems inevitable if development proceeds.
   If included in the plan, provision should be made for strict control of noise and light pollution emanating from the site – particularly at nighttime.

8. The sites contain a substantial number of trees many of which are quite mature and must make a significant contribution to the Borough's carbon reduction target. It seems perverse that planning permissions have been refused because of the impact on the individual trees whilst the wholesale destruction of woods seems inevitable if these sites are included.
   It seems difficult to reconcile these two extreme positions.
   If included in the plan preservation orders should be placed on appropriate trees as a minimum requirement.

I OBJECT to the Borough Wide Strategy (Policy S2)

The borough wide strategy is poorly considered. It proposes 13,860 housing being developed across the borough and does not apply any constraints to reduce the overall housing figure, which would be very reasonable and sensible. This approach differs from all the other Borough Councils in Surrey.

The housing number is based on pre-Brexit data for economic and population growth, including migration. These now need to be revised downwards, possibly quite seriously.

The housing number is based on an arbitrary Housing Market Area (HMA): the “West Surrey” tri-borough area of Guildford, Woking and Waverley. An HMA should be an area within which a majority of people live, work, shop or study. On any common sense view, “West Surrey” is much too small. Half of Guildford borough’s residents work elsewhere, and half who work here live outside the borough. A short, half-hour commute puts the borough within reach of Surbiton to the North, Haslemere to the South, Reigate to the East and Basingstoke to the West; but all lie well outside “West Surrey”. Puzzlingly, the adjacent district of Rushmoor, minutes from Guildford town centre, is outside the HMA.

It is no justification to say that the tri-borough area has been used in the past, or that a similar approach is used elsewhere; unlike (say) Carlisle, Norwich or Shrewsbury, Guildford is in the London commuter belt and part of a far wider and more complex housing market.

These concerns have been raised since 2014 but the Council has failed to seek better market data. There was no public consultation on the SHMA and Councillors were not allowed to scrutinise it. The absence of a ready alternative, however, does not make “West Surrey” reliable. The area is artificial, and so therefore are the housing numbers derived from it. For instance, by juxtaposing Guilford with Woking it appears that Guildford residents are being asked to build homes on open countryside to meet its bigger, urban neighbour’s “need”. Guildford wants to build 7 sites of over 500 units, compared with only 4 across Surrey’s 10 other districts, and 26 sites over 100 units, compared with 53 across the rest of the county. This distribution is unbalanced.

The assumptions and calculations in the SHMA are widely regarded as flawed and even before Brexit, produced an inflated housing needs number. The figure of 13,860 new homes is completely unsubstantiated. It has not been scrutinized by Councillors despite repeated requests for debate. The assumptions and calculations underlying the model are hidden, protected by a claim to intellectual property by a commercial sub-contractor used in preparing the SHMA. I have serious doubts about the objectivity of the SHMA because it has been produced by consultants whose website openly proclaims their pro-development agenda leading to reasonable suspicion that the figures are inflated. Guildford’s OAN is not transparent but has been taken on trust by the authors of the plan. Given that almost every element of the plan is predicated on this OAN, the plan as a whole cannot be considered “sound”.

The status of the 13,860 figure is ambiguous. The Council has said that the housing number and the OAN are identical because the OAN is “deliverable” and is by definition objective and cannot be contradicted. The OAN is only deliverable because of the Council’s cavalier approach to the Green Belt in contravention of the NPPF, ministerial statements and local and national Conservative Party manifesto commitments. The plan also states that infrastructure or other constraints may in due course affect deliverability. It is also unlikely that the number of houses can be built at the rate proposed. In recent years, housing starts have on average been less than half the proposed rate. This is not because developers do not have the land or cannot get planning permission. Constraints in the supply chain and maintaining profit levels have been more important.

The plan cannot be considered “deliverable”. In addition, the number of homes proposed, plus existing planning permissions, plus expected “windfall” sites, exceeds the total of 13,860. So how many homes (taking account of these adjustments) do the Council want built? The plan does not say. Without this figure it is hard to see how anything else can be planned. This undermines the validity of the whole consultation. It is unreasonable to ask the public to approve a “plan” that fails to propose a target number that takes all the standard constraints and adjustments realistically into account, leaving the Council to set one without further consultation. Even if the OAN is not flawed, it is at best only a baseline figure and should not be passed off as a policy proposal.

It is unreasonable to embark on a radical transformation of the borough on the basis of an unclear housing target. Most of Guildford Borough is highly protected from development (89% Green Belt, 44% AONB and about 75% protected by SPA). Whether or not increasing the number of dwellings by up to a quarter is desirable, it would be a major and irreversible change, arguably turning a largely rural borough into a mainly urban or suburban one like Woking. The scale of the housing number increases the onus for it to be seen to be sound. A substantially lower number, on the other hand, would remove the need to build on Green Belt or open countryside, and instantly meet the single biggest public objection to the plan as a whole.

The Plan in general and this policy in particular does not address the point that Guildford exists as part of London's commuter belt. Any increase in supply of housing in Guildford, particularly if the increase is proportionately greater than elsewhere in the commuter belt, will simply result in a shift of population into the area. It will not reduce prices or increase availability except imperceptibly. The Plan also ignores the point that many of those working in the area live elsewhere. Accordingly in considering the housing number the Plan should take into account that in this part of London’s commuter belt, demand for housing is, in practical terms, unlimited.

This policy does not take proper accounts of the constraints to development which exist, principally posed by the Green Belt and by infrastructure limitations. I believe the Council is under a duty to properly consider applying these constraints. It is clear the Council has failed to do this. This approach differs from all the other boroughs in Surrey. The Plan appears to have deliberately been manipulated towards a growth agenda without disclosing why this is being done. The housing that is needed should be concentrated on urban brown field sites and through increasing the housing density of existing built up urban areas.

The development of 13,860 homes in the Plan period with 65% in the Green Belt does not constitute sustainable development. It will have a permanently detrimental impact on the Borough in general and on West Clandon and surrounding area in particular. The developments at Garlick’s Arch and Gosden Hill Farm do not meet the needs of the local communities. The road infrastructure in and around West Clandon will be unable to cope with additional demand. The edge of urban Guildford will creep that much closer to West Clandon, thus negating the purposes of the Green Belt in the area which include safeguarding the countryside from encroachment, checking the unrestricted sprawl of large built up areas and preventing neighboring towns merging into one another.

It is clear that the strategy adopted in the Plan is out of balance, with disproportionate development in the north east of the borough resulting from the allocation Wisley Airfield (A35), Garlick’s Arch (Ripley/Send border) (A43) and Gosden Hill Farm (Clandon) (A25) as major residential sites. I object to all building on the Green Belt at Send, Ripley and Clandon because any called for development can be accommodated in Guildford’s brownfield areas much closer to existing transport facilities.

I object to the quoted housing need amount of 13,860 for the borough which is far too high.

I object to expanding Send’s housing by over 25%. Objections were raised before and the number was reduced to from 435 to 185. It does not make any sense and goes against many people’s wishes to expand on this number once again.

I would like my objections to be noted and the draft Local Plan (June 2016) amended.

I object to the borough wide strategy because:

- There is insufficient justification to build over thirteen thousand homes.
- Lack of transparency in housing requirement projections
- Absence of exploration of brown field options
- Based on out of date assumptions ie pre Brexit
- The proposed development exceeds local demand and instead will satisfy demand from neighbouring and other boroughs
